LONDON.

THURSDAY (4 A. M.), NOVEMBER 9.

[By cable to THE TRIBUNE.]

The military expert of the London Times in his editorial summary of the Transvaal this morning draws the following deductions:

"The reports which continue to be received in reference to the fighting near Ladysmith on Thursday and Friday are somewhat conflicting, but as regards Brocklehurst's action on the Pietermaritzburg road a dispatch received from a correspondent of the Times with General White is sufficiently explicit, and is, further, extremely encouraging as indicating a brisk and vigorous disposition on the part of the Ladysmith garrison, which must be most disconcerting to the investing force, even if the tangible results are not as great as suggested in some quarters.

"The fact that such a strong body of Boers with guns mounted in their lager were driven off in what must have been something exceedingly like confusion confirms the view that the investment is not pressing at all heavily on General White's gallant and now fairly well seasoned force.

"The bombardment, too, is happily ineffective, notwithstanding the fact that the enemy has evidently moved fresh guns into position. The fact that our naval batteries were still working up to Monday and Tuesday is established by the allusion in the Times correspondent's dispatch to the exchange of shots, but it is clear in any case that the Boers do not longer put complete faith in their siege guns as a means for easily and cheaply reducing Ladysmith.

"The retrograde movement of the Boer force which occupied Colenso and which, it is said, has retired four miles north is a specially important piece of news, as it is quite unlikely that such a position, once gained by the enemy, would have been evacuated unless the Boers found the pressure exercised upon them in this direction by the cavalry from Ladysmith inconvenient. It does not seem at all probable that having due regard for the activity of the Ladysmith garrison, the Boers will be able to detach a force sufficiently large to effectively threaten either Estcourt or Pietermaritzburg before fresh troops are landed.

"The movements of the Boer column in Zululand appear to be destructive in character, as far as fire and pillage are concerned, but no military results of any importance have yet been secured, and the moment reinforcements commence to arrive at Durban a sympathetic withdrawal of the Boer force from this quarter may follow.

"The want of communicativeness displayed by General White is explained in all probability by the fact that he is keeping General Buller fully informed of his position and the latter doubtless has an excellent reason for keeping the information at present to himself.

"In a few days we shall know definitely the main line of action to be adopted.

"The news from both Kimberley and Mafeking is still satisfactory, and in the latter case the reported approach of Plumer's force from Rhodesia with a view to reinforcing Baden-Powell's gallant little band is especially gratifying.

"The possibility of a determined attack on Kimberley is increasing, but there is no reason to expect it will not be readily and sharply repulsed.

"The position of the Orange River station is perhaps more serious, but the arrangements for resisting any attack are known to be excellent and the number of British troops in the neighborhood must now be considerable."

Arrangement Is Commendable.

Commenting editorially upon the Samoan settlement, the Times this morning says:

"On the whole, the arrangement appears to be such as ought to commend itself to two sensible and practical peoples."

The Times this morning prints the following from its special and war correspondents:

Boers Given Serious Check.

PIETERMARITZBURG (Sunday).—Yesterday's reports have confirmed the statement that the enemy's losses during the action near Ladysmith were heavy and amounting to nearly 1,000. The Boers received a serious check, and retired four miles north of Colenso. The railway will probably soon be open again.

Our losses are heavy, chiefly owing to the treacherous abuse of the white flag, which is so frequently used as a bait and should be ignored. The situation is much relieved.

Message Comes from Ladysmith.

LADYSMITH (Friday) by runners to Estcourt (Sunday)—The enemy has guns in position in the rear of the camp. The battery is well placed and hard to locate, as it is using smokeless powder. The three batteries open at intervals upon the naval batteries, but the bombardment hitherto has been simply desultory. A few shells burst in the town, but the loss of life and damage are immaterial. Since they invested the town the enemy has shown little enterprise

SUMMARY OF The Daily Tribune.

BOER-BRITISH WAR.

Nothing to confirm stories of great British successes at Ladysmith. Boers supposed to be still blazing away. It is said now reinforcements for Buller cannot advance to White's aid before Nov. 25, when Boers should have Ladysmith, Pietermaritzburg, Mafeking, and Kimberley. London Times' military expert regards recent reports as "extremely encouraging," in indicating brisk disposition of his troops by White.—Boer siege is evidently lax.

UNION LABOR WANTS RESTRAINT BARRED ON "STRUCK" JOBS.

Preparing to Apply to the City Council for an Order Denying Municipal Protection to Non-Union Workmen in Such Cases—Federation Is Sponsor of the Move—Contractors and Architects Tell Their Experiences—W. L. B. Jenney's Statement.

Union labor in Chicago has determined to ask the City Council to pass an ordinance denying police protection to all non-union men who continue to work on a job which had been "struck." The Federation of Labor will urge the movement and the general report yesterday in workingmen's circles was that the demand would be made on the Aldermen next Monday night. The report, except as to the definite date on which the matter is to be presented, received confirmation when President James E. Daley of the federation said:

"It is true that the Legislative committee of the Federation of Labor has been preparing a petition to the City Council to regulate the police protection accorded to non-union men. It will be presented within a short time. Its provisions have not been definitely framed as yet."

"That move on the part of the unions," said W. L. B. Jenney of Jenney & Mundie, architects, "is an illustration of what extremes they will resort to when given the opportunity. That petition to the Council is nothing more nor less than a request to remove the restraint of law and sanction the union men in promiscuously breaking the heads of their non-union enemies. The more rope they get the more they want."

Announcement of the Plan.

The announcement of this newly devised plan came along with a general discussion among labor agitators of the declaration of war made by the architects and contractors in their joint conference on Tuesday. Coincident with it was the more threatening situation on the buildings in course of construction throughout the city.

This condition and the languid appearance of the offices of the architects were pointed out as the keynotes of the stagnation which has been brought on building in Chicago by the arbitrary dictates of the unions. The contractors, who are under bonds to finish their structures within a stated time, are confronted by the dilemma of accepting the increasing demands of labor in order to keep faith with their patrons or of taking steps to thwart the imposition of more arduous conditions in the future. The situation has brought to light many instances of union demands branded by the contractors and architects as "infamous, unconstitutional, and ridiculous."

During the day the Building Trades council ordered a strike on the Springfield avenue pumping station because of an altercation with the Sykes Steel Roofing company, which had the contract for roofing the structure with tile and steel. All the mechanics on the job, including carpenters, bricklayers, masons, and structural steel workers, to the number of seventy, were required to drop their work. The demands made by the unions on the firm amount to $110. The sum includes a bill for wages for members of the Sheet Metal Workers' union during a period in which they were on strike but idling about the structure, and also $20 charged the firm for expenses incurred by the walking delegate in inciting the strike. The Sykes company is crippled in its obligations to the general contractors, but Vice President Frederic Deconingh stated last evening that his house would hold a conference with the Sheet Metal Contractors' association before taking action.

Call It Type of Grievances.

The history of the whole difference between the roofing company and the unions, the contractors and architects say, is typical of grievances voiced in their charges.

"Last March," said Mr. DeConingh, "the Sykes Steel Roofing company cotnracted for some work in Moline, Ill. We paid the car fare of the workmen from Chicago to the town. They had been at work for some time without any disturbance, and the men had agreed to stay till the completion of the job at the pay offered. Then the union ordered an increase in the wages. We sent back the ultimatum that we would hire other men rather than increase the wages. The union thereupon ordered the job 'struck,' and sent the fare for the men to return to Chicago. When we came to our settlement with the men we held back the fare which we had advanced to take them to Moline, arguing that they were not entitled to more than the pay for their actual amount of work.

"The union made many demands on us for the amount of the fare, and we at last proposed a resort to arbitration. This the union refused. About two months ago we took the contract to roof the Springfield avenue pumping station, and again employed members of the Sheet Metal Workers' union. The organization sent out a delegate, F. Pouchot, who repeated the demand for the disputed amount, and threatened a strike. The men were ordered out, and continued in their places, but doing nothing for four days. That was six weeks ago. When pay day came the men presented time checks for the four days' time in which they had done no work. We refused to pay them except for the amount due them prior to the strike. The union paid them for the four days and charged the amount up to its claim on us.

Charge for the Strike.

"The union presented a demand on us for $110 for the withheld Moline fare, the four days' strike pay, and $25 which was claimed for the expenses of Mr. Pouchot in organizing the strike against our work. We refused to entertain the proposition.

"Five days ago we employed members of the Tilelayers' union to begin laying the tile roof on the structure. The business agent of the sheet metal organization, Mr. Pouchot, again appeared and attempted to induce the tile men to quit their work. They replied they had no grievance and would not lay down their tools until the Building Trades council should order out all the guilds of mechanics. The business agent of the tile union would not authorize a strike on the work, and today Pouchot came back, stating that he was the authorized representative of the Board of Business Agents of the Building Trades council. He ordered the men out and all the mechanics, seventy in number, obeyed the summons."

Tell of Experiences.

In most of the offices of contractors and architects during the day there were informal "experience" meetings, in which examples of the labor unions' arbitrary rulings were cited by the score.

"The most despicable action on the part of organized labor which has come under my notice," said Richard E. Schmidt, architect of the Montgomery Ward Building, Michigan avenue and Madison street, "occurred some time ago on the Ward structure. There was a quantity of old iron piping in the basement, which the contractors sold to a West Side second-hand dealer. The man drove his wagon down-town and pro-

CLARETIE ASKED TO RESIGN.

Reported in Paris the Government Has Requested the Manager of Comedie Francaise to Get Out.

Paris, Nov. 8.—It is rumored tonight that Claretie, administrator of the Comédie Française, has been asked to resign by the government on account of dissensions in the management of the theater and the personal hostility of the public towards Claretie himself, which culminated in a scandalous scene last night, when the audience broke forth in hisses and cries of "Down with Linguet," "Down with the Jews," "Down with Claretie; let him go to Dreyfus."

Claretie, under the pseudonym of "Linguet," followed the Dreyfus case at Rennes for the Temps, and made many bitter enemies.

Aside from the fact of the Dreyfus affair it is generally admitted that the Comédie is going to pieces.

Faded scenery, mediocre actors, poor selection of plays, and neglect of the classics have completely turned the public from the Comédie, and it is only country people and foreigners who, unaware of the decadence of the theater, patronize the Comédie.

The boulevard theaters have absorbed all the Comédie patronage, and the half million given annually from the state enters the the pockets of the administrators, who accept their situations as sinecures and devote themselves to other professions.

New Style of Civil Service.

M. Leygues, the Minister of Public Instruction, has introduced a proposition which is accepted by the Cabinet, in effect that all future state officials must have been pupils for at least three years of the state schools. It is believed that in this way reactionarism will be crushed out from the state officials. The Jesuits are accused of educating boys to the royalist ideas, and it is asserted that this destroys the ideas of liberty fostered by the state schools, which teach free thinking.

BETTER THAN MARCONI SYSTEM

W. A. Eddy Able to Transmit Wireless Messages Between Two Kites Without a Battery.

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Marconi's is not the only telegraphy that will send messages without wires. According to W. A. Eddy, the kite expert of Bayonne, N. J., it is equally easy to accomplish the same result with wires fastened to two ordinary kites.

Mr. Eddy believes that if the two poles of sending and reception extend high enough into the air enough electricity will be generated from the atmosphere to do away with the storage batteries and complicated telegraph instruments used by Marconi.

A kite was raised to a height of 1,000 feet. Four hundred feet away another wire of the same length was attached to two kites, fastened to the main wire in a sort of a V-shaped branch. No battery or electrical apparatus of any kind was connected with the kites.

Mr. Eddy took his place at the single wire kite. He made the connection between it and the ground, and instantly a shock was felt by his assistant on the other wire 400 feet away.

Mr. Eddy brought the shifting hook against the wire with short, irregular blows, something like a telegrapher's clicks. They were all felt by his associate at the other wire. It took ten seconds for each blow on the single kite wire to pass up to the kite, shoot off through space, and come down on the double kite wire.

With telegraphers' instruments of only ordinary delicacy Mr. Eddy is confident a message could be made to travel in a much less time.

JULIA ARTHUR STOPS PLAY.

Curtain Drawn While Offensive Persons Are Asked to Leave New York Theater.

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Julia Arthur, exasperated by the talk and laughter of two persons in the auditorium tonight, interrupted her performance of "More Than Queen" and ordered that the curtain be drawn. The spectators who had disturbed her were a man and a woman who occupied an upper box. When the curtain fell Miss Arthur appeared in front of it and said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: I don't wish to seem impatient. Persons in an upper box, whom you have noticed, I am sure, have disturbed me so much that I am afraid to play again while they talk and laugh. I wish they would go."

They made no signs of going, but a man who went to them from the auditorium persuaded them to leave the playhouse. The curtain was raised and the third act of the play was continued.

This is Mr. Ball's third matrimonial venture, he having received a divorce from his second wife less than a week ago. Mrs. Bliss is a handsome widow of 35, and Mr. Ball is 60.

OLYMPIA OUT OF COMMISSION.

Cruise of the Fighting Vessel Ends at the Charleston Navy Yards.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—Admiral Dewey's flagship Olympia went out of commission at the Charlestown navy yard today. All the officers and the crew were assembled on the quarterdeck, where Captain Lamberton bade them good-by.

Retreat was sounded while the flag was being hauled down, and this ended the cruise of the famous vessel.

A board of survey will now make inspection of the Olympia, and report to the Navy department what repairs are necessary.

SUES MRS. T. M. BAXTER.

R. G. M'GANN ASKS $15,000 DAMAGES, CHARGING SLANDER.

Holds Evanston Matron Responsible for Stories Told the Mother of a Young Woman to Whom He Is Attentive—Trouble Traced to the Defendant's Efforts to Terminate His Friendship for Her Schoolgirl Daughter—Jessie Root a Factor.

Robert G. McGann, 18 Walton place, began suit last night in the Circuit Court against Mrs. T. M. Baxter of Evanston on a charge of slander. He asks $15,000 damages. Mr. McGann and Miss Baxter were friends three years ago, but their acquaintance was broken off because of stories that came to the ears of the girl's mother, who is the defendent in the case. According to the complaint of Mr. McGann his suit is brought because the stories that marred his friendship with Miss Baxter were repeated to the mother of a South Side society girl to whom he paid attention after the chapter in his life devoted to Miss Baxter was closed.

Mr. McGann, it seems, asked Mrs. Baxter to make a written retraction of what had been said. She refused. Hence the suit.

Both parties to the suit are prominent in society circles. Mrs. Baxter is the wife of T. M. Baxter, 1304 Judson avenue, Evanston, who has operated on the Board of Trade for twenty-five years. Mr. McGann spends much of his time at the Union club, which is near his house. He is senior member of the firm of R. G. McGann & Co., machinery, 453 Rookery Building.

Objects to Mr. M'Gann's Attentions.

The story of Mr. McGann's relations with the Baxter family began at the Chicago Beach Hotel in 1896. Mr. McGann, who was beyond 35 at that time, began to pay marked attention to Miss Baxter, a schoolgirl. Mrs. Baxter did not fancy this, chiefly because of the discrepancy in ages. She made some inquiries and learned that Mr. McGann at one time had lived in Philadelphia. Subsequently she met a woman of the name of Jessie Root, who came from Philadelphia. Naturally the women talked about Mr. McGann. After their conversation Mrs. Baxter read some of the letters her daughter had received from Mr. McGann. After this his attentions were not so welcome, and in time they ceased.

As time went on Mr. McGann became acquainted with the South Side girl referred to in the foregoing. Her name is kept a secret. She received his attentions pleasantly, and all was going well when her aunt heard of Mr. McGann's affair with Miss Baxter. She told the South Side girl's mother of it.

Mothers Hold a Conference.

The mother sought out Mrs. Baxter and they discussed Mr. McGann as mothers discuss eligible men. Then Jessie Root came into the case. She talked with the South Side mother just as she did with Mrs. Baxter.

As a result of these feminine conferences Mr. McGann felt called upon to ask Mrs. Baxter to speak out in his behalf. There was a meeting between the two. Mrs. Baxter said she would not enter into the matter again. Mr. McGann, it is understood, then demanded the written retraction. Mrs. Baxter firmly declined to write it. Then the interview ended.

Both Sides Admit Suit.

Mr. McGann, seen at his house, admitted that he had brought the suit, that the charge was slander, and the amount asked was $15,000.

"I do not care to discuss the matter further," he said, "except to declare that it will be settled quickly."

At Mr. Baxter's house it was said that the story of the events leading up to the suit, as told in the foregoing, was true.

W. J. Strong is attorney for Mrs. Baxter. He said:

"Mr. McGann will get all the fight he wants before he is through with this case."

The attorneys for Mr. McGann are Bulkley, Gray & Moore.

DECIDES TO IGNORE CYCLING.

Woodlawn Club Thinks the Pedaling Pastime Has Lost Its Charm—Wants New Bylaws.

"Cycling is dead." That is the verdict of the Woodlawn Cycling club, pronounced at its regular monthly meeting held last night. On a caucus it was found that the majority of the members of the club did not even own wheels and that many of those who did own them were tired of riding them. There has been a demand, however, for social evenings and the informal privileges of the clubrooms. It was the unanimous opinion that cycling as a sole feature of a club was out of date, and the decision was reached to change the constitution and bylaws. The following committee, to report on Nov. 27, was appointed: Major McGregor, J. H. Lindgran, W. F. Rockwell, L. H. Bronte, and G. M. Landon.

Dr. Modjeski believes he knows who committed the theft, but refuses to divulge the name.

DEWEY GETS LICENSE TO WED.

Says He's a Sailor, a Widower, and That His Age Is Sixty-one Years.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Admiral Dewey, with his usual forehandedness, took out a license today to wed Mrs. Mildred M. Hazen. It was issued by the Clerk of the District Supreme Court on the personal application of Lieutenant Caldwell, the Admiral's secretary. The license declares the Admiral is a sailor, 61 years of age, and the bride-to-be 43. Both parties to the contract are registered as citizens of the District of Columbia and mention is made, according to law, of the fact that there was a previous marriage in each case.

Wild rumors were afloat tonight that Admiral Dewey and Mrs. Hazen were to be married this evening. Lieutenant Caldwell, the Admiral's secretary, said the wedding would certainly not take place tonight, but he would not fix a date in the future. For this reason it is believed the marriage will be celebrated tomorrow, and that only a few friends will know of the exact time.

Archbishop Keane is in Pennsylvania, but he could reach here, if notified tonight.

To avoid the throng of callers at the house this afternoon Mrs. Hazen and her mother spent the time driving about the city, and when they returned to the house on K street and saw the crowd lounging in the park across the street promptly denied themselves to all callers, even personal friends.

The Post tomorrow will say:

"Admiral George Dewey and Mrs. Mildred Hazen will probably be married today. No announcement has been made, but the necessary license was procured yesterday, and arrangements for the wedding, which will be attended only by members of the two families, are complete.

"The ceremony, it is understood, will be performed at the residence of Mrs. Washington McLean, Mrs. Hazen's mother, 1705 K street. The hour of the ceremony depends, it is said, upon the return of Mr. John R. McLean, Mrs. Hazen's brother, from Ohio. He is expected in Washington some time today.

"The required dispensation for the ceremony to take place elsewhere than in a church was procured yesterday, and it is asserted that Cardinal Gibbons will be here to officiate."

Plaintiff was discharged at the hearing, but says the arrest damaged his business and reputation. Joined as defendants are Oscar E. Little, a Humane society officer, and J. C. Forbes.

BINDERY GIRLS IN A PANIC.

Fire in a Washington Street Building Does $4,000 Damage and Causes Much Fright.

Revell's bookbindery, on the third floor of 63 Washington street, late yesterday afternoon by a fire on the third floor of the building at 59 and 61, adjoining. The fire started in rubbish in a vacant room, it is supposed from sparks from a hoisting engine being blown into the open windows. Smoke filled the rooms for a time, but the fire was extinguished soon. Total loss is $4,000.

KAISER REVEALS PLANS TO CZAR.

Meeting of Europe's War Lords at Potsdam Brings Out Important Diplomatic Secrets.

AID TO ENGLAND'S CAUSE

German and British Friendship to Be Cemented by Wilhelm's Visit to Queen Victoria.

PLAN FOR ROYAL RECEPTION

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY D. B. MACDOWAR.]

Berlin, Nov. 8.—The German papers of all shades of opinion give the Czar the heartiest welcome and emphasize the fact that the relations between Russia and Germany have greatly improved under the reign of Nicholas.

The Liberal papers insist it is necessary to agree upon a commercial treaty in order to preserve the present amicable relations.

Given Great Political Significance.

The visit is regarded generally as having great political significance, and the reference in the Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung's inspired greeting to the tasks the Czar has before him outside of this continent, excites much comment.

Some papers attribute a most important political meaning to the words.

The Tageblatt sees a pointer in the direction of south Africa, and the Germania says there is something in the air, but nobody knows what.

The presence of Count Mouravieff and Prince Radolin, the German Ambassador to St. Petersburg, are also interpreted as giving a political significance to the visit.

Puts End to Transvaal Talk.

The attempt of some of the papers to connect the visit with the Transvaal question was pronounced as absurd, since the publication of the Samoa settlement on the day of the Czar's arrival emphasizes Germany's intention to preserve England's friendship.

Arrive at Wildpark Station.

Berlin, Nov. 8.—Punctually at 11 o'clock the huge Russian imperial train, consisting of eleven cars, drew slowly into the Wildpark station.

On the platform was the Kaiser in the uniform of his Russian regiment, with the Kaiserin and a crowd of court functionaries. The station was gayly decorated with Russian flags and surrounded by a guard of honor from the Czar's German regiment. The Czar was first greeted by the Kaiser, who hastened forward, and the Russian Empress, dressed in deep mourning for her dead brother-in-law, was assisted to alight by the Kaiser. The Kaiserin hastened forward and embraced warmly her imperial relative.

The suites were then mutually introduced, the Kaiser engaging Count Mouravieff in conversation and the Czar speaking with the German Ambassador to St. Petersburg, Prince Radolin.

Crowds Cheer the Czar.

The Kaiser suggested that both Empresses should drive to the Schloss at once, and the two Emperors followed, talking gayly, the Czar gravely saluting the crowds.

In the Russian train are two splendid Dutch cows, which supply diet for the three juvenile Grand Duchesses.

A strong cordon of military detectives surrounds the imperial train as it waits on its siding, and another strong body watches the Neue Palais, where the Czar remains until he leaves for Russia.

The Emperor and Kaiser took a walk in the afternoon in the palace park, and then visited the tomb of Emperor Frederick III.

Potsdam, Nov. 8.—Emperor William received Count Mouravieff in the presence of Count von Bülow, the audience lasting half an hour. Emperor William personally handed the grand cross of the Red Eagle to Count von Bülow.

DATE OF WILLIAM'S VISIT SET.

German Emperor Will Call on Queen Victoria at Windsor Castle Nov. 20.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY ARTHUR L. CLARKE.]

London, Nov. 8.—According to the arrangements now perfected, Emperor William lands at Portsmouth early in the afternoon of the 20th inst., and will be received by the Duke of Connaught and the Duke of York.

From the pier the party will be taken direct by royal special to the Windsor station, where the Prince of Wales will be in waiting to receive them.

The Prince and Emperor will drive together in an open carriage to the castle, the Queen receiving her guest at the sovereign's entrance to the tapestry rooms.

Windsor is now being prepared by the Lord Chamberlain's officials for the occupation of the Emperor during his visit. This suite, which is in the private portion of the castle, opens from the grand corridor, and is near the Queen's own apartments. The sitting-room has a fine view to the east of the terrace and home park, while the bedroom looks on the long walk.

Portraits of Royal Personages.

Empress Frederick has several times occupied the tapestry rooms, and at one period they were always used by the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The sitting-room is decorated with tapestry, and in the other rooms of the suite are hung the family portraits, including those of Emperors William I., Frederick, and Franz Josef, the present German Emperor when a boy, Prince and Princess Frederick Charles of Prussia, Grand Duchess Alice of Hesse, and the children of the King and Queen of the Belgians, and Queen Caroline, wife of George IV. The last picture hung in Claremont until 1866, when it was removed to Windsor.

WILLIAM'S SIGNIFICANT ACT.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY I. N. FORD.]

London, Nov. 9.—The German Emperor again has succeeded in commanding the attention of Europe and increasing his personal prestige and influence. He received yesterday at Potsdam with pomp, statelliness, and cordiality the Czar and the Empress, who have been visiting their relations in Hesse, and there were conferences between Count Mouravieff and the German Chancellor and other high dignitaries of state. These courtesies were a concession to the old school of diplomacy, which, trained by Bismarck, believed that the highest interests of Germany were promoted by a good understanding and secret agreements with Russia.

The day fixed for this meeting of the two sovereigns also was chosen for a partial announcement of the various secret arrangements made with England in advance of the German Emperor's visit to the Queen. These include the renunciation of English rights in Samoa in favor of Germany, compensations for England in the cession of the two eastern islands of the Solomon group, and the abandonment of German rights in the Tonga group and Savage Island, the abolition of German consular jurisdiction in Zanzibar, and an arrangement for the delimitation of the British and German frontiers in the Hinterland of Togoland.

These exchanges of territory and jurisdiction are too intricate to be understood except by experts of the Royal Geographical society, although the leader writers make a brave attempt to explain them in today's London journals.

Other Secrets Kept Back.

What is of the highest significance is the evidence that England and Germany are heartily in accord and standing by each other. No diplomatist believes that in the Berlin announcement, which is confirmed by the Foreign office, there is a complete disclosure of the secret agreement between England and Germany. The deepest things are still unrevealed, but enough is laid bare to prove that Lord Salisbury has secured a free hand in south Africa and coöperation by Germany in preventing European intrigue or intervention while the British army is fighting a great battle in that remote quarter of its empire.

Bismarck's secret understanding was with Russia. The German Emperor has become England's ally, and he allows the world to know it on the day when he embraces the Czar and drinks his health. He also justifies the elaborate preparations made by the royal family for welcoming him to England, with the Duke of Connaught and the Duke of York to salute him at Sheerness, with the Prince of Wales to meet him at the station at Windsor, with the Queen herself to stand at the head of the grand staircase, with the portraits of his grandfather and father to look down upon him from the walls of the famous tapestry rooms, and with all England outside ready to proclaim him a loyal friend and sturdy ally—the same England that was eager to have war with Germany four years ago.

Another Striking Coincidence.

Another coincidence which does not escape observation here is that this revelation of diplomatic secrets is made the day after the American elections, when the party in power has secured a general verdict of popular approval. The diplomatists here assume with confidence that England has not sacrificed American friendship or interests in the Samoan settlement and that a partition of the territory between the United States and Germany has received the sanction of the three powers concerned in the tripartite convention, which had ceased to be a practical method of governing the group.

Door to Be Open.

The leader writers for the press take this view and also forecast hearty German coöperation in the State departments in the new policy for requiring European guarantees for an open door in the far East and equality of commercial privileges for all maritime nations. This view is justified by the latest dispatches from Berlin. Everything, indeed, points to full accord by the three powers in all these arrangements.

The German Emperor, warned last year that his attitude toward America had helped to bring the United States and England into close and friendly relations, has made approaches to both, and the three greatest industrial and commercial nations of the world are now brought into a circle of good feeling and common interests without a formal convention or entangling alliance.

KAISER TO MAKE FAMILY VISIT.

Will Be Accompanied by Kaiserin and Royal Children on His Journey to England.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY D. S. MACDOWGAN.]

Berlin, Nov. 8.—It is now learned that the Kaiser intends to take the Kaiserin and some of the children to England. This is interpreted here as giving a distinctly family character to the visit.

Fund for Red Cross Expedition.

To Extend Naval Stations.

The Vorwaerts learns that preparations are being made to establish more naval stations at home and abroad, and that a war harbor is to be built at Dantzic, the authorities having already secured the ground.

Shipbuilding Shares Go Up.

Since the publication of the naval projects quotations on the bourse for shares in shipbuilding companies and rolling mills for the making of ship materials have greatly advanced.

FLEET TO WELCOME EMPEROR.

British Government Orders a Special Service Squadron at Portsmouth Nov. 20.

London, Nov. 8.—The special service squadron has been ordered to assemble at Spithead on Nov. 17, where it will be joined by four battleships. The whole fleet, it is asserted, is intended to welcome Emperor William on his arrival at Portsmouth on Nov. 20.

PAWNERS' BUSINESS IS HEAVY.

Increase a Surprise to the New Corporation and More Clerks Are Needed.

An increase of one-third in the business of the State Pawners' society over the results of the day previous was shown by the stubs last evening. More tables, desks, chairs, and clerks is the demand of those engaged in the office. From the minute the door was open until 6 o'clock in the evening there was no time that some one seeking a loan was not in the room. In the three days that the office has been open more than $25,000 worth of property has been offered as collateral for loans.

Secretary Bigelow of the society said last evening that he did not believe the business of the office would diminish for some weeks.

LINE NOT CLOSE AT LADYSMITH.

Gen. White's Cavalry and Artillery Making Frequent Sorties from Town.

BOERS HAVE MORE GUNS.

MAY ALTER BULLER'S PLANS.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY ARTHUR L. CLARKE.]

London, Nov. 9, 3 a. m.—Nothing has yet been received from General White to confirm the reports of great British successes at Ladysmith or strengthening belief in the stories of appalling Boer losses, which appear to be the result of overripe imagination. The departure of General French from Ladysmith, however, is taken by the War office to mean that General White's position is improved, as it is argued that if General White was in dire straits he would hardly spare so able and daring a soldier as General French.

It is still taken for granted that the Boers continue to blaze away with their big guns, and it is suspected they are mounting more guns on the hillsides around Ladysmith.

Surprised at Boers' Many Guns.

The daily and almost unlimited supply of big cannon the Boers have brought and are bringing into use is one of the biggest of the many surprises they have worked on the British.

Whether the few naval guns from the Powerful can hold their own against the Boers is considered doubtful, and the question of how Ladysmith can be relieved is foremost in the minds of the English press and probably of the War office.

So much pressure is being brought to bear that it is more than likely the government will force General Buller to change his plans of starting the campaign from the west and proceed as soon as possible and try to cut a way through the Boer lines, which now extend from Ladysmith almost to Pietermaritzburg, and save General White's army, which is now almost sure of rout or capture.

No Transports Yet Reported.

So far as is known no transports have yet arrived at the Cape. This may be the result of storms, or it is not unlikely that one of Admiral Harris' cruisers has been sent with orders to intercept them and have them land at Durban instead. Considerable time in reaching General White can be saved if the troops are landed at Durban, for at best much valuable time is going to be lost in getting the First Army Corps in proper shape to enter the field, unless the emergency is extreme.

Much Time Will Be Lost.

The various units must be assembled and in several cases half a battalion sailed in one ship and the other half in another. So it is necessary to unite these. Then the horses must be allowed several days to recover from the sea voyage, and still another delay is possible, since it is stated the slings for the carbineers' horses were forgotten, and should it prove true half the horses are sure to be lost on the voyage.

Boers Have Ample Chances.

Whereas, it was declared officially a few days ago that General Buller would be ready to advance on the 18th, the earliest date for the advance of the force is now given as the 25th or 30th. All of which looks as if the Boers will have plenty of time to take Ladysmith and perhaps Pietermaritzburg, Mafeking, and Kimberley before the first army corps is ready for battle.

Attempt to Confirm Boer Rout.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Estcourt, wiring on Sunday, attempts to bolster up the other yarns of great Boer losses in Friday's battle, but, though the Mail prints the story as sent, it discounts it in its editorial summary of the situation.

The Estcourt special says:

"Reliable information is received from Ladysmith that on Friday a flying column of cavalry and artillery attacked the Boers northward to Colenso. The battery opened with a heavy fire and shelled the enemy's position until they beat a retreat, when the dragoons, lancers, and imperial light horse, with the carabineers, charged them, driving the Boers in a complete rout, literally cutting them to pieces, inflicting heavy losses.

"Major Bamton of the carabineers was killed, but the other losses are not ascertained.

"Ladysmith is still invested by the enemy, but is quite safe. The Boers continue to shell the town at intervals.

"On Friday a shell landed in the dining-room of the Royal Hotel, where twenty persons were sitting, but did not burst and no one was much hurt.

"Everything is quiet here today and many women and children are leaving for the south."

Hope to Open Railway.

The Daily Mail's Pietermaritzburg correspondent cables under Sunday date:

"It is confidently expected that railway communication will be restored with Ladysmith in the course of a few hours. The position here is much clearer. The authorities announce that in the event of the Boers advancing to Pietermaritzburg an alarm signal of three guns will be fired to assemble the volunteers.

"Non-residents in the town are obliged to register."

Free-Staters Moving South.

The Free-Staters continue to mass on the Cape Colony borders and 4,000 are already over the border and more are expected. The railway staffs are withdrawing from all stations between Queenstown and De Aar.

General Buller is taking steps to prevent the advance and has placed General French in charge of the cavalry.

Aliwal, Burgersdorp, Steyaburg, Barkley, Molteno, and several other towns are totally unprotected, and if the Free-Staters move quickly they can take them all without resistance.

More Boers from Pretoria.

To add further obstacles to General Buller's plan of campaign 3,000 Boers have left Pretoria, and it is believed they are coming to join the Free-Staters. They will be a valuable help, as they are accompanied by a large contingent of experienced German artillerists and have quick-firing guns of heavy caliber. It is reported and generally believed the Boers have paved the way to a prospective attack by blowing up the bridge at Stormberg Spruit.

Mafeking Still Cheerful.

Mafeking continues to have an exciting time, but so far is holding its own. Lieutenant Halliwell, writing up to the 25th, says the shelling of the town was continuous from the 16th to the 25th. One trooper and one native were wounded on the 24th. On the 25th, after brisk fighting, the Boers succeeded in destroying the race-course grand stand, used to cover the garrison, and also bombarded the fort and advanced to the east of the town. Colonel Baden-Powell then turned the Maxims loose and drove them back.

Afterwards the Boers devoted their time to artillery fire. Lieutenant Halliwell declares that, though the Boers fired 300 shells, the two wounded were the only casualties. The Boers' aim, he says, is not good, and their ammunition is bad.

More Boers at Kimberley.

Kimberley, up to the first of November, was reported all serene, the Sundays being enlivened with promenade concerts.

Rhodes is putting in his time cheering the besieged, and is planting an avenue of vines a mile long to commemorate the siege. The Boer force outside is growing stronger daily, and a vigorous attack is expected any minute.

New Cape Colony Force.

A mounted volunteer force 1,000 strong, called the South African Light Horse, has been formed at Cape Town and is now en route to the front under the command of British officers. The objective point is unnamed, but probably is the northern boundary of the colony to help prevent the expected Free State advance.

Hospital Ship Concert.

The concert arranged by Mrs. James Brown Potter for the benefit of the American hospital ship fund will be given Nov. 18 at Claridge's between the unusual hours of 4 and 7. The program is quite long. Only Americans will participate.

Edna May sings a patriotic song especially written by Gustav Kerker, and will be assisted by the chorus from "The Belle of New York." De Wolf Hopper will sing a special song. The orchestra from the Comedy Theater will play Sousa's "Stars and Stripes March." Hopper's chorus will sing several choruses. Mrs. Potter will recite a stanza from "God Save the Queen," and the whole anthem will be sung by a chorus of 100. Other numbers will be given by Ellen Beach Yaw, the California girl who makes her operatic debut soon.

Edna May, in addition to singing, will sell silk national flags presented by Countess Hatzfeldt. Tod Sloan will sell pictures of the hospital ship, and Sig. Arditi will play some accompaniments. Tea tables and an American bar also will be features.

Date of Maine's Departure.

It is expected the Maine will leave Tilbury Nov. 25 in charge of Colonel F. Hensman, late of the Second Life Guards. His assistants will be one other officer from the army medical corps, four British sergeants, and a number of American doctors and nurses. Sixty thousands dollars already has been subscribed and over 100 doctors and nurses have volunteered their services.

The news that Lady Randolph Churchill has declared her intention of accompanying the ship did not surprise her intimate friends. She is not going as a nurse, however, but in an executive capacity, representing the Executive committee of which she is chairman.

She also is desirous of being near her son, Winston, who is now at the front, and to whom she is devoted. She will probably do some correspondence for English and American newspapers.

Novel Method of Raising Funds.

The Women's Kennel association is adopting a novel method of raising funds for the families of soldiers killed in the Transvaal. They will enlist 100 dogs, the owners paying a fee of a shilling each. The dogs are to wear cups, into which money may be dropped by the people on the streets.

BOERS CAUGHT BY CROSS-FIRE.

Estcourt, Nov. 5 (Sunday night. Delayed.)—Friday's action was fought a few miles southwest of Ladysmith. The Boers received reinforcements and offered a stout resistance, but were ultimately caught between the cross-fire of two well-posted field batteries, and after sustaining heavy losses were driven back. Our losses were slight. The enemy has placed big guns on Lombard's kop and Bulwana, from which they shell Ladysmith. Our casualties are few.

BOER VERSION OF A BATTLE.

Official Account from Pretoria of the Engagement Fought at Nicholson's Nek.

Cape Town, Nov. 8.—(Sunday. Delayed.)—The following is an official description from Pretoria of the battle of Nicholson's Nek:

"General Joubert was in supreme command. The Britishers advanced in the darkness on the republican force on the right of the hill, formed by the Free-Staters, commanded by General Cronje. A stampede of their mules threw the whole force into disorder. The British batteries were observed in a long line on the plains in the direction of the Boers' center along the Table Hill, from which our artillery opened on the English batteries coming into position from Lombard's Kop with a Creusot. The second shell fell in their midst. It was followed by shot after shot, drawing the British concealed batteries.

"From 6 to 12 the hill was a veritable inferno of hissing, whistling fragments of shells. At first the British failed to reach the hill, while the Boer fire told heavily. Eventually the British reached the Boers and showered shells on our gunners. The Boers could only occasionally fire their guns. While a wounded gunner bandaged himself another fought, oblivious of the fragments of shells at his back. Dr. Hohls was killed while bandaging the wounded.

"In the meanwhile the burghers got their howitzers further forward and into play, and the extreme end of Meyers' battery got in deadly work in——"

ENGLAND HAS BEEF TROUBLE.

Troopship Arawa Delayed Because of 15,000 Pounds of Bad Contract Meat Aboard.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY ARTHUR L. CLARKE.]

London, Nov. 9, 3 a. m.—England seems to have a beef scandal all its own.

When the troopship Arawa, carrying the Second Shropshires, failed to sail on Tuesday at the time set it was given out that the machinery had been found defective. Now it develops, however, it was the beef and mutton intended for the soldiers and not the machinery that was defective.

The discovery was made an hour before sailing time and Colonel Stacpole, who investigated, ordered every can, a total of 15,000 pounds, taken out of the ship and dumped on the quay.

Then a scurry was made throughout Southampton for a fresh supply, which was secured yesterday only after adopting commandeering tactics.

The meat was not from American canners, but English and colonial. The military authorities are highly indignant and threaten to prosecute the contractors.

SAYS NOTHING OF BIG DEFEAT.

Estcourt Correspondent Sends Message Said to Have Been Officially Issued from Ladysmith.

[SPECIAL CABLE BY E. F. KNIGHT, WAR CORRESPONDENT OF THE LONDON MORNING POST.]

Estcourt, Nov. 5.—[Sending Delayed.]—An official message dated Friday just received from Ladysmith states that the artillery fire of the Boers who are investing the town is accurate but ineffective.

The British cavalry is constantly moving in and out of Ladysmith, as the investment is not sufficiently close to keep them shut in the town.

At noon on Friday a body of cavalry and artillery under Colonel Brocklehurst drove the Boer force from all positions. The attack was directed against the reported movement of the enemy towards Pietermaritzburg.

Our artillerymen again proved their superiority over those serving the Boer artillery by silencing three of the enemy's guns.

Our casualties were slight.

Boers Still Bombarding.

The Boers were on Friday still bombarding Ladysmith with their long guns, placed on Pepworth's Hill and Umbulwana. The shells were thrown into the town with little effect.

On Thursday the enemy took advantage of a flag of truce to send into Ladysmith an artillery officer disguised as an ambulance driver, the object evidently being to ascertain the effects of their artillery fire on the town.

Telegraphic communication to Ladysmith is still interrupted. Colonists complain of the delay in the arrival of the necessary reinforcements, and the news of the evacuation of Colenso increases the feeling of uncertainty for the immediate future of this part of Natal.

Good Force at Estcourt.

There is, however, a considerable force concentrated at Estcourt under Brigadier General Wolfe-Murray of the Royal Artillery, and this should be able to check any further advance of the Boer invaders.

Pietermaritzburg has been hastily fortified by Knowle, and a capital volunteer force is under arms.

The enrollment for the Colonists' Imperial Light Infantry is proceeding briskly and all vacancies are eagerly filled.

Spirit of Colonists Commendable.

The spirit displayed throughout the colony is admirable, and in spite of complaints over the non-arrival of additional troops the townsfolk are commendably calm. The greatest eagerness to meet the Boers is displayed by all under arms, regulars and volunteers alike.

The tone adopted by the local press is moderate, level-headed, and free from undue excitement.

At the same time, everybody here is suffering heavily from the stagnation of business on account of the war, and there is considerable anxiety in many quarters as to what the next few days may bring forth.

NEWS AROUND MARITZBURG.

Refugees from Colenso Arriving by Thousands, Public Buildings Being Turned Over to Them.

Durban, Natal, Nov. 5.—(Sunday. Delayed.)—General Schalkberger, with 1,300 men, has arrived at Vryheid on his way to Swaziland. It is believed he is going to Zululand.

The enrollment of the new Imperial Infantry is proceeding apace at Durban and Pietermaritzburg. Murray's Mounted Volunteers have left Pietermaritzburg for the Moohr River.

News from the Lower Tugela reports splendid work upon the part of the Germans below Umvoti. The mounted rifles have no volunteers more assiduous than the Germans.

The preparations for the defense of Pietermaritzburg are in good shape. All the strong positions on the surrounding hills have been fortified.

There has been a great influx of Colenso refugees at Pietermaritzburg, where the public buildings and stores have been given over to them. The population of Durban has been increased 25,000 by the refugees, among whom there is considerable distress.

LEYDS PERSONA NON GRATA.

Said to Have Been Notified That His Visit to Holland Must Terminate.

London, Nov. 8.—A special dispatch from The Hague says Dr. Leyds, the diplomatic agent of the Transvaal, has received a friendly intimation that his visit to Holland during the war must cease.

BOER SIEGE GUNS THE BETTER.

Man Direct from Ladysmith Reports the Situation There Is Grave.

Estcourt, Natal, Nov. 6.—(Monday. Delayed.)—Mr. Burnard, proprietor of the railway hotel at Ladysmith, has arrived here with a companion, having eluded the Boer outposts by night riding along Kaffir paths. He confirms the report that when General White requested that the women and children be permitted to depart General Joubert replied that he would only allow them to get away under the muzzles or fire of his guns. Mr. Burnard views the situation gravely and says that none of the British artillery is apparently able to cope with the Boer siege guns.

ATTACKS MOODY DORMITORY.

Thomas Bennett Smashes In the Front Door of the Woman's Hall at the Institute.

Thomas Bennett, who has a fancy that Evangelist Moody has called him to preach, caused a commotion in the neighborhood of Moody Institute last night about 9 o'clock by smashing in the front door of the women's dormitory, 242 La Salle avenue. Bennett had gone to the church seeking Mr. Moody. His incoherent talk convinced the usher that the man was demented, and he was told to leave.

A few minutes later Bennett smashed in the door of the dormitory in quest of Mr. Moody, and caused a general commotion. John McLain, a student at the Institute, notified the East Chicago Avenue Station and the man was taken into custody.

During the commotion several shots were fired, seemingly near Institute place, but an investigation failed to disclose their source.

TIMES' NEWS AND VIEWS.

MILITARY EXPERT CONSIDERS THE SITUATION MORE HOPEFUL.

against it and the investment is not close enough to prevent our cavalry being constantly out.

We have gained several minor successes and all are cheerful.

Today Brocklehurst, taking the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Hussars, with the volunteer cavalry and one battery of mounted infantry, operated against the reported movement of the enemy on the Pietermaritzburg road. He found the enemy with guns in the laager in force.

At midday Brocklehurst was reinforced by the Fifth Dragoon Guards, Royston's Horse, and two batteries, drove the enemy from all positions, and shelled three guns into silence, and headed 1,000 Boers from the Maritzburg road.

The Imperial Light Horse had pressed too far into the the gully and were extricated by the Fifth Dragoon Guards and all got back safely under a heavy fire.

Lieutenant Pomeroy of the Fifth Dragoon Guards pluckily rescued a dismounted trooper, bringing him out of the fire zone.

The dismounted work by Royston's Horse and the mounted infantry was excellent, the casualties slight, and the moral effect good. The enemy is now shelling the town and their artillery is handled splendidly, but the effect up to the present is not great.

All Quiet on Orange River.

Queer Views Held in Paris.

PARIS (Wednesday)—The economist, Paul Leroy Beaulieu, publishes in the Journal des Debats a long article on the war. With all the French writers who treat of the question, he notes that the English have been mistaken in the resources of the Transvaal armaments, military organization, stategical superiority, and power of resistance.

This thesis has been regularly expounded here ever since the English armies met their first reverse, and all one can say is that not merely England but everybody has been surprised, and the sole charge to be laid at the door of the English is that, although the party chiefly interested, they are no better informed than their neighbors.

But I do not think it possible to follow Beaulieu when he predicts with any sort of certainty that in this immense expanse of south African republics, comprising 272,000 square miles, and yet containing less than 200,000 Boers, England will encounter, after her decided victories, individual resistance full of surprises and heroism which will prolong the war almost indefinitely, and so force her first to the annexation, then the extermination of the race.

Points to Lesson for England.

VIENNA (Wednesday).—This evening's Politische Correspondenz publishes an interesting survey of the situation at the seat of war from the pen of a distinguished military authority, who makes the authoritative assertion that the British statesmen have not sufficiently appreciated the necessity in serious international crises for complete harmony between the foreign policy of the government and its military resources. "England," he says, "has drawn no useful lesson from the memorable example of Prussia, where, under the segis of an energetic and determined sovereign, the incomparable statesmanship of Bismarck joined hands with General von Roon in creating a force which Von Moltke led to victory.

"Experienced military authorities have foretold with rare unanimity that the organization of the British forces would prove inadequate in serious eventualities, and at the present moment Great Britain is pursuing a policy which affects every continent and arouses opposition from all quarters.

"Her circumstances, therefore, call for an exceptionally large force, capable of acting with rapidity and with precision.

"These requirements her present organization cannot be said to fulfill, and this condition of affairs accounts for the situation in south Africa."

Turkey in Need of Funds.

CONSTANTINOPLE (Wednesday)—Special ministerial councils are being held in the Palace to consider the financial situation, which is greatly embarrassed. There appears no prospect of relief except in the conversion of the customs loan. For this, however, the Sultan insists terms are impossible to obtain.

Language Trouble in Austria.

VIENNA (Wednesday)—Within the last few days further disturbances in connection with the language question, which must be described as ominous, have occurred in Bohemia. In several instances they have assumed an anti-Semitic character. Houses of the Jews are being attacked by violent mobs in different localities, who gave the gendarmes and troops plenty to do. It is evident that the agitation which followed the repeal of the language ordinances has by no means subsided and is not only causing riotous proceedings in Bohemia and Moravia but is producing a grave incident.

At the annual muster of the reserves on Monday in the locality of Brodin, Bohemia, the officer on duty at roll-call reminded the reserve recruits that they had to reply in German by the word "hier." A member of the Municipal Council protested that the remarks were offensive to the Czech people, and upon the officer insisting the whole Municipal Council left the room.

Yesterday six reserve recruits answered in Czech and were condemned to seven days' arrest. Disturbances being apprehended a detachment of gendarmes and dragoons were summoned to the town, but on their arrival the demonstration of the mob ceased and it was eventually dispersed by the gendarmes.

Conservative View at Berlin.

BERLIN (Wednesday)—The meeting of the Czar and the Emperor at Potsdam, though comparatively brief, is like its predecessors important, if only because of the exalted position of the two mightiest rulers of the continent and the traditional friendship which unites them and their governments. England cannot, I imagine, regard the visit with less sympathy and confidence than must have been felt by Germany when the Emperor Nicholas visited the Queen, or be felt by Russia when the German Emperor goes to England.

The fact that the British Empire is at present engaged in military operations in the dominions of the Queen in south Africa and that these operations will doubtless be carried at no distant date into the country of the enemy can have no possible bearing upon the imperial meeting.

If peace is dictated by victorious England next month or next year at Pretoria, if the supremacy of the Queen is securely established where it has been called in question, if armed conspiracy against the integrity of the British empire is forever quelled at its source, these events can assuredly have no retrospective bearing upon the friendly imperial meeting today at Potsdam, nor can the meeting have any prospective bearing upon them.

Therefore, I fail to see any justification of the ambitious prescience of the Cologne Gazette which, true to its policy—political innuendo—insinuates that, as a matter of course, the two continental monarchs will find a fair and grateful task in making it their common care that the present war in south Africa shall not exceed local limits and does not lead to the outbreak of a great European conflagration.

IS AGAINST GENERAL ELECTRIC.

Judiciary Committee Adopts Mayor's Order of Forfeiture—General City Hall News.

The Judiciary committee adopted yesterday the recommendation of Mayor Harrison concerning the proposed forfeiture of the franchise of the General Electric road. The committee also considered the Nelson ordinance, which requires that telephone or telegraph poles be erected in the district bounded by Fullerton and Ashland avenues, Lake street, West Fortieth, Twelfth, Ashland, Seventy-fifth, and the lake, and that all poles now standing in this territory shall be taken down within three years and underground wires laid. The ordinance was referred to a subcommittee to make necessary amendments.

An ordinance introduced by Alderman Ailing providing for a fire guard in theaters, consisting of seven firemen, was referred to a special subcommittee, while the ordinance establishing a prohibition district in Hyde Park bounded by Fiftieth street, Fifty-first street, Cottage Grove avenue, and Grand avenue was placed on file.

The committee met again in the evening to consider the ordinance licensing elevator operators. The meeting was held in the Council Chamber, and was attended by a delegation from the Illinois Manufacturers' association and a committee representing the Elevator Conductors and Starters' Benevolent association. President J. J. O'Shaughnessy of the Operators' association spoke for that organization, while Attorney A. S. Trude was the chief speaker against the ordinance.

Out in Lighting Bills.

Mayor Harrison received a report from City Electrician Ellicott showing the decreased cost of arc lights. For the last year the average cost has been $4.48, as compared with $8.30 for 1896.

Grants Elevation Ordinance.

Permission was given by the South Park board yesterday to the Pan-Handle, the Union Stock-Yards and Transit, and the Chicago Terminal Transfer railways to elevate their tracks, which cross Western avenue near Thirty-ninth street. The work must be done by Dec. 31, 1902.

ATTACKS COOK COUNTY METHOD

State Board Appeals to Akin Saying Personalty Returns Do Not Comply with the Law.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Attorney General Akin has been appealed to by the State Board of Equalization to take legal steps to compel the authorities in Cook County to make a return of the personal property assessment in accordance with the law. At the board meeting this morning the special committee recommended this procedure, which was adopted. The Cook County men were criticised severely. The committee reported in part as follows:

"In the report from Cook County there has been no enumeration of personal property, so we are informed, consequently an intelligent equalization of personal property in that county, with like property in other counties is out of the question. From their report we are unable to determine whether horses are assessed at $1 or $100 per head, and so of all other personal property.

Your committee would recommend that the subject be referred to the Attorney General, and if within his province, that he at once take legal steps to compel the proper authorities of Cook County to enumerate all classes of personal property as returned by the Board of Assessors to the County Clerk, as provided by statute.

The committee recommended that the Committee on Lands and Town and City Lots proceed to equalize them without further delay.

[Members of the Board of Review insist that they performed their personalty assessment work in the only way possible under the law, and wash their hands of the protests of the State Board of Equalization. County Clerk Knopf will take no action until the State board and the Attorney General reach definite conclusions. "We listed our increases in a lump, placing the revised figures in the single column which was reserved for the Board of Review's findings," said President Upham. "The totals are all that the State board needs for its work. Some attorneys admit that the contentions of the State board have opened a gateway for litigation."]

HOLDS BOOKS UNDER THE BAN.

Collector of Customs Nixon Seizes Nineteen Volumes as Improper Literature—Judge Kohlsaat to Decide.

Nineteen books are under arrest at the office of the United States Appraiser, General H. H. Thomas. The question of their release from custody constitutes a delicate point in law which will come before Judge Kohlsaat for settlement in the United States District Court today or tomorrow. William Penn Nixon, Collector of Customs, holds that the books are under the ban imposed by section 16 of the act of July 4, 1897, prohibiting the importation of improper literature.

Walter Hill, the bookseller who imported the volumes, asserts that they are not improper. Mr. Nixon has given some of them a hasty and repentant perusal. If Judge Kohlsaat sustains his opinion the books will furnish food for the flames.

"If those books were permitted to pass," said Mr. Nixon, "they would do more harm in ten days than could be overcome by the churches in ten months."

"I don't understand why there should be any discrimination against the books," said Mr. Hill yesterday, "for the same books now held by Collector Nixon have been passed through for other book dealers. All the books were ordered for customers."

Collector Nixon ordered a seizure of the books nearly a month ago, and they are now piled on a table in the office of Appraiser Thomas. In the collection are twelve volumes of "The Memoirs of Jacques Casanova," "A Woman of Intrigue," "The Amours of the Chevalier de Faublas," "Memoirs of a Coxcomb," and "Vocabula Amatoria."

Clifton House Lessee Dispossessed.

Hannah E. Collins, who has conducted the Clifton House since 1893, was dispossessed yesterday by the foreclosure of chattel mortgages, and E. B. McKey took possession as the agent of Joseph L. Hudson, trustee, and Mortgagees George Cumings, Francis H. Carr, and Edgar F. Reeves. Mrs. Collins' liabilities were $9,500 back rent and $5,000 due on furniture.

MAY BE CABINET CRISIS.

FRENCH SENATE TO DECIDE UPON VITAL ISSUES.

Trial of Royalist Conspirators Set for Today—If It Is Decided That Senators Cannot Sit as High Court Ministry Will Be Expected to Resign—Chief Surety Viguie Dismissed in Disgrace — Zola Not Writing for Young Girls.

Paris, Nov. 8.—The great conspiracy trial, which opens in the Senate tomorrow, promises to be an extraordinary scene, and sensational features will not be lacking. The hall has been completely rearranged for the trial, which will begin at 1 o'clock, when President Falliéres will call the roll of members, and those absent will not be allowed to participate in the final vote.

At this moment Senator Fabre, in the name of himself and seventeen fellow-Senators who were absent at the preliminary session in September, will propose the question as to whether they cannot participate in the final vote on the ground that the preliminary meeting was only a matter of form. The Senate will then take up the settlement of the question in secret session. The identity of the accused prisoners will then be established, and then M. Bernard, the Procurator General, will read the act of accusation.

Maitre Joseph Menard will then present the question of what the crimes against the common law, of which Guerin is accused, have to do with the treason plot.

Maitre Evain will endeavor to establish a point of appeal against the decision of the Commission of Instruction.

Vital Issues of Entire Case.

After the solution of these questions, which will all be discussed in secret session, the jurisdiction of the Senate to sit as a court to try the conspirators will be questioned.

This is the hinge upon which the whole possibility of the trial by a high Senate court hangs. Should the Senate declare by vote that it is incompetent to judge the case a Cabinet crisis is the inevitable result.

Only one bench is supplied for the prisoners, and some difficulty is anticipated in seating the numerous witnesses, of whom 500 are cited by the defense. Among these are Police Agents Hennion and Lepine and other police officials.

The government has been particularly discourteous towards the French and foreign press, and as usual the press room of the Senate can only be reached by cards of admission, and the foreign correspondents have one admission card to each three men.

The treatment of the prisoners, when the history of the case is written, will prove a blot on republicanism.

The lawyers calculate it will require fifty-five sessions before the final discussion can be commenced.

Deroulede insists upon remaining in the Sante prison, and a cab driven by police agents will convey him daily to the trial.

Viguie Dismissed in Disgrace.

M. Viguie, the chief of the Surety bureau, has been dismissed in disgrace for not having better established the existence of the plot, and is charged with Henalon's blunders, which have made the police system of Paris a scandal.

Any one can now be arrested on suspicion, without the slightest proofs, as was shown in the case of two civil engineers, who, upon alighting from a train last night, were brusquely arrested and placed in prison at menial labor, despite their protests. This afternoon it was found that they were not the men the police wanted, and they were set free, without even an excuse.

Such proceedings make Paris dangerous to visitors in the city, as the risk of spending nights in prison cells is not an attractive prospect for people contemplating a visit to the exposition. Tales of corruption and bribery are becoming daily scandals, and the Aurore and other papers are waging a fierce campaign against Director Picard.

Zola Does Not Write for Girls.

Zola has been called upon to arbitrate the question of the fitness of his books for young girls to read.

An Austrian library for young girls issued a copy of "Dr. Pascal" to two young girls. Their father found the book, read it, and opposed his daughters reading it. The library intervened, and, to settle the dispute, Zola was consulted. He promptly replied that he did not write for young girls and that his books were not reading for unformed minds. He wound up with a dissertation on the obedience children owed to their parents.

REACH END OF SAMOA MUDDLE.

Great Britain to Withdraw in Favor Germany and Take Other Concessions.

BERLIN PRESS PLEASED.

United States Given All That Is Claimed by the Officials at Washington.

OTHER ISSUES SETTLED.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY D. S. MACGOWAN.]

Berlin, Nov. 8.—The Berlin Press receives the news of the Samoa settlement, by which England and Germany make mutual concessions of territory, which gives Germany all of England's Samoan holdings, with immense satisfaction, and many of the papers treat the matter in a tone of jubilation.

The Post says the words "Samoa is German" will awake a joyful echo in all German hearts.

The Tageblatt pronounces the treaty quite advantageous to Germany and says Samoa is not too dearly bought.

Thinks Price Too High.

The Deutsche Tages Zeitung cannot see that Germany has made such a brilliant bargain, and thinks Germany has yielded too much.

Eugen Richter welcomes this or any other solution of the question, since the islands for years have been the apple of discord between England, Germany, and the United States, and says the settlement will take the wind out of the sails of the anti-English agitation of the pan-Germans.

The Börsen Zeitung says it is an important triumph of German diplomatic skill.

Americans Not Unwelcome.

The Tageblatt prints an evidently inspired article, and says:

"Germany could perhaps have annexed the whole group in 1880, but since then the American interests in the Pacific have grown so great that Washington could not abandon its part of Samoa," and then says that Washington has repeatedly declared itself as satisfied with Tutuila, and especially emphasizes the point that America's remaining there will cause no trade difficulties for Germany. It is understood that the King of Sweden will be selected to arbitrate the damages.

No Outside Issues Involved.

The National Zeitung learns authoritatively that the negotiations have been confined exclusively to the matter as published, and that no special outside agreements have been made and that general political questions played no rôle in the settlement. Germany, it says, has not used the south African situation to bring pressure upon England.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Nov. 8.—Under the agreement the Islands of Upolu, Savaii, and the small adjacent islands fall to Germany as free property, and the Island of Tutuila and the subsidiary islands go to the United States.

Great Britain Withdraws Entirely.

Great Britain renounces any claim to the Samoan Islands, while Germany, in turn, renounces any claim to the Tonga Islands and to Savage Island in favor of Great Britain, and also cedes Choiseul and San Isabel, the two easterly islands of the Solomon group, to Great Britain.

Settles African Disputes Also.

At the same time an arrangement has been arrived at between the two powers by virtue of which the so-called neutral zone in the Hinterland of German Togoland and the British gold coast will be divided in such a manner that the boundary of the German and British territories will be formed by the Paka River up to a point where the latter cuts the ninth degree of latitude, thence north by a line to be fixed by a mixed commission.

To this is appended a reservation that the countries of Mamprusi and Gambaza shall fall to Great Britain and the countries of Yendi and Chakosi to Germany.

Finally, according to the decision of the Colonial Council, Germany has promised to renounce her extraterritorial rights in Zanzibar till the expiration of the commercial treaty in 1902, with the proviso that the renunciation is only effective when the other nations abandon their extraterritorial rights in Zanzibar in favor of Great Britain.

COMMENT OF LONDON PRESS.

General Opinion That England Is Well Rid of Troublesome Affair in Samoa.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY ARTHUR L. CLARKE.]

London, Nov. 9, 3 a. m.—The London press for the most part is well satisfied with the agreement over the German partition of the Samoan Islands and all seem to feel that in so doing England is getting rid of a dangerous and not particularly valuable piece of property. One or two hint that the division is practically a bribe to Germany for its moral support during the Transvaal war. The comments follow:

The Standard—If there is nothing in the aspect of the Samoan settlement to give positive delight to Englishmen, there is little that need cause serious dissatisfaction. Samoa was always a troublesome responsibility to us, and was bound to be so long as the tripartite system remained in force, and was always a latent cause of quarrel either with Germany or the United States. On the whole, the bargain is one on which the War office is to be congratulated.

Daily Telegraph—This country, and, for that matter, the civilized world, has reason to feel deeply grateful to Lord Salisbury for the adroit conciliatory diplomacy which brought to an honorable close what was an irritating if not a grave controversy.

Morning Post—It is a matter of unmixed satisfaction that the tripartite arrangement appears to an end. The terms of settlement appear to constitute a fair bargain.

Daily Chronicle—The public will conclude that the era of compensations over the South African imbroglio has begun. Germany, we suppose, has been squared, and currently the present arrangement has attached to it unrevealed stipulations concerning Delagoa Bay, and will, of course, be received with fury by France and Russia.

The Daily News—Under the cover of the war in south Africa Salisbury has let himself be squeezed out of Samoa.

Daily Mail—The conclusion of the agreement will be hailed with general satisfaction in this country, even though our sacrifices are considerable. England has long hesitated between France and Germany, but she has always respected Germany and admired the German character, whereas she has gradually come to feel a contempt for France, as a country where the most monstrous injustice can be perpetrated with impunity. A nation whose beloved heroes are the forgers of the French general staff, can never be a British ally, and nothing like an entente cordiale can subsist between England and her nearest neighbor.

CLOSES AN OLD DISPUTE.

Samoan Agreement Ends a Controversy Long Productive of International Contention.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—The partition of the Samoan group of islands marks the close of a long-standing source of international controversy, and also brings about new territorial arrangements in the South Pacific. In the early stage of the negotiations it was agreed that the United States should have the Island of Tutuila.

It has been known for some days that in case Great Britain retired from Samoa Germany would give as part compensation the large Solomon Islands of Ysabel and Choiseul. These are near the British possessions in Australasia, being east of New Guinea. They are twice the size of the Samoan group, but the country is mountainous and the people warlike, many being cannibals. The area of all the German Solomon Islands is 9,000 square miles, against 1,700 square miles for the entire Samoan group.

UNIVERSITY BOYS IN A "RUSH."

Upper Classes Initiate the New-Comers with Mock Convocation and Rough and Tumble Struggle.

Although the freshman class at the University of Chicago was initiated last night by the upper classmen with a typical college rush, the affair was carried out entirely in accord with the instructions of President Harper and there were no attempts at hazing. The rush for possession of the senior bench was as fierce as good-natured, struggling college men could make it. Promptly at 11 o'clock, according to their agreement with President Harper, the students left the campus. Slight bruises, black eyes, torn clothing, and crushed hats were the most serious results.

Mock Convocation Is Held.

The real interest of the initiation centered in the program given in Kent Theater, where mock convocation exercises were held. Upper classmen took the parts of the faculty and conducted the ceremonies. Dean Harry Pratt Judson, the only member of the faculty to take part, presented the freshmen to the assemblage, with the understanding that they would be "taken care of."

The theater was decorated in green, and the freshmen, who sat in a body, wore green. Their part of the house was designated by illuminated signs like these:

Child Study Department, Kindergarten.
Alma Mater's Darlings.
Harper's Young People.

Charles Sumner Hayes took the part of President Harper. After Professor Judson's address of welcome, Maud Franklin Sperry, "Dean of Women," told of the duties of freshmen. Charles Julian Webb delivered the convocation address.

Green Diplomas Are Awarded.

Honors were awarded to many of the freshmen. Ahlswede, the football player, was the recipient of a trivial plaything. The freshman orator, Claude Carlyle Clay Nuckols, was dressed in a gown of green. He was seated in an infant's high-chair on the stage until his part in the program was announced. Millard Riley Myers, "Dean of Freshmen," awarded green diplomas.

CLAIMS CHICAGOAN'S ESTATE.

Woman Who Says She Is Widow of A. C. Andrews Seeks to Prove Her Right to Inheritance.

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 8.—A mystery regarding the alleged death of Albert Charles Andrews, formerly of 3851 Aldine place, Chicago, has come to light here through a quiet investigation being made as to the authenticity of a deposition presented by the supposed widow in claiming a share of a large estate left to Andrews in England.

The deposition, which is made by R. F. McPheeters of Keota, Ia., asserts that he and Andrews were crossing the Missouri River from Sioux City to Covington on Dec. 18, 1897, and that the ice broke and both fell in, Andrews being drowned. Detectives have found that the ice on the river was extremely thick at that time, and no record is found of the drowning of a man on that day.

The woman who makes the claim as widow is said to be the daughter of McPheeters' former wife. She is now living in England and has remarried.

MAJOR M'GRATH IS DEAD.

HERO OF CALAMBA SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES AT MANILA.

Wisconsin Man Who Was Captain in the Fourth Cavalry Dies of Wounds Received at the Battle of Novaleta—Burial Will Be at Eau Claire—Dean C. Worcester's Tribute to the Bravery of the Soldier—His Military Record.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—A cable message from General Otis this afternoon says that Major Hugh J. McGrath (Captain, Fourth Cavalry) died at Manila yesterday from wounds received at the battle of Novaleta a month ago. Major McGrath was appointed to the military academy from Wisconsin.

News Reaches Eau Claire.

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—News of the death of Captain Hugh Jocelyn McGrath was received here this morning, together with the statement that the body will be shipped on the transport Zealandia on Nov. 10. Burial will be in Eau Claire.

Captain McGrath, who had a record for bravery, was wounded during a movement to clear the country between Bacoor and Imus. A brass cannon loaded with scrap iron was discharged by the insurgents and an iron nut struck Captain McGrath in the thigh. Death is supposed to have been due to complications. He was taken after the battle to a hospital at Manila and cabled to his wife: "Wounded left thigh. Don't worry."

Captain McGrath was born on April 5, 1856, in Fond du Lac, Wis., and came with his parents to Eau Claire in 1859. The young man was educated in the public schools of Eau Claire and the University of Wisconsin. In 1876 he was admitted to West Point Academy and was graduated in 1880. He joined his regiment, the Fourth Cavalry, the following September at Fort Reno and spent two years at the infantry and cavalry school at Fort Leavenworth. He was instructor in military science at Wisconsin University for three years.

Served in Indian Wars.

Captain McGrath served in New Mexico and Arizona against Geronimo and the other Apache chiefs, and later was stationed at Walla Walla. He was at Vancouver Barrack when the Spanish war opened. He asked for active duty and was made Major in the Volunteer Engineers and sent to Jacksonville, where he served in the Seventh Corps, later going to Havana, where he remained till the corps was disbanded.

Captain McGrath left San Francisco for Manila on May 25 to rejoin the Fourth Cavalry and arrived there about June 30.

Captain McGrath was married at Savannah, Ga., on Nov. 11 of last year to Miss Mary Carson of Eau Claire. A son has been born to them.

Professor Dean C. Worcester, member of the Philippine commission, in an interview on Oct. 20 last, declared that Major (then Captain) McGrath was one of the greatest heroes in the Philippines.

"It was at Calamba," said Professor Worcester, "an important town in Laguna de Bay, that was taken by Lawton. While the troops were in front of this town and in the face of a hot and furious fire from the Filipinos it was found necessary to cross a stream that was swelled with recent rains until it was most difficult to get over. There were neither boats nor rafts, but on the opposite side and directly under the rifles of the Filipinos were two canoes.

"At that juncture the hero revealed himself in the person of Captain McGrath of the Fourth Cavalry. He did not wait for orders, nor did he call for volunteers. He stripped and plunged into the whirling stream and came back in half an hour later with two canoes. There were some bullet holes in the canoes by the time he got across with them, but they were made to serve the purpose of transporting a storming party across the stream, and the trench was taken.

"It was the most daring thing I ever witnessed, and I believe the most daring action that has come to my notice."

MACARTHUR MEN IN MABALACAT

American Troops Now in a Good Position in Front of Angeles—Suffer No Loss.

Manila, Nov. 8, 5:55 p. m.—General MacArthur has occupied Mabalacat. His entire line, including the Twelfth, Seventeenth, and Nineteenth Infantry and part of the Fourth Cavalry, is extended three miles in front of Angeles, in a good tactical position.

Major Bell took Mabalacat. Being ordered to reconnoiter yesterday until he located the enemy, he pushed into the town, driving out two companies of insurgents and killing several Filipino officers.

The Americans suffered no loss.

WRITES OF THE PHILIPPINES.

Thinks Americans Will Come to Their Senses and That Their Final Action Will Be Just.

New York, Nov. 8.—Senator George F. Hoar of Massachusetts has contributed an article on "Our Duty to the Philippines" to the Independent, which will appear tomorrow. He begins with a review of the circumstances leading up to the war with Spain, of which he says:

I think it might have been averted and that Cuba could have been liberated by peaceable means if the counsel of Grant and Fish had been followed, and if our public men in the Senate had remembered that they were a part of the diplomatic power of this country and it was unbecoming in them to indulge in bitter and stinging invectives against Spain, whether such invectives were just or unjust.

Continuing, the Senator says:

Down to Jan. 1, 1899, the American people and the Republican party were committed to the doctrine that just governments rest upon the consent of the governed, and that every people has the right to dissolve at will the political connection that binds it to another people. In dealing with Cuba we acted upon those principles, but the treaty of peace disclosed a different purpose as to the Philippines, the inhabitants of which were much nearer independence when the treaty of peace was signed than ever had been the people of Cuba.

Looking back can any sane man doubt the wisdom of those who desired to amend the treaty and to deal with the Philippine Islands as we did with Cuba; to compel Spain to renounce her sovereignty; to keep off all foreign nations and to aid the islanders in establishing their own government according to their own desire?

As to our future attitude toward the Filipinos the time has come to make up your minds. If you are to declare that you do not mean to subjugate them or to enslave them, that you will act toward them on the principles and in the spirit of your own declaration of independence, the war can be ended in an hour.

In conclusion, the Senator says:

The deliberate action of the American people will be wise and just. The great passions by which they are stirred and by which their judgment is now clouded are generous, noble, and humane. Reason will resume its rightful sway and the great republic will remain a republic still.

MAJOR H. J. M'GRATH, "THE CALAMBA SWIMMER."

He died yesterday of wounds received in action a month ago. Professor Worcester, who witnessed Major McGrath's feat at Calamba, declared him to be the hero of Philippine war.

INSURANCE MEN ARE ENJOINED.

Superintendent Van Cleave Says Three Chicago Companies Are Violating the Law.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—In accordance with an order issued by Judge Thompson in the Circuit Court here today the Northwestern Insurance company, the Columbian Insurance company, and the Mercantile Insurance company, all of Chicago, are enjoined from transacting further business in the State of Illinois until such a time as the equities in the case are decided. The injunction was granted on the application of State Senator Orville F. Berry, representing State Insurance Superintendent J. R. B. Van Cleave.

It is charged the insurance companies have violated the State insurance laws. It is charged the Columbian company, for twenty-five years previous to 1895, was not in existence, having been granted a charter in 1855 and afterwards going out of business. In 1895 it is charged the company was again reorganized, but began business without a new charter and has been doing business since, and has made no reports to the Superintendent of Insurance. The officers of the company are: President, J. H. Reid; Secretary, Charles J. Russell of Chicago.

In the case against the Northwestern Insurance company similar charges are made of the alleged violation of law. It is asserted that in 1898, the name of this company was changed to the Mercantile Insurance company and that the latter company has no charter from the Insurance department to do business in the State. It is also stated that the company has no assets and that the capital stock has not been subscribed. The officers of both companies are: President, Smith D. Hinman; Secretary, Henry S. Lee.

CLASH IN THIRTEENTH WARD.

Governor Tanner's Plans Are Fought by His Opponents at the Club Meeting.

Governor Tanner's attempt to get a fighting organization in the Thirteenth Ward was strongly resisted last night by the anti-Tanner Republicans at Monitor Hall, 625 Grand avenue. The meeting, ostensibly to arouse sentiment against Senator Campbell, the Central committeeman, showed that many Republicans of the ward were not in sympathy with the Governor's scheme. The meeting was conducted, according to anti-Tanner Republicans, by park employés and a few men who were referred to by some of the speakers as "sore heads," disappointed office seekers, job hunters, and disgruntled politicians. J. W. La Vine presided and M. S. Kisselberg was secretary. The call stated that business pertaining to the mismanagement of the war organization would be discussed. Opposition to two amendments to the constitution, one of which proposed that regular meetings be held only once a year instead of nine times, and the other that three members be added to the Nominating committee were the topics to be discussed. But it soon developed that Senator Campbell's leadership was the issue. He is out boldly against the Governor's renomination.

FAILS TO STOP WEDDING.

MRS. W. I. ALLEN OF CHICAGO GOES WEST ON FUTILE QUEST.

Divorced Husband Hastens His Marriage to a Topeka Girl and Former Wife and Daughter Arrive Too Late—Woman Charges Coercion in Divorce Proceedings and the Railroad Man Makes Counter Charges—Will Fight It Out in the Courts.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—W. I. Allen of Chicago, until recently Assistant General Manager of the Rock Island railroad, and Miss Josephine Deitrich, a Topeka girl, were married a few minutes before midnight last night at the home of the sister of the bride at 625 Harrison street. A few minutes later Mr. Allen's first wife, from whom he was divorced last May, and their daughter, Byrd, stepped off a Santa Fé train. They had come from Chicago to prevent the marriage.

The train bringing Mrs. Allen and her daughter to Topeka was late, arriving at almost the exact minute that the ceremony which they were determined to prevent was performed. The marriage was hastened by the knowledge that Mrs. Allen and her daughter were coming.

Spoils Church Ceremony.

All the arrangements had been completed to have the ceremony performed at Grace Cathedral at noon today. The relatives had arrived, and if the program had been carried out Dean Sykes of the Episcopal church would have officiated.

At 11 o'clock last night Judge Dolman, who had retired, was told by messenger that he was wanted at the Lacey home at once. There he found Mr. Allen and Miss Deitrich with a few relatives, and he was requested at once to perform the ceremony which would make them husband and wife. At 11:45 the ceremony was performed.

When Mrs. Allen and her daughter reached Topeka they had no thought that they were too late to prevent the marriage. They were driven at once to the home of A. H. Case on West Tenth avenue, where their appearance was explained to Mr. and Mrs. Case, who are old friends of Mrs. Allen.

Mr. Case, who is a lawyer, prepared a notice to be served upon Mr. Allen, his bride, the clergyman, and other interested parties that Mrs. Allen had commenced action in the Circuit Court of Chicago to annul the decree of divorce. This notice was not served on Mr. Allen till 8 o'clock this morning.

Woman Charges Coercion.

When seen by a reporter the Chicago Mrs. Allen said:

"The fact that Mr. Allen is married will make no difference so far as the legal proceedings are concerned. I was coerced into signing the petition, and did not know what I was doing when I appeared in court when the divorce was granted. I was then suffering from the effects of a drug that was given to quiet my nerves.

"For three years Mr. Allen urged me to consent to a divorce, and I refused. I did not want a divorce. I came back from Colorado last November and was taken sick a short time afterwards and was compelled to submit to a serious surgical operation. I was continually urged to agree to a divorce and I was given to understand that unless I did so my daughters would be left unprovided for, as Mr. Allen had a position offered him in Cuba.

"I signed the petition on May 24, and was given to understand that it was simply a preliminary to carry through a business deal. Five days after they came for me to go to the courtroom. I was then in bed and weak. Some kind of a drug was given to me for my nerves and I was placed in the stand, they say. Later I seemed to wake out of a dream and was told that a divorce had been granted."

Allen's Side of the Case.

Mr. Allen admitted that he was supplied with information that his former wife was on her way to Topeka.

"There is nothing in the Chicago suit," he said. "We agreed to separate, and I allowed her to sue for divorce on the ground of abandonment. My proposition of alimony, $1,000 per year and $100 per month, was satisfactory to her. When she heard I was going to get married she began to annoy me, and I raised the amount of alimony and she promised to let me alone. Her present disturbance was planned to force another raise, but there will be no further raise. I am going to trouble I am ready to fight it out. I shall return to Chicago in a few days."

Mrs. Allen denies that she ever attempted Mr. Allen's life and laughs at his other statements. She expects to return to Chicago this week.

The Allens lived in Topeka five years prior to 1890, when Mr. Allen was transferred to Chicago. They were popular here, and nobody knew of their domestic difficulties till after they had resided in Chicago for awhile.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Allen were divorced in May last, and about two months ago Mr. Allen's connection with the Rock Island road as Assistant General Manager came to an end. Since then he has resided at the Edinburg Hotel, 2124 Michigan avenue, where Mrs. Allen and her daughter Byrd also live.

Mrs. Allen learned on Tuesday morning that her husband was about to be married and she and Miss Allen at once started for Topeka. Edgar Johnson of Wheatenness, Ind., another daughter, who was visiting them, remained at the Edinburg.

"All I know is what came in a telegram saying that papa and Miss Dietrich had been married at midnight," said Mrs. Johnson. "I am sure mamma made no threats, as was reported. We have all known for some time that papa was paying his addresses to Miss Dietrich. We objected to her, and it was with the intention of dissuading my father that mamma went to Topeka."

Mr. Allen's affairs have been given considerable publicity. According to the decree of divorce, Mr. Allen was to pay his wife $500 in cash and $100 a month for the remainder of her life. It was said at the Edinburg last night that, apparently, he had been providing liberally for the needs of his wife and daughter since the decree was granted.

GOLD IN CHURCH BASEMENT.

Money and Crucifix, Buried Since the Fire, Discovered at the Immaculate Conception.

Money, a crucifix, and articles from the altar of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, North Park avenue and Schiller street, were discovered yesterday by workmen digging up the floor of the basement. Father P. T. Butler, who has been the pastor since 1869, says they are relics of the Chicago fire.

A careful search in the basement where the workmen were digging brought to light many more gold and silver coins. A good sum was saved for the church, but many dollars were carried away by the children who crowded in and seized everything that resembled coins. Some of them tried to polish the pebbles into nuggets of gold.

Father Butler is now 70 years old, but continues to take an active part in the work of the parish. He is assisted by the Rev. J. C. Crowe.

REFUSES TO RELEASE BECKER.

Judge Dunne Holds the Murderer's Conviction to Be Regular—Hanging Set for Tomorrow Noon.

August A. Becker, condemned to be executed tomorrow for the murder of Rachel Becker, was taken before Judge Dunne yesterday on a petition for release on the ground that the indictment upon which he was tried was irregularly drawn. Petition was denied. Becker has embraced the Catholic religion. The execution is set for noon.

ceeded to load it with the old pipe. He was not a great corporation, and in his business he did his own work. When engaged in loading his property he was stopped by representatives of the Steamfitters' union, who declared that he must employ only members of the union to handle the old steam pipe. He was obliged to hire them at the regular rate of $4.50 a day. At another time a representative of the plumbers' organization called out his men on the Ward Building because a certain pipe was not placed in the position which he considered proper. We had followed our judgment in our plans and had placed the pipe accordingly. The walking delegate was not consulted, and a strike was the result."

Superintendent Shriver for the George A. Fuller company, which has the contract for the Ward Building, said: "We have nothing but strike after strike here. A short time ago a brick gauger left our employ. According to the rule of the union a man who is dismissed must receive his pay up to date on the spot, but where he quits the job he must wait until the regular payday. This man said he understood the rule, but that it made no difference. He asserted that he would 'strike' the job if not paid the $4 due him. He kept his word, and the men were out some time. There are dozens of similar instances right here on this building. The situation looks black for contractors and for Chicago building progress unless some movement sets in to check the inordinate demands of the unions."

Example of Violent Tactics.

Frederick Perkins, architect, said: "An example of the violent tactics of organized labor was the recent exhibition at the new house of John G. Shedd in Drexel boulevard, for which I drew the plans. Bagley & Co. had the contract for some beautiful marbles and mosaic work imported from France. Two floors of mosaic already had been laid and the third was about to be put down when union labor appeared on the scene. It seems that the men who did the work were 'non-union,' and one morning some union men broke into the premises and tore up the mosaic floors with pickaxes. They were caught red-handed and turned over to the court, receiving a light fine. Now a strike on the building has been declared. The senseless methods of union labor are working ruin in the city when the height of prosperity should be aiding in our building expansion. I think the remedy lies in a refusal of the contractors to employ union laborers."

The arbitrary reductions of the performance which may be considered a day's work and the demands for increased pay for the same are the principal objects of the contractors' combative efforts. To the fact that laborers are not allowed to do a full day's work is attributed most of the delay in finishing buildings. An ordinary lather can put on sixty bundles of lath in a day, while the rule of the union confines him to twenty-five. Plastering can be done no faster than the lathing.

Limiting "Day's Work."

"Some time ago," said Architect Jenney, "I was in a hurry to have some marble stairs in the Grand Pacific Hotel finished. The work would require a day and a half. The walking delegate of the union came to me and said that the work would have to be spread out over three days, with proportionate increase of cost in wages. The rules of the Marble union were imperative, he said. The result of the matter was that we hired one gang of men to do one day's work, then discharged the men, and hired another gang the next day, completing the work in a day and a half. A friend of mine had some plumbing done, and when he came home at 3 o'clock in the afternoon he found his plumber at ease in the bathroom, perusing the daily paper.

"'What does this mean?' he began. 'Don't you intend to finish the job?'

"'O, yes,' he replied, 'but I have done my day's work and if I should do any more I would be fined $25 by the union.' That is a fair sample of the kind of thing which is dwarfing our capacities for building a greater city."

"We used to pay our journeymen plumbers $1.25 a day," said James E. Baggot, President of the E. Baggot company, "but now we pay them $4 a day and they are allowed to do but one-fourth of their former amount of work in one day. The union has laid down the precise amount of effort which may be expended and branded 'one day.' There is a walking delegate in each ward, whose duty it is to check up the work on each job each day, and if he finds any violation of the rule—any attempted working overtime—the culprit is liable to a fine. A union of contractors would do a great deal toward solving the problem, but the trouble is that such a union would not last long. There is not so much so-called honor among contractors as there is among the laborers and the agreements of standing by each other would soon fall victims to business rivalry."

Another case of the arbitrary ruling of the unions in petty instances was the work on a small flat building. The arch of stone in the façade of the structure had been completed with the exception of the keystone. The laborers were lifting the stone preparatory to hoisting it into place when a walking delegate dramatically appeared and staid all proceedings. He declared that a member of the Hoisting Engineers' union must be secured to put the little stone in place. Then ensued a strike on the building of two hours' duration while the city was scoured for an unemployed hoisting engineer who belonged to the union. At last the expert arrived and the arch was completed.

Architect Jenney's Statement.

Architect Jenney, who is one of the leaders in the opposition to the organized labor methods, made the following statement on the situation:

"The new city schoolhouses that are so much needed are held up by the worst of all evils, the sympathetic strike, without any sense, rhyme, or reason, simply because the Board of Education is following the instructions of the Supreme Court of Illinois, which decided it was contrary to the constitution of the United States of America to limit the work on the school buildings to union men, as they had heretofore done.

"Capitalists are no longer willing to subject themselves to the trouble, the vexatious annoyance and delays, and unnecessary expense that are sure to occur if they indulge in any building operations. Last winter and spring I was endeavoring to fit up a building for one of our large capitalists to accommodate a tenant to whom he had agreed to give possession for the proposed improvements on May 1. That there might be no delay the work was commenced in midwinter, giving the contractors about double the time they thought necessary, but unfortunately as soon as the putting up of the new work at the building commenced the ornamental iron setters went out on strike. As none of the other contractors could go on until this iron was set, and but little remained, the contractor took men from his shop and completed the work.

"The next day a sympathetic strike was called on all the trades in the building. The owner was indignant and demanded what their grievances might be. The men who were standing about idle replied that they had no grievance; that they wanted to go on with the work, but they were ordered off. 'But are you not free men?' asked the owner. 'Yes,' said the men, 'but we have to do as the walking delegate tells us.'

"This same owner was contemplating a new fireproof building, drawings for which were being prepared. These he ordered stopped, declaring that under present conditions he would do no more building, and this same thing has occurred to others.

"It is not a question of wages. I am of opinion that the architects, contractors, and owners are anxious to pay the men all that the business can reasonably afford, to treat them kindly, and to give them all the rights to which they are entitled under our laws, but in return they ask of them that they shall respect the rights of others."

Invites Piano Manufacturers.

Charles Doid, business agent of the Piano and Organ Workers' union, sent out during the day a formal invitation to the piano and organ manufacturers of the city to attend the mass-meeting under the auspices of the union at Central Music Hall on Sunday, Nov. 12, at 2:30 p. m. He asks them to come and prove their statements or "by your absence admit the falsity of the same."

PLAN ANTI-TANNER MACHINE

Governor's Cook County Foes to Wage a Vigorous Campaign in the State.

When the anti-Tanner Republicans announce their policy it not only will declare against the Governor's renomination but also against giving him any chance to name candidates. Henry L. Hertz, James Pease, and their ward leaders declare that they are determined to eliminate Tannerism from Illinois politics. Their campaign, it is said, will not be confined to Cook County, but will take in the whole State. This means the organization of a new State machine to retire every Tanner man. It is claimed that Speaker L. Y. Sherman, Senator O. T. Berry, Senator Aspinwall, probably Congressman Rodenberg, and many others will join with Senators Busse and Campbell in the anti-Tanner movement. Edwin Mitchell of Carbondale is to command the forces in Egypt. There is a report current that they may decide to support Congressman Reeves. All talk of a Chicago candidate has ceased.

It is said that the friends of the three newly appointed Lincoln Park Commissioners have promised the Governor some delegates from the North Side. They look to Charles T. Yerkes and the traction interests for assistance.

At Springfield last night the Governor declared he did not believe the published interviews with Dr. Woodworth.

"The doctor made a splendid member of the Park board," the Governor said. "I was sorry when his resignation came. I never had requested it, nor intimated to him or any one else that I desired it. I never asked him what his position was upon future politics. I never asked him to be for me. I never discussed with him the question of again being a candidate for Governor. I asked the doctor at the conclusion of our conversation on Nov. 4 to remain President of the board. He answered that he preferred for me to get somebody else.

"I appointed Mr. Wickersham because of his ability and standing as a citizen, and because of his stalwart Republicanism. He stands for robust Republican politics, and believes, as I do, that mugwumps and Carter Harrison Republicans, who parade in Republican uniform for respectability and vote the Democratic ticket for office and favors, should have no voice in Republican clubs, counsels, primaries, or conventions. They assist to shape the policy of the party and nominate its candidates, then vote against them, generally because they fail to get their half breeds nominated, and at other times because the newspapers tell them to do so. Such so-called Republicans should no longer be tolerated in Republican clubs, primaries, or conventions. Let them go squarely over to the enemy, for whom they vote and where they belong, and stop muddying the water where decent people bathe and swim."

FIND NEW FLAG LAW SCHEME.

Police Accuse J. S. Berger of Swindling Men Arrested on Charges of Extortion.

John S. Berger, a smooth-faced young man, was arrested in State street yesterday afternoon by Detectives McDonald and Kiley and locked up at the Maxwell Street Station on charges of raising $65 by pretending that he could obtain the release of Louis Lebrecht and Hubert Olson, who had been arrested on charges of swindling small retail dealers by threatening to arrest them for alleged violations of the flag law. Berger was formerly employed as a photographer for the city. It is said he got money from Olson's parents and then disappeared. Captan Wheeler says Berger has confessed.

VICE PRESIDENT IS STRONGER.

Dr. Newton Pleased with the Improvement, but Says Patient May Die at Any Moment.

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 8.—The Vice President was so well today that he was permitted to read a telegram of inquiry from Governor Theodore Roosevelt of New York. The other telegrams received were from ex-Secretary Alger, Senator Sewell, Senator Frye, and Postmaster General Smith. Dr. Newton said tonight he was greatly pleased at the improvement of Mr. Hobart and wished the improvement could be permanent. He says, however, that the Vice President may die at any moment. No further bulletins will be issued until a change occurs.

WHAT ELECTIONS MEAN.

INDORSEMENT FOR EXPANSION AND SAME LEADERS IN 1900.

Officials and Others at the Capital Discuss the Result of the Balloting and Declare That McKinley and Bryan Will Again Be Nominated—McLean's Defeat Puts Maryland in Prominence and Democrats May Pick a Candidate There.

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.

Leading representatives of the administration are undoubtedly pleased with the results of yesterday's election. Their interest centered in Ohio and Nebraska. The large majority in the President's State, where expansion was a direct issue is accepted as a popular indorsement of the policy of the administration and as assuring the renomination of President McKinley.

Administrationists Pleased by Election Result.

According to the shrewdest judges among the high officials the result in Iowa and South Dakota shows the trend of Republican sentiment west of the Mississippi, while the fusion victory in Nebraska among the same class of people to a large extent is credited in equal proportions to State pride and the personal influence of Bryan. It is, therefore, assumed that he is inevitably the Democratic candidate for 1900.

The result in Maryland gives no one any concern for the obvious reason that the fight there was almost entirely local, and the returns show that the faction squabbles between Wellington, Lowndes, and Malster are almost wholly responsible for the Republican defeat.

There is no concealment of the fact that Republican leaders here want Bryan renominated, and are willing to sacrifice Nebraska for the present on the theory that he is the easiest man to beat, as he will always stand for the silver issue, no matter how he attempts to avoid it, and on this issue the Republicans are confident they can win.

Dawes Comments on the Election.

"The general result of the elections," said Controller Dawes, "has been to demonstrate the strength of the President's policy with the people. The local results in Nebraska likewise demonstrated that Bryan controls the following in his own party lines necessary to his renomination by the Democratic party. The political inference to be drawn from these elections seems to be that in 1900 we may expect the same candidates and a repetition of the Republican victory of 1896."

Has Effect of Shaping the Ticket.

Both Democratic and Republican political prophets here are inclined to the belief that yesterday's election went a long way towards settling the question of second place on the Democratic ticket. Had McLean won he would have had a strong claim for the Vice Presidential nomination, and might have given Bryan a hard run for first place.

The result in Ohio seems to show that even with the assistance of the Jones movement McLean has been unable to make any headway whatever in the State as against President McKinley, and hence it is assumed this removes him from the field as an available candidate.

Though the result in Maryland was largely local, it gives the Democrats control of the machinery, and hence it is said the State can claim second place, and it is assumed the candidate will be either ex-Senator Gorman or Rear Admiral Schley, who is credited with an unusual amount of political aspiration, born largely if not entirely of his sturdy treatment at the hands of the Crowninshield cabal in the Navy department.

Cullom Well Satisfied with Election.

"I am well pleased with Nash's victory in Ohio," said Senator Cullom. "The policy of the administration was indorsed as a result of the election in the President's State, after the greatest fight ever made there. The victory of the fusion ticket in Nebraska will result in Bryan's being the Democratic nominee in 1900, which is desired by most Republicans, as they think there will be no trouble in defeating him. I hope Kentucky was carried by the Republicans. Maryland is not much loss to the party, as it is likely to be found in the Republican column next year. On the whole, I am well satisfied with the result of the elections."

Talking of the result in Maryland, Attorney General Griggs said: "Judging from the results in the neighboring State, the proper place for the Democratic party to look for a candidate for the Presidency in 1900 is in Maryland, as that is the only State where there has been a decided reaction."

McKinley Vindicated, Says Vanderlip.

"President McKinley's policy has been vindicated by the result in Ohio," said Assistant Secretary Vanderlip. "Considering the conditions it was a remarkable victory. The triumph of the fusionists in Nebraska means that Bryan will be a candidate next year. This is what every Republican wants, as he will be the easiest man to defeat. In Iowa the result is significant, as the platform declared emphatically for sound money and expansion. The result in this State is particularly gratifying to the party, and points clearly to Republican success next year."

Same Ticket, Says Commissioner Hermann.

Commissioner Hermann of the General Land office, who represents to a peculiar degree the Republicanism of the Pacific coast, in looking over the whole field, said: "In Ohio, more than anywhere else, was raised the issue upon the war policy of the administration. The result, therefore, of the election of Nash by a sweeping majority is the strong party indorsement of President McKinley, and his renomination is inevitable. The result in Nebraska is equally prophetic of the renomination of Mr. Bryan, and we shall undoubtedly have the old ticket to fight over next year, so far as the first place is concerned."

Helen Long to Go in Search of Health.

Miss Helen Long, daughter of the Secretary of the Navy, has been ordered to Colorado Springs for her health. She is said to be afflicted with consumption, induced by exertion in the strict attention to her social duties. She was of a naturally delicate physique, and the duties which devolved upon her through the ill-health of her mother, as representative of the Cabinet circle, proved too arduous. The gravest fears are felt her life will be of short duration.

Country Shows Its Favor for Expansion.

"There is no question about the country being in favor of expansion, and that is the meaning of the elections," said Representative Morris of Minnesota. "Of course more interest was felt in Ohio than in any other State, and the result is not altogether a surprise to me. But considering the fight made by the Democrats the victory of Nash is all the more remarkable. I am convinced the President is 40,000 votes stronger than Nash. I mean to say, the vote of Jones will be for McKinley next year. The result in Ohio means the renomination of President McKinley by acclamation. His election will surely follow. In Nebraska the result is a triumph of Colonel Bryan's personality and not a condemnation of expansion."

Evans Says Kentucky Is Republican.

Speaking from the standpoint of a Southern Republican, Pension Commissioner Evans said: "Kentucky is undoubtedly Republican at the present time, regardless of the Goebel law and the fight on the administration. It is a particularly gratifying fact that an election involving so many disputes and arousing bitter partisanship has passed off without serious disturbances. This indicates that the people are gradually being educated into a better regard for election machinery, and accept the results, whatever they may be, more calmly than used to be the case. The result in Nebraska, to my mind, makes almost certain the renomination of Bryan next summer."

Señora Quesada, wife of the Cuban Commissioner, has rejoined her husband here. Señor Quesada has left for Cincinnati, where he will deliver an address tomorrow night on the Cuban situation.

Difficulties of Railroading in Luzon.

Running railroads in the Island of Luzon is a lively job, owing to the constant interference of the insurgents, coupled with the original wretched condition of the road and rolling stock. An officer of the signal corps, writing to Senator Cullom, describes the situation as follows: "Trains are liable to turn up in the most unexpected places, and as for orders, when you have to find out where they came from, how they got there, and where they started for, engineers cannot be persuaded to run after dark, unless they have about a regiment of infantry with them, and in this they are sensible, as the Gugus have all their fun at night and waste most of their ammunition after dark.

"The train dispatcher is supposed to be 'bell boy' for the local telephone line. He has to handle about 150 messages per diem via the dash and dot system, and he is his own delivery boy. Every officer who comes in has his own particular grievance which he wishes you to adjust, and they bring in messages it would take a board of inquiry two whole months to decipher, and then they would have to refer them to the man who wrote them.

"Officers will send in a message with no address except a man's name, often with no signatures attached. If you don't happen to know the man personally to whom it is directed and fail to send it, in about two days here comes an insignificant Second Lieutenant, who doesn't know when his face is clean and who prances up and down the office threatening to have the whole signal corps arrested and court-martialed.

"He never has the manhood to offer us a cigar when he finds us smiling at him and trying our best to do as he desires and to show him wherein he has erred."

Malaria Robs Society of Russian Girl.

On account of the poor health of Mlle. Cassini, niece of the Russian Ambassador, she will not take active part socially this season as last. She finds this climate trying, and while absent this summer was under the care of one of the most eminent physicians in Paris. The malaria of this section seems to have claimed her as one of its victims. She is not yet 18, and can well afford to forego the pleasures of one social season.

Preliminary experiments made by government officers at Sandy Hook seem to indicate the failure of all expectations regarding the new explosive, theorite, for which Inventor Tuttle of Seattle has claimed so much.

Factories to Come from Germany.

German papers discuss and copiously comment on the late news that the firm of Bruhms Soeline of Gera, one of the largest textile manufacturing concerns in Germany, is about to establish a factory and branch house in the United States. It is confidently expected that this enterprise will be as successful as those of the firms which recently established branches in Passaic, N. J. These German ventures in the United States have been profitable. A report is now current that manufacturers of Gera have formed a syndicate aiming at the erection of new worsted textile factories in the United States.

News also comes from Rhenish Prussia that manufacturers of silk and woolen textiles there purpose to erect branch factories in the United States. The straits in which this German industry has been placed by the partial shutting off of the important American market, owing to the working of the tariff, has necessitated this new departure.

This truth is better known and more keenly felt by German manufacturing circles and their organs of the press than by American people.

Good Results of New Plague Serum.

An anti-toxin, or serum, first prepared by Professor Haffkine as a plague inoculation, called Haffkine's prophylactic, is now being used in Bombay and western India with remarkable results. This prophylactic is prepared by first taking the plague bacilli or the young germs from a person affected with the plague and cultivating them. These microbes are killed by artificial means and a high degree of heat.

From these dead germs and their poisonous excrements is produced a fluid believed to have acquired the power, when injected into the human system, to render the blood immune from an attack of plague germs and to neutralize their effect. The injection of such a poison has the effect of an anti-toxin and prevents the system from nourishing plague. A dead plague germ being inoculated into a person, plague will not follow. A person having one attack of the disease is rarely liable to a second. The person first inoculated is subject to symptoms of the plague.

In vaccination for smallpox a living germ is dealt with, whereas in plague inoculation dead germs only are injected.

Banded to Rob and Kill in Luzon.

Some sensational advices have been received by the military authorities of Manila. Officers of General Otis discovered recently in a house in Malate certain suspicious documents, the authenticity of which no one has questioned, despite the weird and nefarious nature of their contests. Among other papers was one which upon translation proved to be an agreement binding those whose signatures were attached to systematically plunder and murder.

The agreement was to rob everybody and everything, the proceeds of the robberies being placed in a common store and equally divided.

The house, according to the theory advanced by the military authorities, was occupied by discharged Filipino soldiers and was a resort kept by Chinamen. The owners of the building suddenly disappeared when they learned of the investigation being made by the agents of General Otis.

The matter has been referred to the special officers charged with secret transactions and the information so far collected is being withheld from the public so the inquiry will not be hampered by premature disclosures.

The department officials say this is an example of the exasperating conditions against which the authorities are compelled to operate. It is the hidden enemies in and about the American troops which are giving trouble.

The discovery at Malate may offer an explanation of the numerous robberies charged against our troops, who have been generally exonerated when an investigation was made.

General Corbin today returned from his home in Ohio, where he has been for a week. He came on the President's train and says the Chief Executive is delighted with the result in his own State, is satisfied with the elections generally, and pleased with the indorsement of the policy of expansion.

Reform Ordered by Secretary Long.

Secretary Long has listened to the protests of the New York contractors and others who have criticised the methods of the New York navy pay offices in buying material for the navy. A large amount of supplies, aggregating a vast sum annually, is bought under the open requisition system. This does not require public advertisement for bids, and it has been the practice until lately to post all such calls for proposals in conspicuous places in the pay offices, in addition to advising probable bidders of the needs of the department.

Recently the custom was changed and the solicitation of proposals confined to a few favored ones. No public posting of bids is made and contracts for material of great cost are made without due notice to rivals.

This condition was described to Secretary Long, who ordered that all bids not invited by formal advertisement of thirty days' standing be solicited under the former method.

Not only must there be a notification to bidders, whose names are kept on the books of the pay office, but the call must be posted in the office where any would-be bidder may see it.

Democratic plurality, Shackleford 185

This probably will be changed to a small Republican plurality this time, as Goebel has everywhere run behind the Shackleford vote.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—Returns from 111 of the 119 counties of Kentucky show a plurality of 2,501 for Taylor, Republican. The eight counties yet to be heard from are about a standoff politically and cannot change the figures more than 100 or so either way. The Legislature is yet undecided, but will be close. Chairman Long thinks the Democrats have carried the Legislature.

"There is no doubt that Goebel, having been fairly defeated at the polls in spite of all things his friends did, is now trying to steal the election," said Chairman Long of the Republican Executive committee last evening. "Taylor, however, is elected and he is going to be seated."

Returns received by the Courier-Journal up to 1:30 a. m. give Goebel a plurality of 2,070 votes. These figures are based on returns from 1,791 out of 1,863 precincts. Of the seventy-two missing precincts twenty are in the Republican Eleventh District, seven are in Republican counties in the Tenth District, and thirty-one are in Democratic counties of the Tenth District.

Chairman Blackburn of the Democratic State Campaign committee at Frankfort at midnight gave the following figures of the complexion of the next Legislature: Senate—Democrats, 27; Republicans, 11. House—Democrats, 55; Republicans, 45, with chance of 58 to 42.

Tonight it looks as if the Republicans have quite a job on their hands to keep what they have won. This morning Goebel Democrats gave up the fight. Later in the day, however, the situation changed. Goebel in Covington telegraphed Joe Blackburn in Frankfort:

"I have advices which show my election by 7,000 plurality and we will have a working majority in both branches of the Legislature."

Blackburn, who is the nominee for the United States Senate on the Goebel ticket, at once announced all former statements as to pluralities were unauthorized and Goebel was surely elected. The first echo here in Louisville was an announcement that the lawyer for the Goebel committee had decided the action of Governor Bradley in calling out the militia was an intimidation of voters which would justify the Board of Election Commissioners for Jefferson County in throwing out the entire vote of the City of Louisville. The Republican plurality in Louisville is 3,255, and throwing out this vote probably would change the result.

It is reported tonight that word has been sent to the various County Election boards through the State to steal enough Goebel Democratic candidates for the Legislature to secure the requisite majority. As there are eighteen Legislative districts in which the results are so close no one knows who is elected this course is practical.

Goebel Men Want Blood.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Senator William Goebel arrived here tonight and is now in conference with the campaign leaders. In front of the Capitol Hotel he delivered a fiery impromptu speech to a knot of listeners, in which he vaguely hinted at taking the Governor's chair. He said:

"I believe I have been elected. Taylor says he assumes the responsibility, but I say to you that the people of Kentucky are doing the assuming. We shall have four years of Democratic rule by the common people. It will not be an administration of bayonets, such as Bill Bradley insists upon."

SHAW'S VOTE IS ENORMOUS.

The Governor Will Have a Plurality of Over Fifty-six Thousand, the Largest in Many Years.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—With complete returns on Governor from seventy-seven of the ninety-nine counties of the State, and the other counties reported by pluralities, the majority for Governor Shaw over Fred White is close to 56,000. Full returns from all counties will not materially change this figure.

The votes cast for the Prohibition, Socialist-Labor, and Union Christian candidates is reported in only a few returns, but the indications are that these scattering votes will be smaller than usual.

It appears that Governor Shaw will have the largest majority over all other candidates of any Governor ever elected in the State. Up to this time Governor Carpenter's majority of 41,000, in 1871, was the largest, but it is probable that the record has been broken this year.

It is believed the next Legislature will be divided politically as follows:

Senate—Republicans, 35; Democrats, 15.
House—Republicans, 83; Democrats, 17.
Joint ballot—Republicans, 118; Democrats, 32.

This is the largest majority the Republicans have had in years, and is a Democratic loss of twelve as compared with the last session.

RESULTS IN OTHER STATES.

Aftermath of Tuesday's Election as Gathered from State and Municipal Returns.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 8.—Complete county returns coming in tonight do not materially change the early estimates of the results of yesterday's election. The fusionists carry the State by 12,000, perhaps more, on the face of returns from nearly half the counties. They elect William Neville to Congress over Moses P. Kinkaid in the Sixth District, but by a reduced majority, and gain slightly in judicial districts.

W. J. Bryan today received telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the United States.

Gaining in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Additional reports received this evening from points in the State increase the Republican majority from 3,875 to 4,017. Julian Bennett, one of the fusion nominees for the State Supreme bench, carried his judicial district, which is nominally Republican, by about 900 majority. The vote in some counties was less than 50 per cent.

Mixed Result in Salt Lake.

Salt Lake, Utah, Nov. 8.—Thompson, Rep., for Mayor, has a majority of 686. The Republicans also elected Recorder and Auditor; the Democrats, Attorney, Treasurer, and justice of the peace. The Democrats elected Mayors in Ogden, Provo, Pary City, and Logan.

One-Sided in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 8.—Corrected returns show that the Democrats made almost a clean sweep in the municipal election. The Republicans elected the Sheriff, Auditor, Tax Commissioner, County Clerk, and three Supervisors. The Democrats elected the Mayor, all other county officers, and fifteen Supervisors. Mayor Phelan's plurality over Davis, Republican, is 7,756.

More Gains in New York.

New York, Nov. 8.—Returns received from up the State today increase the Republican Assembly membership to ninety-three, against fifty-seven Democrats, a Republican gain of twelve.

In New York County the largest Tammany plurality was that of the candidate for Surrogate, Abner C. Thomas, 55,670.

The independent labor vote, as indicated by the vote for Crosby for Supreme Judge, was 5,700, or 3,000 less than the Socialist vote.

Make Gains in New Jersey.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 8.—[Special.]—The Republicans carried New Jersey yesterday by about 20,000 plurality on the vote for Assemblymen. There was no general State ticket. The Republicans elected Senators in Camden, Gloucester, Somerset, Union, Essex, Salem, and Monmouth Counties. The Democrats elected a Senator in Warren County. The Senate probably will stand fourteen Republicans to seven Democrats. The Democrats lost three Assemblymen in Middlesex, three in Monmouth, and one in Salem County, and the next Assembly will be composed of forty-four Republicans and nineteen Democrats, as against thirty-seven Republicans and twenty-three Democrats last year.

Returns from Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 8.—Complete returns from sixty of the sixty-seven counties in the State, and including Philadelphia, and with carefully revised estimates from the seven missing counties, show a plurality of 109,465 for Barnett [Rep.] for State Treasurer over Creasy [Dem.]. The plurality for Brown [Rep.] for Supreme Court Judge will exceed that of Barnett by probably 30,000.

Outcome in Massachusetts.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—Corrected election figures for the State are: Crane (Rep.), 168,876; Paine (Dem.), 103,814; Republican plurality, 65,062. In the Senate the Democrats have nine members, a gain of two, which means the ability to demand a roll call. The House will stand: Republicans, 166; Democrats, 70; Social Democrats, 2; independents, 2.

Outcome in New Orleans.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 8.—The regular Democracy won an easier victory than was expected. The negro was practically eliminated, leaving 38,000 votes, as against 60,000 votes on the roll two years ago. Of these 32,000 votes were cast. Paul Capdevilie, the Democratic candidate for Mayor, received a majority of 6,100.

LOCAL VIEWS OF ELECTIONS.

Both Parties Agree Result Insures Renomination of McKinley and Bryan—Effect on National Issues.

Republican and Democratic politicians agree that the results of Tuesday's election insure the renomination for President next year of both McKinley and Bryan. But they differ as to the effect the returns have on national issues. The Republican leaders claim that the big majorities in Republican States are an unqualified indorsement of President McKinley's policy in the Philippines and of his whole administration. The Democratic leaders insist that local questions dominated the situation to such an extent that the result is no indication of what the people will do in 1900.

Mayor Harrison declared the results of the elections were encouraging for the Democratic party.

"The result in Nebraska," he said, "shows that fusion has made substantial gains. As to Ohio, the fact remains that the McLean and the Jones vote composed a decided majority and that the administration failed to receive the indorsement of the majority of the people. I do not see how the result can be accepted otherwise than as a signal rebuke to the policy of President McKinley. Even admitting that Goebel is defeated in Kentucky, there can be no doubt that the two factions of the Democratic party make up a substantial majority, and that in 1900 they will make the State Democratic. The result in Maryland shows the Democrats in that State have got together."

BRITISH VIEW OF ELECTION.

London Papers Say President McKinley Has Every Reason to Hope for Second Term.

London, Nov. 9.—The Daily News, commenting upon the American election, says it believes Mr. Bryan has no chance for the Presidency and that President McKinley has every reason to hope for a second term. President McKinley, it declares, "will now have a free hand in the Philippines. Nevertheless, he had better make haste to win. He has obtained a sort of renewed lease of public confidence, but nothing more."

The Daily Chronicle, commenting upon President McKinley's "bold development of imperialist policy in China," says:

"This is the sort of courage which commands success. In these circumstances it seems almost inconceivable that he should fail to secure reëlection."

General E. Burd Grubb Seriously Ill.

M'LEAN BADLY BEATEN.

OHIO REPUBLICANS ELECT NASH BY A PLURALITY OF 50,364.

Legislature on Joint Ballot Will Have a Safe Republican Majority—Anti-Saloon League Causes Caldwell to Run Behind Nash—Incomplete Returns Show the Jones Vote Amounted to Over 100,000 — Tables by Counties.

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—[Special.]—The returns of the Ohio election up to midnight indicate the election of Judge Nash by not less than 51,000 votes. Judge Caldwell, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, was cut considerably in the rural precincts by the Anti-Saloon league, and he probably will have a majority of less than 30,000. Late returns show Jones' vote will be much larger than expected. It is sure to exceed 100,000, and may reach 110,000. He rolled up the wonderful vote of over 36,000 in Cuyahoga County. Chairman Dick said tonight the official majority of Judge Nash would be 50,000 in round numbers.

The next Legislature is Republican in both branches. The figures up to midnight are as follows: Senate—Republicans, 18; Democrats, 9; doubtful, 4. House—Republicans, 62; Democrats, 40; doubtful, 8.

Late tonight George B. Cox wired from Cincinnati that the official vote would be required to determine the complexion of the Hamilton County delegation in the next Assembly.

Judge Nash was the recipient of hundreds of congratulatory telegrams today, President McKinley and every member of his Cabinet being among the Judges well-wishers.

Governor Bushnell was asked what he thought of the result of the election. He said:

"I think the election is evidence that Ohio is a reliable Republican State, and that the people are so well satisfied with the present situation that they do not desire a change."

"I feel first rate," said Judge Nash today; "except that my voice is cracked. I feel better over the grand victory we have won in Franklin County than over the entire State results."

The Judge was in his office, almost buried under great heaps of telegrams.

J. J. Gill, Republican, is elected over Lavosier Spence, Democrat, for Congress in the Sixteenth Ohio District by 440 votes. Mr. Gill will fill the unexpired term of the late Lorenzo Danford.

INSURANCE AFFAIRS.

Advices received in Chicago yesterday from Topeka, Kas., indicate that the rate war which has been going on there for the last two weeks between the Continental Insurance company and the local agents will be called off today. Assistant Manager C. R. Tuttle of the Chicago office has delayed his return home in order to be present at the peace council, and General Secretary Frank F. Holmes of the National Association of Local Fire Insurance Agents, who went West to pour oil on the troubled waters, is reported as having met with much success in his efforts. The rate war in this case has been carried to an extreme that was beyond precedent in Kansas, and the agents are so tired of the fight that they are willing to call "quits."

The appointment of a new manager for the New York office of the North British and Mercantile is expected to be made this week.

The Michigan Field club, which succeeded the Michigan Association of Fire Underwriters, has disbanded on account of the anti-compact law of that State.

The report of Actuary Brinkerhoff of Illinois, who recently completed an investigation of the affairs of the Mutual Reserved Life association in Tennessee by special request of the Insurance department of that State, is expected to be made public this week. The inquiry was confined principally to a careful investigation of the unpaid death claims, the alleged inequality of assessing members, and the expense contingent fund, about which so much fault was found by Superintendent Payn of New York.

In Minneapolis the sole agency movement appears to be growing stronger and having more supporters. This is the first instance where local agents have perfected an organization for the purpose of bringing companies to the sole agency basis, and have stood faithfully by their original agreement. The new plan causes discrimination against companies that have not fallen in line, and a consequent loss of business. A few years ago Minneapolis agents went to the other extreme, and each one represented all the way from three to a dozen companies.

William H. Bagley, assistant general agent of the Pacific department of the North British and Mercantile, died in San Francisco on Wednesday of appendicitis.

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—Sidney N. Moon, for several years manager of the liability department of the Fidelity and Casualty company, has gone to the Ocean Accident and Guarantee corporation in a similar capacity.

Benjamin F. Tillinghast, editor of the Insurance Record, of this city died yesterday. For several years he was with the Mutual Life Insurance company.

CUBANS MORE FRIENDLY.

GEN. LUDLOW SAYS THEY ARE CONVINCED OF AMERICAN SINCERITY.

Work of Organizing the Civil Government Is Proceeding Rapidly—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee Writes an Article on the Future of the Island—Will of Cornelius Vanderbilt Admitted to Probate—Rival Clearing-House May Be Established.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Nov. 8.

Cuban Feeling More Friendly.

Brigadier General William Ludlow, Military Governor of Havana, who arrived in New York harbor yesterday afternoon and was detained in quarantine, said today:

"I am glad to say that the feeling of Cubans towards Americans—whether the military representatives of the government or others—has greatly improved during recent months. They are convinced now, I think, that our purposes are honest and friendly, and limited to the organization and development which are essential precursors of the establishment of a stable native government. The organizing of civil government is proceeding prosperously throughout the cities and towns of the island. In many it is perfected; in others it is well under way; in the rest it is either being undertaken or about to be. In Havana, of course, we have had for some months a complete municipal organization and administration, but under military supremacy, which, however, is exercised no more than is deemed necessary.

"Among the final preparations for the full assumption of authority by the Cubans will be the election of a constitutional assembly. The date for that election has not been fixed. In regard to the suggestion of an educational test for the electors, a difficulty arises in the fact that 80 per cent of the population is illiterate. It is evident that if the new republic is to be a popular government there cannot be much of educational requirements for the exercise of the suffrage."

George Bowles, manager of the Alice Nielsen Opera company, was granted an absolute divorce by Justice Gildersleeve in the Supreme Court from his wife, Marie Bowles, better known to the theatrical world as Babette Rodney.

General Lee on Cuban Progress.

"The future of Cuba," an article by Major General Fitzhugh Lee, will appear in the Independent tomorrow. He writes in part:

"When will the United States evacuate Cuba? That is a question I am frequently asked. With the best of will on the part of our government—a desire to keep its pledges and leave the inhabitants of Cuba to enjoy their independence in their own way—there are many difficulties in the way of withdrawal, and whether or not we have in the last six months made progress toward the end I am unable to say.

"Yet I can say that during the last six months crime has decreased, and peace and prosperity are spreading or reviving in a great measure. This, however, seems attributable to the presence of the United States troops, whom the chief property-holders and conservative business-men insist must stay.

"The Cubans themselves seem to be much divided in opinion as to what ought to be done. Some want an independent republic immediately. Others insist that Cuba shall be annexed to the United States."

Vanderbilt Will Probated.

The will of Cornelius Vanderbilt was admitted to probate today by Surrogate Varnum. Among the affidavits presented was one from W. K. Vanderbilt stating that the value of the real and personal property of the testator is unknown.

John Carstensen, G. S. Prince, Warren S. Crane, Chandler P. Anderson, E. L. Rossiter, and Henry Anderson, witnesses to the will and the two codicils, appeared before Probate Clerk Washburn and testified to their signatures.

Among the questions asked was this: "In your mind was Mr. Vanderbilt of sound mind, memory, and mentality when these papers were signed, and was the will his own free and voluntary act?" Each answered in the affirmative.

Before the will was presented for probate Surrogate Fitzgerald, on the application of Reginald C. Vanderbilt, appointed Howard A. Taylor, a lawyer of 71 Broadway, as his special guardian. The application was supplemented by an affidavit made by Mrs. Alice Gwynne Vanderbilt, in which she averred:

"I have no interest averse to that of my son, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, in this proceeding. I have not influenced my son in any way as to the appointment of a special guardian. He has made such application of his own volition."

Charles H. Treat, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second District of New York, received instructions from Washington today to suspend the collection of the tax on call loans pending a decision by the Attorney General.

Talk of a Rival Clearing-House.

It is said the action of the New York Clearing-House in attempting to force all the trust companies to make weekly reports to it and to compel the new concerns to wait a year before they can be allowed the privilege of clearing through a clearing-house member may result in the establishment by the trusts of a rival clearing-house. The Produce Exchange Trust company, which was the first of the big companies to break away from the Clearing-House association, was generally credited with leading the revolt, though the officers declined to acknowledge that this was true. The new companies which, it is expected, would coöperate with the Produce Exchange Trust company are the Bankers' Trust company, Trust Company of America, Federal Trust company, and the Trust Company of New York.

Mr. Marconi sailed for England today.

Fire Engine Searchlight.

Fire Chief Croker today completed the plans for the fire engine searchlight, which he expects will increase the efficiency of the fire force 50 per cent. Chief Croker describes the engine from his plans as follows:

"The new engine will be one of our regular fire engines, but in place of the pumping machinery it will be equipped with a dynamo connected to a high speed engine. On the platform just behind the driver I have mounted two 18-inch marine projectors. Each projector will be fitted with a special diverging lens, with which the beam of light may be spread out to cover as wide an area as desired. If the tests are successful we will have one searchlight engine in each division of the department. When the new engine is in service and persons are reported to be still in the building afire, the searchlight will be taken by firemen up the dark stairways and into the rooms, where it will quickly reveal any object."

The new zoölogical gardens in the Bronx Park were formally opened to the public with appropriate ceremonies today by the officials of the New York Zoölogical society.

Want a New Department.

At the meeting of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation today the following resolutions were adopted:

"Resolved, That we urge the Congress of the United States to enact a law establishing the gold dollar as a standard and measure of value, and providing that bonds and notes of the United States and all paper money, including national bank notes, shall be redeemable in gold.

"Resolved by the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, That the business interests of the United States demand the creation of a separate government department, whose head shall be a Cabinet officer, to be known as the Department of Commerce and Manufactures, and the President of the United States is respectfully urged to recommend to Congress early action to this end."

Charles R. Flint today announced that the Rubber Goods Manufacturing company had purchased a majority interest in the capital stock of the Hartford Rubber Works company, the Indianapolis Rubber company, the Peoria Rubber and Manufacturing company, and the rubber manufacturing plant of the Indiana Bicycle company. In the announcement it was stated that no advance would be made in the price of some bicycle tires, while the prices of some others would be reduced.

New York Central's Big Order.

Orders have been placed by President Callaway of the New York Central railroad for 9,750 new cars and ninety new locomotives. This is the largest purchase of the kind ever made at one time. The aggregate cost of this new equipment will exceed $7,000,000, and in consequence of the great advance in the price of material the cost is likely to be nearer $8,000,000. Fifteen of the engines are to be powerful ten-wheeled passenger engines of the standard type. There will also be fifty large freight engines and twenty-five switch engines. Half a dozen of the new freight locomotives will be equipped with the improved firebox and boiler invented and patented by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

Crazy Woman Creates a Stir at the Zoo.

Several hundred persons were standing in front of the elephant inclosure in Central Park today when a handsomely dressed young woman clambered over the three-foot fence and went directly to the elephant inclosure. Here she climbed a second fence and going unhesitatingly up to one of the great animals sat down in front of it. The elephant was reclining. The woman put her arms around its trunk and kissed the beast several times. The elephant, ordinarily bad tempered, accepted the fondling with indifference.

Women and children in front of the inclosure began screaming, and half a dozen keepers entered the inclosure and led the woman away. It was seen then that she was insane. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Her name, she said, was Minnie Gillette. She mentioned Lillian Colehammer of 1743 Ridgewood avenue, Chicago, as her nearest friend.

The Gillette woman's name may be Mrs. Putz, as that was a name she gave at a boarding-house. She also said she had a daughter, Daisy Henderson, living at 1821 West One Hundred and First street, Chicago.

Oceanic Arrives, Behind Time.

The White Star line's steamship Oceanic, the largest vessel in the world, was not sighted off Fire Island until late this afternoon. It was the aim of its builders that its 28,000 horse power engines should always enable it to make this port by Wednesday. The failure to land its passengers yesterday is attributed to the fact that the vessel is still carrying inexperienced firemen. The Oceanic is supposed to have on board Sir Edward and Lady Colebrook, the latter a reigning beauty in London. Others are Sir Julian Pauncefote, British Ambassador to the United States; James H. Smith, the broker, who is said to have inherited $50,000,000; Mrs. Astor Sr.; the Duke of Manchester, who is said to be coming to pick out an American bride; and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and family.

Gift to the Library.

At a meeting of trustees of the New York Public Library today a letter was read from J. Pierpont Morgan stating that he had presented to the library the Ford collection of books, manuscripts, and letters. The collection contains 180 bound volumes and about 30,000 separate pieces of manuscript. There are letters to and from Noah Webster, with rough drafts of his dictionary and of articles by him, with business and personal letters of his family; also correspondence of Horace Greeley. There are more than 200 letters from Andrew Jackson and some from James Monroe.

Ask to Be Relieved of Chicago Debts.

Peter Adrian Pincuffs and Henry Pieters, who composed the firm of Pincuffs, Pieters & Co., dissolved in May, 1896, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $59,343 and assets consisting of stock of the Takamine Ferment company of Chicago, face value $9,000, actual value unknown, and life insurance policies of $1,000. They were formerly in business in Chicago, where the debts were contracted from 1893 to 1896. The largest creditors are the Union National Bank of Chicago, $27,950, and the First National Bank of Chicago, $10,250.

Dies While Making Mrs. Hazen's Trousseau.

Mrs. Marion Davey, dressmaker for Mrs. Mildred Hazen, Admiral Dewey's fiancée, died of heart disease at her home, 9 East Forty-first street, at 5:30 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Davey was busy in the preparation of Mrs. Hazen's wedding trousseau, work upon which she started immediately after Mrs. Hazen's visit last Friday. She personally superintended the work of her assistants and had it so far finished that it is not thought her death will in any way delay its completion in the given time.

ROSES RULE FOR A DAY.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS ARE IN ECLIPSE AT THE FLOWER SHOW.

Smaller Blossoms Are on Exhibition and Make a Gorgeous Scene—Mme. Calve Shares the Interest of the Spectators — Singer Declares the Display Magnificent—Brings Joy to Those at the Booths — Judges' Awards—The Women in Charge.

Mme. Calvé and the roses divided honors at the flower show yesterday afternoon. The Auditorium seemed to be the scene of an afternoon reception with elaborate decorations rather than a flower show. At 3 o'clock the carriages began to arrive, and until after 5 o'clock the aisles were filled with society women greeting friends and admiring the exhibits of "rose day."

When Mme. Calvé entered with Mr. and Mrs. Milward Adams and Miss Margaret Robinson the supremacy of the roses ended. Smiling and bowing, she made her way about, stopping often to speak to an acquaintance or to make a new one. Except for a slight paleness, the effects of her recent illness, she seemed in good health. She wore a street gown of rough brown cloth, trimmed with an edging of fur.

"It is magnificent," she declared. When her party reached the bazaar booths she bought everything that seemed to strike her fancy. Her first purchase was a violet holder of cut glass and silver, costing the trifle of $12, at the bazaar presided over by Mrs. F. O. Lowden. Jewel boxes, fancy bags, embroideries, bits of china, pictures, books, hair ornaments, aprons, and silver trinkets followed the violet vase. Mrs. Adams wondered if she knew the bill that was accumulating, and told her how expensive the articles were.

"Never mind," she said, with a little shrug of the shoulders, "it is for the charity."

Thousand-dollar bills are not stumbling blocks to trade in the bazaars. Mrs. George Bass, who assisted in the booth for the benefit of the Lying-In Hospital and Dispensary, was handed a bill of that denomination in payment for $10 worth of books bought by a well dressed woman during the day.

"It is the smallest bill I have," said the buyer, with the air of one who thought it was a matter of small concern. It was changed.

CLASS 123—Best twenty-five American beauties, premiums offered by Mrs. Charles H. Wacker: First prize, $15, Bassett & Washburn.

STOCK-YARDS STENCH AGAIN.

Vile Odors from Bridgeport Spread Over the City, Disgusting and Sickening the People.

Almost before the people of Chicago living north of the Stock-Yards had recovered from the last visit of the Bridgeport stench another wave of fetid odors has engulfed them. It came early yesterday morning on the south wind. Some of the victims were awakened at 2 o'clock. They shut their windows and tried, with ill-success, to sleep till daylight. During all the day, indoors or out, they suffered from inhaling the nauseating smells. It was impossible to get away from them.

These mephitic fumes come chiefly from the rendering establishments that receive and turn into commercial articles the refuse of the packing-houses. When the employés of these places attend to their business the deadly vapors are absorbed in water and their penetrating powers are reduced greatly. But when the workmen become lazy or otherwise negligent the foul air rises from the stacks, is caught up by the wind, and carried to the nostrils of people near and remote.

The efforts of the Health department to subdue this aggravated nuisance result in promises of a remedy. The remedy comes for a few days and then the rotten vapors break forth again, disgusting and sickening the people.

NEWS OF THEATERS.

De Pachmann Recital.

There are some things in the realm of art so beautiful, so ideally perfect, that all thought of technical obstacles and of the mechanical difficulties involved in their accomplishment vanish before the charm of their finished beauty. To this class belongs the piano playing of Vladimir de Pachmann, who delighted a large audience at Central Music Hall last evening. The reappearance of the great Russian pianist was the signal for the coming together of those musicians and music lovers who were wont to frequent his earlier recitals and come under the spell of his inimitable art.

The playing has lost none of its charm. It is the same wonderful, satisfying playing as of old. The sonorous tone, resonant even in the softest pianissimo; the expressive phrasing, the eloquent inner-voice leadings, the faultless technique, and the rich but delicate musical perception—all are still there, uniting to make the performance genuinely enjoyable from every standpoint.

The program opened with the A Flat Sonata of Weber, opus 39, a rarely played work, which was given a superb reading. Then followed several selections from Schumann, numbers from the Phantasiestücke, and the Waldscenen, which were made to reveal many beauties. The Mendelssohn Rondo Capriccioso was given at a bewildering speed, and as an encore the performer played, first, the concluding portion of this same piece and then, after persistent recalls, the Berceuse of Chopin. The last group on the program was made up of compositions by Chopin, concluding with the idyllic Third Scherzo, in C sharp minor, opus 39. As a final encore the artist graciously responded with the F sharp major impromptu by the same composer.

De Pachmann's second recital will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Central Music Hall.

Much Ado About Nothing.

A sympathetic and in every way delightful performance of "Much Ado About Nothing" was given by Mme. Modjeska and her company yesterday afternoon. In many ways the excellence of the presentation was a matter of surprise. It was to be expected that Mme. Modjeska herself would give to the rôle of Beatrice the proper distinction, but it seemed hardly within the range of belief that she would receive from her associates the assistance necessary to a symmetrical performance. As the event proved, however, she was given every possible aid, and because it is easy to imagine the zest which the actress would employ in the portrayal of the bitingly witty but healthy-minded Beatrice it is permissible to give attention for the moment to her companion players. It is evident Mme. Modjeska has collected a company well adapted to comedy demands, and one to which any historical play not too much steeped in tragedy may safely be intrusted. When it comes to tragedy, however, the brunt has to be born by Mme. Modjeska alone, as was evidenced on Tuesday night in the performance of "Macbeth."

In "Much Ado About Nothing" the company played together admirably and no part was badly done. The single serious fault continued to be a general inability to read the poetry as it should be read. If one were inclined to be hypercritical or pedantic the weakness might be considered of the unpardonable variety. As a matter of fact, however, not many outside the ranks of the Shakspearean cranks would have felt badly about the matter. The players entered into their characterizations with such a natural spirit that the resultant lightness was a recompense for the errors of enunciation. John E. Kellerd, though he failed to make Benedick the blithe, reckless individual one always pictures him, saved him, nevertheless, from being a heavy creature. His reading, too, was better than his Macbeth gave any right to believe within his range of acting. It was, however, somewhat of a relief to turn to the work of other members of the cast, some of them among its youngest recruits. The Hero of Miss Kate Dalglish was a refreshingly light-hearted maiden before her undeserved shame came upon her, indeed less subdued than Shakspeare depicts her, though an audience never would like her the worse for it. The moments of tragedy were encountered without serious mishap. Another young woman, Miss Guelma Baker, in decidedly a minor rôle, that of Balthazar, Benedick's page, pleased the audience, which, for a matinée performance, was a large one, and at all times appreciative. It was the way she sang Balthazar's song that took the fancy of the house. She was several times recalled. Wadsworth Harris essayed the rôle of Dogberry, not with astounding success, though the effort was not discreditable.

"Much Ado About Nothing" is one of the little played comedies of Shakspeare—why, it is hard to see. Ranging from almost burlesque to almost tragedy, touching in its love scenes on pure comedy, it would seem it had the ingredients of a popular success. Possibly the trouble is it possesses no engrossing rôle. The part of Beatrice scarcely falls within the stellar category, despite the opportunities it offers for the best of acting. Its girlishness was no bar to Mme. Modjeska. She tripped about as lightly as if her years were seventeen.

Mme. Modjeska appears as Lady Macbeth tonight. Her bill for Saturday's matinée, by request, will be "Macbeth" instead of "The Ladies' Battle," as previously announced. The "Ladies' Battle" will be given at next Wednesday's matinée.

Actors' Fund Benefit.

The Actors' Fund benefit performance at McVicker's today will begin at noon, the curtain rising on numbers by vaudeville players now appearing at the Chicago Opera-House. James T. Powers and "A Runaway Girl" company will follow with a scene from the musical comedy, after which "The Great Ruby" company will play an act of the Litt melodrama. Mme. Modjeska and her company will follow in a scene from "Much Ado About Nothing," and then Nat Goodwin and Maxine Elliott will present a one-act comedy, "The Silent System." Next will be an offering from "A Trip to Chinatown" company, and then the members of the Dearborn stock company will appear in the one-act comedy, "A Happy Pair." Then in order vaudeville by Tony Pastor and his associates from the Olympic and contributions from the Castle Square opera company, the "On the Wabash" company, Mme. Yacco of the Japanese players, Lafayette from Hopkins', May Howard from the Trocadero, and "Bob" Fitzsimmons, who will give a boxing exhibition.

Emma Eames Arrives.

Emma Eames and her husband, Julian Story, arrived at the Auditorium last evening at 5:30 o'clock from New York. They landed at New York last Sunday, coming directly from Paris. Mme. Eames was weary with her journey, but said that she never was in better health.

"I shall first appear in Chicago on Tuesday evening, you know, in 'The Marriage of Figaro,'" she said last evening, "so I came here early that I might have a rest. I always have such a delightful time in Chicago that I am more than pleased to be here again. It does not seem that it can be a year since I was here last, but I have not changed, have I?

"I have so many new costumes made by Doucit. In both my evenings here I shall wear them for the first time. It was Mr. Grau's intention to have me come early so that I could sing in some small cities, one-night performances. But I did not like the idea, and preferred to keep myself fresh for this engagement."

Mme. Nordica will arrive in Chicago today.

SPRAGUE, WARNER & CO.'S TEAMS AND TRUCKS BLOCKADE MICHIGAN-AV.

Michigan avenue for about 150 feet north of Randolph street practically is monopolized by Sprague, Warner & Co., who occupy the building on the northwest corner of the two thoroughfares. From fifteen to twenty-five drays will be found backed up against the sidewalk on the west side of Michigan avenue nearly all day, completely blocking more than one-half of the street. Only a narrow space remins between the heads of the horses and the sidewalk on the other side, and blockades are of frequent occurrence. The sidewalk in front of Sprague, Warner & Co. is absolutely impassable for ordinary pedestrians. Only acrobats find it possible to clear the numerous skids extending across the walk from the back ends of the drays to the different entrances. What little room there is left between the skids is occupied by boxes, barrels, bags, and piles of smaller goods ready to be loaded or just unloaded. This photograph was taken yesterday.

Lots of men who go hunting for clothes feel afterward like going gunning for the clothier. We offer satisfaction in clothes here; you'll never get more; you often get less elsewhere.

But we're not infallible; if ever our goods don't satisfy, "your money back" ought to.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1899.

Road Making in East Africa. In the Geographical Journal for September Captain Smith gives an account of his experiences while completing the road from Mombasa to the shores of the Victoria Nyanza in order to improve the navigation between Uganda and the coast. In some parts of the road game seems to have been abundant. From one little hill he saw 3,000 heads of all sorts—zebra, wildebeast, hartebeast, antelope, rhinoceros, and giraffe. A good deal is written about the preservation of the big game of Africa, but there is another side to the question, for Captain Smith, in a part of the country infested by rhinoceros, lost one man killed and one badly wounded without any provocation.

Ice Cream and Typhoid Fever. At the Sanitary Institute at Southampton Dr. Manby stated that several outbreaks of typhoid fever in Liverpool had been traced to contaminated ice cream. Since 1898 319 persons had applied to the Liverpool health authorities for permission to sell ice cream, and 56 had been told that owing to unsuitability of premises they must make other arrangements. There had been two convictions, and in one case the stipendiary magistrate remarked that the best punishment for the defendant would be to make him live on his own ice cream for a time. Dr. Manby stated that Glasgow had adopted a similar policy to Liverpool, and advised local authorities to apply for parliamentary powers on the lines of those granted by the Liverpool act of 1898.

The Dangers of Rabbit Pie. In Longman's for September Mr. Rider Haggard in his article, "A Farmer's Year," relates the old "chestnut" about the danger of eating rabbit pie. A bicyclist had an attack like angina pectoris, and a London specialist stated that "his attack was brought on by eating cold rabbit pie, which produced some peculiar form of ptomaine poisoning." It appears that all pies if unventilated are dangerous, but that cold rabbit unventilated is apt to be absolutely deadly." It seems, however, hardly likely that the mere addition of a ventilation hole in the pie would be of any benefit. The attack was more probably due to some disease in the rabbit which was undetected at its death.

Twelve Worthy but Useless Men. In a paper on "Reform in the Coroner's Court" read by Dr. James at the British Medical association it was stated that Lord Macaulay pointed out how the most iniquitous decisions in state trials under the Tudors and Stuarts were delivered by British juries. The following little gem of a jury's decision taken from the parliamentary blue books was also related: "We find A. B. died from stone in the kidney, doubtless swallowed by deceased while lying in an unconscious state of drunkenness on a gravel path." Dr. James went on to show that the Coroner himself is nowadays an able arbiter, well versed in law and medicine, and that the services of a dozen honest, conscientious, but often ignorant laymen should be dispensed with.

High Explosives in War. The Boers are brave and honest fighters, and thus far have conducted their battles upon the lines of civilized warfare. But it is evident that they have not taken into account the superiority of British arms and the high explosives used in modern wars; or, if they have, they are relying upon a higher power which has not always manifested itself on the side of the weaker artillery. The Boers have no guns which can work such terrible havoc as the rapid-fire guns of the British, which fire shrapnel shells, each containing 260 bullets scattered over an area of twenty-four square yards. These guns deliver twelve shots a minute, or 3,120 bullets a minute, over a space of 288 square yards, and the naval guns, of greater power and range than any the Boers have, reinforce them. The British are also using lyddite, an explosive of such terrible power that whole battalions in Africa were mowed down by it. The Boers have protested against it, but protests will be useless. All nations have their high explosives—the French their melinite, the Germans an explosive closely resembling it, and the United States is experimenting with thorite. The various "ites" are terrible factors in modern warfare, and as The Hague conference did not consider them all nations will feel at liberty to use them. Against such agencies of destruction as these the most determined heroism will avail little.

Siberian Gold Fields. It is announced by the Russian government that foreigners are to be allowed to lease and operate gold-bearing land in Siberia. This action will throw open what is believed to be one of the most important gold fields in the world. Insufficiency of Russian enterprise has checked this development, and the government has made it a crime for people of other countries to remove the treasure. Hence, although gold mining has been carried on in Siberia since before the discovery in California, the methods and appliances have not changed and the production is small.

A report on the Siberian gold mines, published two years ago, declared that the gold-bearing territory extends from the Yenesei River to the Pacific Ocean and from the southern limits of the Amoor drainage and the Altais to the arctic circle. The gold is thus scattered over a territory about 3,000 miles east and west by 1,000 miles north and south.

Placer mining is the only method that has been employed, and the shallow surface placers, such as were worked in the river bars and foothill gulches of California by early gold seekers, have been the source of supply. Travelers who have investigated believe that if the quartz lodes were worked they would yield enormous wealth. Under the new laws foreign capital may be depended upon to do this work, and Siberia may become a rival of the United States and the Transvaal in the production of gold.

A LESSON FOR LORIMER.

Hamilton County gave McKinley a plurality of 19,000. A year later it gave Bushnell a plurality of only 2,000. This year it gives McLean a plurality of 1,100. Chicago Republicans will understand the reason why when told that there is a boss in Cincinnati and his name is Cox.

The Cincinnatians have not been able to throw off Cox yet, nor the Chicagoans Lorimer. He is still in the saddle. He has ridden the party for ten years or more and is riding it still. It has given him power and wealth. Unhappily it has not given him good judgment. As he grows more affluent he becomes more dictatorial and ambitious. Republicans who have preferred to get rid of him without injuring the party have found themselves unable to do so. Therefore they have adopted on some occasions the radical policy of defeating the party in the hope that it would as a measure of self-preservation do better next time and order Mr. Lorimer to take a back seat.

In November, 1896, this city gave McKinley a plurality of 56,000 votes. The following spring the Republican city convention nominated Judge Sears for Mayor. His ability and integrity made him the man for the place. But when the votes were counted he was third on the poll. Harrison got 148,880 votes, Harlan, an independent candidate, 69,730, and Sears only 59,542. The impression that Judge Sears was Lorimer's candidate and that a defeat for him was a defeat for Lorimer was fatal to his prospects.

Last spring the Democrats renominated Mayor Harrison. As Altgeld ran as an independent candidate—and got 47,000 votes—the chances favored the Republicans. Their candidate was Zina R. Carter, an unexceptionable man. But the story was whispered abroad, just before election, that he had had a secret conference with Lorimer and that, if elected, Lorimer would be the power behind the throne in the City Hall. That was enough. Republicans who believed they saw "the trail of the serpent" over Carter's candidacy voted for Harrison to strike Lorimer. Harrison got 148,412 votes and Carter 107,439.

But defeat though often repeated has not had the desired effect. Lorimer is still attached to the party and aims to be its leader. He is resolved in spite of the long list of good men whom a suspicion of his ownership has defeated that the party shall do still more for him than it has done. He hopes to be able to say "my Legislature" and "my Governor." He aims at the establishment of a legislative tollgate whereof he shall be the keeper. Then all the corporations that want favorable legislation or seek to avert unfriendly legislation will have to see the gatekeeper and consult with him about terms.

The Republicans who have defeated Mayoralty candidates because they believed Lorimer owned them are not dead yet. They will not hesitate to fly at higher game and cut the throat of a gubernatorial candidate whom they know to be a creature of Lorimer. No appeals to "vote straight this one time for the sake of the party" will be of any avail if a Lorimer candidate is nominated. He will be beaten by a majority which will break all records. If Republicans who see in the ascendency of Lorimer the decadence of the party have to choose between a candidate who will represent him and Harrison they will prefer the latter. He has culture. He has a conscience and sometimes he heeds its warning voice. He has not grown suddenly rich. He has capacity and brains and in a large degree the confidence of the public. No second-rate or tainted Republican candidate nor any man suspected of being under the influence of Lorimer can beat him.

Instead of burning down the barn to kill the rats it is better to drive out the rats and save the barn. It is better to kill off Lorimer as a political power than candidates who wear his livery or are believed to do so. They alone suffer, while he keeps on plotting and mischief-making. The way to root out Lorimerism is to go into Lorimer's precinct, his ward, and his Congressional district and assail him there. Bosses like him must be fought at close quarters. To meet down-town and adopt resolutions "demanding" the overthrow of Lorimer or to denounce him in Lake View or Hyde Park is to waste time. He must be attacked in his own territory by his Republican neighbors, who because they are his neighbors know best how unfit he is to be at the head of a political organization in which disinterested men claim membership. Those are the men who should depose Lorimer and they should set to work now. If they wait much longer any efforts they may make will be in vain.

THE RESULT IN MASSACHUSETTS.

There is every reason to be satisfied with the result of the election in Massachusetts. The Republican majority will be over 62,000, which is about the figure set by the chairman of the Republican State committee and over 12,000 more than that set by the chairman of the Democratic committee. The Democrats have gained two members of the Senate and eight members of the House, but the Republicans still have the large majority of 120 on joint ballot. Massachusetts stands where it has stood for nearly half a century, solidly in the Republican column.

This gratifying result must be regarded as the old Bay State's indorsement of the government's policy in the issues growing out of the war. Free silver cut no figure in the campaign. In spite of George Fred Williams' advocacy of Bryan and his heresy, Paine, the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate, completely ignored the free silver issue and thus opened the doors of the party to the gold Democrats. If the financial question had been an issue the Republican majority would have been still greater. The Democrats, therefore, must have cast the full strength of their vote. They were, moreover, reinforced by Republicans to a greater or lesser extent in a few of the larger cities of the State either by their votes direct or by their abstaining from voting. Boston has had a mugwump contingent in all recent elections, beginning with the Cleveland period. Since the close of the war with Spain it has been the headquarters of anti-expansion and many Republicans have been induced to forsake their party by the specious arguments of such men as Senator Hoar, Edward Atkinson, and Edwin D. Mead.

And yet Massachusetts has pronounced for the McKinley policy by over 62,000 majority. Had the Republicans made their campaign with half the energy and enthusiasm displayed by the Democrats they would have made a still better showing, but it often happens in States which are certainly Republican that the full vote does not come out. It is the other side which makes the liveliest campaign. The Republicans take it for granted their side will win without any extraordinary amount of oratory. The aunties, however, as they study the returns will find no comfort in them. The great majority of the people are with the President.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE IOWA ELECTION.

The popular sentiment as to the only great issue which now divides the Republican and Democratic parties can be studied better in Iowa than in any other State which held an election on Tuesday, because the campaign was not obscured by or mixed up with local issues. There were no factions contending with each other and no disaffection anywhere on local questions. The only change of any consequence was in Scott County, among the Germans. They were Democratic originally, but voted for McKinley to show their opposition to the free silver heresy. That issue having been dropped, they went back to their party and followed White into the Democratic camp.

In Iowa, where it was an out-and-out fight upon the McKinley Philippine policy, the Republicans in an off year have voted the splendid majority of at least 50,000, and perhaps considerably more. Three years ago they gave McKinley 65,452 majority. Two years ago they gave Shaw for Governor 29,885 majority. That they should have more than doubled that majority this year and nearly equaled the McKinley majority, when the only issue was the McKinley Philippine policy, shows the sentiment of the people in an unmistakable light. They stand back of the President as firmly as the rock of Gibraltar. The result in Iowa should be studied by all those who wish to ascertain what the people of the West think about our sovereignty over the Philippines and the doctrine of expansion.

OHIO INDORSES M'KINLEY.

Ohio in 1896 gave McKinley a majority of 48,494 over Bryan. The following year it gave Bushnell 28,165 over Chapman. This year it has given Nash an estimated plurality of more than 45,000 over McLean. Evidently Ohio is true to President McKinley, approves of what he has done, and what he proposes to do. Doubtless State pride contributed to swell the Republican vote as it swelled the fusion vote in Nebraska. Bryan is the only Presidential candidate Nebraska has had and the only one it is to have in the near future. Naturally many Nebraskans were unwilling to see him slaughtered at home and deprived of the nomination he is striving to get. State pride, however, did not give Nash his great majority.

The bare figures which record the Republican victory in Ohio do not reveal the greatness and thoroughness of that victory. It was won in the teeth of heavy city losses due to the malignant feuds of party leaders or to acute discontent with local bosses. Cuyahoga County was demoralized by the McKisson-Hanna strife. The Republican party in Hamilton County has on its neck, in Boss Cox, such an Old Man of the Sea as Boss Lorimer is in Cook County. Dislike for Boss Cox swept away the Republican majority. The Bushnell-Kurtz disaffection lost the Republicans over 550 votes in Bushnell's county.

But these city losses, which would have been almost inevitably fatal to the Republicans had a light vote been polled throughout the State, were more than made good, as has happened on some other occasions, by Republican gains in the country districts and in cities where there were no bosses and no soreheads. There was a heavy registration and a correspondingly heavy vote. The result is that in spite of all losses due to local causes Ohio gave a larger Republican majority, after having watched the McKinley administration for two and a half years, than it gave McKinley himself when he was running for the Presidency. The verdict is "well done, thou good and faithful servant."

The Ohio returns prove beyond question that the voters of that State have no affection for free silver and that the Democratic clamor about "imperialism" has not caused them to turn their backs on the President's policy concerning the Philippine Islands. They prefer his policy to that which has the approval of Bryan and Aguinaldo. Undoubtedly that great prosperity which Ohio farmers and wage-workers are enjoying now contributed to the size of the Republican majority. The party in power always fares better when times are good. But the underlying, prepotent cause of the Republican triumph is the strong preference of the voters for Republican principles and policies to those policies which the Democrats put in their platform and advocated on the stump.

Ohio and Iowa, speaking for all the States of the middle West, have repudiated the issue on which Bryan made his canvass in 1896 and the one on which he hoped to make it in 1900. Those States are for the establishment of the gold standard and the suppression of the Philippine insurrection and the establishment of good government in the islands. Bryan has saved Nebraska and probably his nomination. But where can he find in Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Iowa, South Dakota, or Kansas election returns a sweet assurance of his election?

LISTEN TO THE LEADERS.

Above the roar of election returns sound the shrill voices of the political leaders, explanatory and prophetic. They look at the same result from different angles. One sees an elephant. The other declares it to be only a mouse. To the average citizen, not under the influence of politics, their contradictory statements are both pathetic and amusing.

Richard Croker, with a sweeping Republican majority in the State staring him in the face, sees only the miserable little plurality of 336 votes against his arch enemy, Mazet, and declares it to be "a great victory for the people and a vindication for the city." He even goes so far as to predict that "our victory will have a good effect in the coming national fight."

Croker, posing as spokesman for the people and basing national predictions on the foreseen result in one legislative district, excites a smile. Having slain Cock Robin he is certain that the bald-headed eagle will fall a victim to his bow and arrow. He forgets entirely that the West now decides national elections.

From the cornfields comes the voice of an oracle, blind in one eye. Bryan sees only the fusion victory of Nebraska and that is "a protest against the policy of the national administration."

"Mr. Bryan would not express himself on the results outside this State," says the correspondent. The correspondent was unfeeling to ask that he should do so. When a hungry dog has found a bone, no matter how small, he should be allowed to gnaw it without interruption.

There is even a fly in Senator Hanna's Ohio ointment. "Golden Rule" Jones has carried the Senator's home county. That, the Senator admits, "is not pleasant." Then, like a wise politician, he hastens to gloat over the victory in the State.

Infinitely more pathetic than any spoken words is the deep silence of Colonel Henri Watterson of Louisville, Ky. The Colonel has been walking a slack wire during the campaign. He has been obliged to stop at frequent intervals and put resin on his feet. He has pleaded, and threatened, and wept under double-column heads in the Courier-Journal and has predicted that the soil of Kentucky would run red with the blood of her sons on election day. Most strenuously of all he has insisted that Goebel must, would, and should be elected Governor.

Goebel is defeated. The Legislature may be Republican. Election day passed off with less than the normal amount of blood. Colonel Watterson is immersed in a deep but judicious silence. He sits with bowed head under the grateful shade of his mint bed, a pathetic yet still an heroic figure.

HARD WORDS FROM OUIDA.

Admirers of Ouida's novels will be heart-broken to learn that she holds an extremely poor opinion of the United States. Though Mlle. de la Ramée is half English by birth, she is wholly French in temperament and sympathies, and she has little use for either Britons or Americans except as customers to whom to sell her novels. Ouida has always been deeply interested in Italy, and she has written for the latest number of the Nuova Antologia an essay on "The Decadence of the Latin Races," in which she devotes herself largely to showing that it is the Anglo-Saxon races that are decaying. She takes issue with a recent essay by Professor Sergi in which he praised the modern movement of social and industrial life in England and the United States. After twitting England on its money aristocracy and on its liability to be starved out in fifteen days by a European coalition, she pays her addresses to the Americans in these terms:

> Since the United States has abandoned its wise doctrine of non-intervention in foreign affairs its national life resembles that of the English; it is full of vanity, prepotence, hypocrisy; and now it is also bellicose. The thirst for gold is consuming the nation. There is not a country in the world where the contrast between the rich and the poor is so terrible; there is not another where the millions are dissipated with equal selfishness nor with more terrible carelessness. Lynch law in all its horrors dominates in a number of the States and corruption prevails everywhere to so tremendous an extent that public life is poisoned throughout its whole being wherever it manifests itself.

Ouida's exuberant imagination has never been questioned, and it scarcely needed this new example to make her reputation secure on that score. One likes her better, however, when she confines her imaginative powers to the realms of romantic fiction. This incursion into the domain of political fiction may be interesting, but it is not edifying. What Ouida does not know about the United States would fill a Bibliothek National, but it is to be hoped she will not use this large fund of materials to any large extent. Her sizzling pen can be much better employed in describing the hot loves and fierce hatreds of the men and women she puts into her interesting novels.

The cause for this Frenchwoman's dislike need not be looked for any farther back than the Spanish war. She is simply uttering the sentiments of the French sympathizers with Spain when she talks about intervention in foreign affairs and the rest. America has not abandoned its "wise policy of non-intervention" any more than it has always done in the past when honor and self-preservation demanded it. The crime of "thirst for gold" is not different from the same thing in France or elsewhere, save that we work harder and create more wealth. The charge of selfishness is answered by the charities that proclaim the United States the most liberal-handed nation in the world. The impetuous Ouida should add to her imagination temperance, and to temperance truthfulness, and to truthfulness a little amiability.

WATTERSON AND THE KENTUCKY ELECTION.

Colonel Henri Watterson has occupied many unique situations in past political campaigns, but none more unique than that he has occupied in the campaign which closed on Tuesday last. At the outset his support of Goebel was of the most perfunctory kind. It required much intellectual ingenuity to explain it, as Goebel represented a policy to which Watterson has been unrelentingly opposed.

He supported the candidate but not the platform. He excused his advocacy of the man because he would rather have a Democrat elected Governor than a Republican. When he was charged with inconsistency he retorted that, while the election of Goebel would be a calamity, the election of Taylor would be a greater one. He was choosing the lesser of two evils. When he was charged with seeking personal advantage he called his accusers liars. Neither the election of Goebel nor that of Taylor would make a difference of a penny to him. The Louisville and Nashville road would be operated just the same in either case and the world would wag on in the old way.

Apparently, like Mark Tapley, Colonel Watterson had decided to be jolly under any circumstances. On the day before election, however, his jollity deserted him. He conjured up a perfect nightmare of horrors. The Republican citizens of Louisville had organized a mob of assassins who were to be turned loose upon the community. They had urged the burning of the Courier-Journal office and the murder of Henry Watterson and Walter N. Haldeman, its editor and publisher. They had threatened the Mayor, the Democratic officers of election, and the Democratic members of the Committee of Safety with death. "Finally, they threaten the city itself and all good citizens with riot, conflagration, and murder." All this was to be done by the bold, bad Republicans.

The day of election passed. Louisville was the most quiet city in the State. The Republicans did not murder any one, did not provoke a riot, did not burn any property. The Courier-Journal office stands intact and Colonel Watterson works at his desk, sound in limb and wind. The Louisville and Nashville road is still operated. Watterson should be the happiest man in Kentucky, for it does not make a penny's difference to him who is elected. He is relieved from any further perfunctory support of his candidate. Upon the face of the returns Taylor is elected. But the Returning board is Democratic. If it counts Taylor out, what will Colonel Watterson do?

COLONEL BRYAN will perceive that he has failed to talk "imperialism" to death.

IN the local elections in Kansas the Democrats were generally corn-cropped under last Tuesday.

THE result in Massachusetts at large may be taken as a vote of want of confidence in Boston.

BY a stiff majority Mississippi has voted to quarantine against imperialism.

THE closeness of the vote in Kentucky leaves a harrowing suspicion in the mind that the Hon. C. Porter Johnson was not called there soon enough.

BILLY MASON has read the election returns from Ohio, and his blush extends from ear to ear.

AT an early hour yesterday morning Mr. McLean of Ohio drove the bung tightly in his bar'l again.

THE valued Memphis Commercial-Appeal still insists that Senator Billy Mason's resignation has a steel rope securely fastened to it. Couldn't something be done with a file of the Congressional Record?

A NEW psycho-medical paper called the Field of Progress has sprung into being at Toronto. It seems, however, to have been started in the interest of Terewth.

IT appears to have been decided that the correct pronunciation of Goebel is Dennis.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Extreme of Hero Worship.

"Well," sighed the spinster, looking at her pet canary, "Dewey," as he frisked about in his cage, "I suppose I'll have to get a mate for him now."

Something Lacking in Both.

"Ah, Harold," said the leading lady, "if you could make love in your own proper person half as well as you do when you are playing 'Romeo' you would be quite irresistible."

"Perhaps I could," sulkily replied the young man, "if you were half as attractive in your own proper person as you are when you are made up for 'Juliet.'"

One Unmoved Hearer.

"The slow but sure decay of the Latin races," remarked the lecturer on ethnology, "cannot but awaken the profoundly sympathetic interest of the student."

"I wish they would decay a little faster," muttered one of the listeners, a bullet-headed young man with cropped hair, "and take their blamed old Latin language along with them!"

Frightful Alternative.

"George is a nice fellow," mused Arabella, "and looks splendid in his Lieutenant's uniform, in spite of the fact that he lost one of his arms in Cuba. And Harry is a nice fellow, too, although he is an agent for one of these hated trusts. It is a hard thing to be compelled to choose between a one-armed man and an octopus!"

Outgrows It.

"Paw," asked Tommy, "what becomes of a cowboy when he grows up?"

"I presume he becomes a horseman, my son," replied Mr. Tucker. "Don't bother me with foolish questions."

At Bay.

Mr. Meeker had stood it longer than usual this time, and he decided to assert himself.

"My dear," he said to Mrs. Meeker, as she paused for breath, "if there is any truth in this idea of reincarnation, I know what you were before you became a human being. You were a powder mill."

A Crusher.

"Do you think," said his elder sister, with cutting sarcasm, "you'll ever find anybody who wants to marry a man as bowlegged as you are?"

"Do you think," he retorted, with equal scorn, "there are no knock-kneed women?"

And the Incident Closed.

"This," said the man in the mackintosh, "is the beastliest weather——"

"Since dog days," interrupted the man who had his feet on the table.

Sig. Foli, the opera singer, who died recently in England, was planning to retire from the stage and spend his remaining days in the United States.

Mrs. Gully, wife of the Speaker of the House of Commons, has the invidious task of dispensing tickets for seats in the select portion of the ladies' gallery in the House.

APES WAYS OF ANCIENT KINGS.

A correspondent of the Manila Freedom wrote from San Fernando, Sept. 20:

"It is understood here that the American prisoners of war held by Aguinaldo are to be turned over to our troops today. Up to noon no word had been received of their arrival at any point along the line, but from the nature of the proposal it is hardly possible that the insurgents would break word in this matter.

"I learn today that the freeing of the prisoners was the result of a feast and a general rejoicing at the Filipino capital, occasioned by the baptism of Aguinaldo's youngest child, an infant girl. The child is the second born to the rebel chieftain, and she claims Tarlac as her birthplace, and was born in that town some six weeks ago.

"On the 31st of August she was baptized according to the custom in the Catholic Church, and there was great rejoicing in the government house. General Gregorio Pilar, formerly a commanding General in the Filipino army, now an official of the civil government, is the baby's godfather, and a sister of Aguinaldo's wife her godmother.

"After a great feast and a general celebration according to native custom, Aguinaldo was struck with the idea that the occasion would be made most memorable by the freeing of all prisoners in his domain. So, as did the Kings of old on like occasions, he has thrown wide all the prison doors, and bade the good, the bad, and the indifferent to walk forth free men.

"Some little time was consumed in gathering together at the point nearest the rebel capital and the American lines. All the Americans scatter throughout the rebel country, hence the delay in making known his intentions to the American army. According to his three emissaries, the Americans are now all at a point close to the American lines, and are ready to come in at once. As the messengers in were returned to their own people yesterday morning, it seems more than probable that some picket post will be the scene of great rejoicing this afternoon."

Commenting on the foregoing, the Freedom said editorially:

"There would be, really, nothing extraordinary in a move of this kind on Aguinaldo's part, considering the traditions of Oriental races and his education. He had reason to be extremely unctuous when his second child was christened. He was surrounded by friends and jollity; wine added to the festal occasion; exhilarations and friends may have led him to do just the sort of thing recorded, but, however that may be, the next day or two will decide the matter."

ONE BRITON'S VIEW OF BOERS.

Douglas Story, who was at one time editor of a Boer newspaper, the Standard and Diggers' News, writes to the London Mail some of his impressions gained in contact with the people of the Transvaal. He points out that it is difficult for any one who has not lived with the Boers to realize how absolute must be their astonishment at all they have seen and suffered recently—death dealt by a hidden battery three miles distant, men moving to the attack with the remorselessness of a machine, but with the intelligence of the shrewdest witkop among them, the awful energy of the spiteful lances when the fight is done and stricken men seek shelter. It is the revelation of the most modern developments of military science to a conventicle of Covenanters.

Speaking of John Koch, Mr. Story says: "I remember him as I last saw him, on Dingaan's day, 1896, standing on the sacred mound of Paardekraal—a commanding figure, with flowing beard and wideopen, hunter's eyes—and his words come back to me.

"He was addressing the assembled burghers on the great quinquennial celebration of the Boers' most glorious victory. I quote from my notes made at the time: 'Compared with the great peoples of the earth our folk are a small household. But we have the blood of our forefathers in our veins and in our hearts. These sufficed to crush the Zulus at Blood River, and, while we remain true to their principles we need have no fear. It is not for us to dwell too long on the glories of our past. It is for us to do our duty in the present. It is for you burghers to do your duty to the State and to guard its peace.' Other speakers made orations; Koch spoke shortly, as a soldier and a patriot. But no man was cheered more loudly on his down-sitting."

Mr. Story recalls a time in 1896 when he was a guest at supper in Johannesburg with Ben Viljoen, who was dressed in his silver-braided uniform of the West Rand Vrywilligers. At the table were Sarel Eloff, the President's grandson, and Piet Grobler, the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. It was a merry party, and the talk was all of the kindness Eloff and Grobler had sustained at the hands of the rooineks on the occasion of their visit, a few weeks before, to England to give evidence at the trial of Dr. Jameson.

They drank the Queen's health upstanding, and young Eloff laughingly, yet proudly, told how the Prince of Wales had stopped him at a Colonial Institute reception to ask after his grandfather's health. The dark field of Elandslaagte cast no prophetic shadow over that gay supper table in the Johannesburg Frascati, and neither Majuba nor Glencoe was in the thoughts of any.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S WHAT.

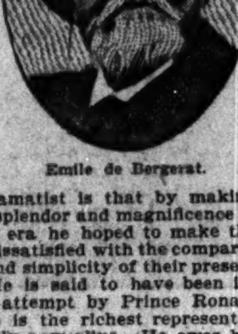

GREATEST VETERAN IN SOUTH AFRICA.—It is more than doubtful if any of the soldiers in south Africa have seen as much actual war service as Melton Prior, who goes out as a war correspondent. In that capacity he is a veteran of twenty-one campaigns. During the fifteen years beginning in 1872 he saw actual fighting in every year but one. In addition, it is not likely that any officer in Sir Redvers Buller's command has as thorough a knowledge of south Africa as this same noncombatant. Mr. Prior went all through the Boer war of 1881 and in addition has been at the front during Kaffir, Zulu, and Basuto wars in south Africa. He has been twice around the world, has explored Iceland, and knows all Europe as most men know the square on which they live. In addition to being an accomplished writer Mr. Prior is a talented artist. He represents in south Africa the oldest illustrated paper in the world.

SOCIALIST GAINS IN BERLIN.—It is reported by cable that at the recent municipal elections in Berlin the Socialists gained six new members in the City Council. The City of Berlin is already represented in the Reichstag by a solid Socialist delegation, though the Socialists have never been able to get control of the City Council. This is due to the fact that in the municipal elections a system of plural voting prevails, the electors having one, two, or three votes each, according to the amount of property they own. The wealthy classes are not generally Socialists, and, therefore, the latter are outvoted. In the elections for members of the Reichstag, on the contrary, each elector has one vote, and the Socialists being numerically superior send men of their own choosing to the National Assembly.

FRENCH DRAMATIST IS CHARGED WITH TREASON.—Because he wrote the play "More than Queen," which is now being produced in this country, M. Emile de Bergerat is now charged with complicity in the royalists' plots to overthrow the French republic. The play glorifies the career of the first Napoleon, dwelling chiefly on the heroic side of the character of the Empress Josephine. The charge against the dramatist is that by making prominent the splendor and magnificence of the Napoleonic era he hoped to make the French public dissatisfied with the comparative plainness and simplicity of their present government. He is said to have been inspired in this attempt by Prince Ronald Bonaparte, who is the richest representative of the family now alive. He owes his great wealth to the fact that he is a part owner of the great gambling tables at Monte Carlo, having married a daughter of old Blanc, founder of the gambling-house. Prince Roland has not, however, been recognized by the other members of the Bonaparte family, who look upon him as a spurious Prince.

WAR PREDICTED BY ASTROLOGISTS.—It appears that the present war in the Transvaal was plainly predicted by English astrologers. In the number of Modern Astrology for January, 1899, this prediction is made:

"We have no hesitation in now saying that the climax of 1899 will be a great war. Africa, as ruled by this sign (Mars), will be the cause of great bloodshed and a great disturbance of the universal peace."

ANTI-ENGLISH LEADER IN FRENCH CHAMBER.—Eugene Etienne, who is now posing as the anti-English leader in the French House of Deputies, has had a long and distinguished career as a public man. He is now 55 years old. In early manhood he served as Inspector General of the state railroads. In 1881 he was first elected a Deputy, serving three terms. In 1888 he became Secretary of State for the Colonies, which position he held for three consecutive years. In 1892 and again in 1894-'95 he was chosen Vice President of the Chamber of Deputies. He is a Republican in politics and a man of great influence with the present government, particularly in the Department of Foreign Affairs. His open and bitter attacks on the policy of England are therefore significant.

AUSTRIAN PRINCESS TO MARRY GERMAN DUKE.—From Paris comes word of the engagement of the little Archduchess Elizabeth of Austria to Prince Duke Ulrich of Würtemberg, who is a Lieutenant in the King William regiment of Uhlans. The Princess is only 16 years old, her future husband be six years older. She is the only daughter of the Archduchess Stephanie, widow of the Crown Prince Rudolph, whose own engagement to Count Lonyay has been recently announced. It is believed that the marriage of the mother has been postponed until she can see her daughter settled for life as the wife of the young German Duke. They will be married in January, soon after which time the Crown Princess is expected to unite her fortunes with those of Count Lonyay.

WHY NEW YORK HOLDS ITS BREATH.—Now that the election is over the attention of New York is breathlessly concentrated on the coming horse show. For this event several surprises are promised. Chief and foremost among them is the coaching coat which will be worn for the first time on earth by Aurel Batonyi, whose mission in life is to teach the correct and proper method of driving a four-in-hand coach. M. Batonyi gave his tailors a free hand in constructing this epoch-making garment. The result of their labors he is willing, with all due modesty, to submit to the discriminating judgment of the Gotham public. M. Batonyi claims for his coat that there never was a garment like it in the world, which claim he has so far found no one rash enough to dispute. It fits his figure perfectly above the waist. It is from the waist down that it is said to surpass all other creations of the sartorial art. It hangs down to within six inches of the ground, falling into folds each of which represents a day's hard study on the part of his English tailor. The coat is made of a hard finish cloth, black and gray in color, and is finished with large buttons of real smoked pearl.

ROMANCE OF THE SYMONS FAMILY.—There is a curious romance connected with the family of the late General Sir William Symons, the first British general officer to fall in the south African war. In 1780 the great-grandfather of the dead officer mysteriously disappeared, and the estate was about to pass into the hands of strangers when a claimant appeared. He was the son of a man who had lived for years in Liverpool, working there as a day laborer. The claimant, who was the grandfather of General Symons, succeeded in establishing his claim, and was recognized as the rightful heir to the property. The late General was created a knight in 1898.

SHE WAITS NEWS OF HER HUSBAND.—While all England waits news of Sir Redvers Buller's campaign in south Africa, one woman waits and watches with an anxiety which is personal as well as patriotic. Lady Aubrey Buller, who was married to General Sir Redvers Buller in 1882, is the daughter of the Marquis of Townsend. In 1873 she married the Hon. Greville Howard, who died in 1880, leaving her with four children. The country seat of Sir Redvers and Lady Aubrey Buller is the Downs, Devon, though they have spent comparatively little of their married life there, the duties of the General taking him away from home and out of England much of the time. Though Sir Redvers is noted as the sternest of disciplinarians and the most relentless of foes, his home life is said to be beautiful, and he is reported as spending his leisure hours in gardening and other bucolic pleasures.

ORGANIST TAKEN FOR AN ENGLISH SPY.—Sir George Martin is normally the dignified and gray-haired organist of St. Paul's Cathedral in London. Several weeks ago he went out to south Africa to conduct some musical examinations in Cape Town. His work over, he determined to run up into the country and see a bit of the Transvaal. During his trip the talk of war became violent, and the wary Boers got an idea into their heads that Sir George Martin was a British spy masquerading as a musician. They put detectives on the trail, and finally detained him for some days in Pretoria to await developments. Finally, just before President Kruger's ultimatum was made public, the authorities gave him his liberty. Sir George took advantage of the opportunity, and has just arrived in London, overjoyed at his good fortune at getting away so easily.

BEAUTIFUL DAUGHTER SAVES HER FATHER.—Arton, the cunning tool of the greater conspirators in the famous Panama bribery scandals, has recently been released from a French prison, after serving four of the five years to which he was sentenced. His pardon is due to the untiring efforts of his daughter, Mlle. Arton, whose beauty and earnestness have both been factors in enlisting the aid of prominent statesmen and journalists. When the Panama bubble was pricked Arton, who had been warned, disappeared from Paris. Secret service agents followed him all over Europe, and finally he was run to earth and arrested in London. Of the chief witnesses against him one was poisoned and another died at an opportune time, so he escaped with a comparatively light sentence. Arton at one-time claimed that two-thirds of all the French Deputies and Senators were in his pay.

The Sprague-Warner Public Nuisance.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I heartily commend your editorial in today's paper regarding the obstruction of the sidewalk by Sprague, Warner & Co. It reminds me of an experience of my own about a year ago. Returning from a bicycle trip, coming south on Michigan avenue, my wife, myself, and two friends were stopped about 100 feet north of Randolph street by a complete blockade of teams. Both sides of the street were occupied by teams loading or unloading, and the center lines were temporarily at a standstill. As it was impossible to proceed and dangerous to remain in the street we dismounted and took to the east sidewalk. There we were greeted by a brutal order from the policeman on duty at the crossing, to take "them wheels" off the sidewalk, which order he emphasized by pounding with his club on the patrol box. On my calling his attention to the condition of the street he said: "It don't make no difference, wheels have no more rights than wagons." At that time the entire front of Sprague, Warner & Co.'s store was blocked, both the street and sidewalk. I wrote to the Chief of Police and suggested that the officer should do something to keep that sidewalk clear, instead of insulting bicyclists, but did not receive the slight courtesy of a reply. Yours very truly,

WILLIAM M. BOOTH.

MacVeagh Is Also a Trespasser.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your remarks on "Trespass on a Street," by Sprague, Warner & Co., leads the writer to inquire why Franklin MacVeagh & Co. are permitted to "trespass on the sidewalk" along their entire Lake street frontage. This walk is continually obstructed with platforms, planks for trucking purposes, skids, etc. Mr. Franklin MacVeagh has always been opposed to the few enjoying liberties at the expense of the many, and why the many should be compelled to indulge in hurdle exercise whenever they choose to avail themselves of their pedestrain rights on Mr. Mac's Lake street walk is something I would like to have construed with that gentleman's political catechism. Yours truly,

CHARLES W. MARKUS.

Pleased with the Summary.

Dewey's "Propitious Hour."

New York Times: Not until the Bureau of Navigation thought of it did it occur to anybody to attempt to add to the glory of any other officer or officers of the navy by minimizing the glory of the victory of Admiral Dewey at Manila.

Rear Admiral Crowninshield, in his annual report to the Secretary of the Navy, does this. It was not a graceful thing to do, and its gracelessness is not made more acceptable when it is found to be unnecessary.

Dewey, according to some accounts, does not owe his opportunity for fame at Manila to the favor of the Bureau of Navigation. His own statement, made prior to his departure, was that he desired the appointment. Senator Proctor supported it. The latter fact is important.

To allude to Dewey's success in obtaining reward for himself and his officers as being the outcome of a victory won in a "more propitious hour" than that of Santiago suggests a painful sensitiveness to the defeat of the bureau in the Senate, a loss of vision in other directions, and an unfortunate disregard of the popular belief and the opinion of the President that Dewey's victory "was without flaw."

If the Bureau of Navigation expects to win a victory for itself and its favorites in the Senate by reflections upon that body, supported by disparagement of the importance of Dewey's work at Manila, the press of the country may yet be called upon to record an unpropitious hour for the job to which it has devoted itself since the battle of Santiago.

Not Like Mayor Warner.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

DELIGHTFUL CHRISTMAS STORY BY THOMAS NELSON PAGE.

"Santa Claus' Partner" He Has Written a Tale Full of Genuine Sentiment—A Rich and Crusty Bachelor and a Jolly Little Girl Are the Chief Characters—Sidney Lanier's Letters Show the Southern Poet's Love of Music.

THOMAS NELSON PAGE has written a charming and dainty Christmas story called "Santa Claus' Partner" (Scribner). It is not entirely for children or entirely for grown-ups, but is for everybody with a heart or with a place where a heart ought to be. Both in motive and in feeling it reminds one of Dickens' famous "Christmas Carol," but the Scrooge of this story is converted from his hard-hearted ways by a sweet and thoroughly human little girl. The book is a new and triumphant proof of Mr. Page's powers both as an artist in tender sentiment and as an adept in the delineation of character.

The story opens with a vivid word picture of Berryman Livingstone, "a successful man, a very successful man," as he sits in his fine office on Christmas eve and contemplates the seven figures which represent how much he is "worth" at the present moment. His hard-worked clerks are eager to get home, but he has ordered them to stay, and he sits there in smug contemplation far into the evening.

Suddenly the bright-eyed little daughter of Livingstone's faithful chief clerk enters on tiptoe and merrily creeps up behind her father in the outer office, blindfolding him with her hands, and making him guess who the aggressor is. The scene is delightfully depicted. When she finds that her father cannot fulfill his promise to decorate the Christmas tree there are tears, and the smug Mr. Livingstone, who has witnessed the scene, goes home to his grand and empty house in an inexplicable temper.

Mr. Page has found many new ways to shown how unpleasant it must be to be a Scrooge, but the most startling is the trick which those seven figures of Livingstone's bank account have of appearing as on a screen or a lantern slide before his eyes every time he thinks of money. This uncanny vision comes between him and the portraits of his father and mother and shuts him off from the woman he loved in his generous days. The author describes most successfully the disquieting reflections that finally send the lonely bachelor out in his sleigh late that night to seek and "borrow" the little girl of the dancing eyes and to make amends for his selfishness. How little Kitty Clark becomes Santa Claus' partner on a grand scale, and how Livingstone's lost youth and lost love are found in the festivities of that Christmas time are the chief theme of the story. The spectral figures vanish from before Livingstone's eyes when he opens his heart and learns what it means to have a child's arms around his neck.

The story abounds in touches of exquisite feeling. It is at once a wholesome sermon against the hardening influences of business life and a delicate and simple bit of idealized human nature. The illustrations in colors by Glackens are as full of action and genuine life as are Mr. Page's characters.

That Sidney Lanier was a musician before he was a poet, and that his strongest impulses were always towards music, is amply revealed in the new volume of "Letters of Sidney Lanier" (Scribner). The letters to Mr. Peacock, editor of the Philadelphia Bulletin, though friendly, are not particularly illuminating, except as they reveal the poet's pecuniary embarrassment and some domestic events. And even the "letters between two poets," being those addressed to and received from Bayard Taylor, have a technical rather than a human interest. But in the letters to his wife—those that record his musical impressions—we see the real man and the inspired artist. To be sure, they were addressed to one who was herself a source of inspiration and who was the subject of that exquisite poem, "My Two Springs," and as we read their quaint and naive expressions of affection we realize that in Lanier's heart music and love were closely akin.

This is how he expresses the effect that a bath in "the sweet amber seas" of a Thomas concert had upon him:

Ah! the dear flutes, and oboes, and horns drifted me hither and thither, and the great violins and small violins swayed me upon waves and overflowed me with strong lavations, and sprinkled glistening foam in my face, and in among the clarionets, as among waving water lilies with flexible stems, I pushed my easy way, and so, ever lying in the music waters, I floated and flowed, my soul utterly bent and prostrate.

He speaks of his flute as if it were a live thing: "The instrument begins to feel me, to grow lithe under my fingers, to get warmed to life by my kiss, like Pygmalion's stone, and to respond with perfect enthusiasm to my calls. It is like a soul made into silver. How can the people but respond if I have its exquisite innerself speaking by my lips!" His accounts of how the people did respond fill one with regret at not having heard so fine an artist.

Lanier was a constant traveler, owing to the ill-health that was always driving him to warmer climates. But occasionally he tasted the joys of possessing a hearthstone, and that he was not unmindful of such blessings he reveals in a letter to Mr. Peacock. "I confess," he declares, "I am a little nervous about the gas bills, which must come in in the course of time; and there are the water rates, and several sorts of imposts and taxes; but, then, the dignity of being liable for such things is a supporting consideration. No man is a Bohemian who has to pay water rates and a street tax."

Sidney Lanier will never be a "widely read" writer, but among the lovers of poetry his fame is constantly growing. Though these letters do not throw much new light upon the man they reveal the fact that he was one of those rare spirits whose lives are in accordance with the ideals expressed in their art.

Fresh Literary Notes

Two important books about to be published by the Messrs. Appleton are John Sartain's "Reminiscences of a Very Old Man, 1808-1897," and the "History of American Privateers," by Edgar Stanton Maclay, the author of "A History of the United States Navy."

Stevenson's Samoan estate, Vailima, has been sold to a wealthy German for $15,000. Stevenson was not particularly friendly toward the Germans in Samoa, but perhaps his spirit may be appeased by the purchaser's name, which is Kunst. Art gave and art has taken away.

DECIDES TO RETIRE FROM PRESIDENCY OF CHICAGO Y. W. C. A.

Desire for Rest and Freedom from Responsibility Induces Her to Relinquish an Official Relation Which Has Existed Uninterruptedly for Twenty-three Years—Letter to Be Presented to the Board of Directors Today—She Talks of the Home.

After twenty-three years of uninterrupted service as President of the Board of Directors of the Young Woman's Christian Association of Chicago Mrs. Leander Stone will retire from the active management of the association. Desire for rest and freedom from responsibility she assigns as the reasons for her action. The following letter will be presented this morning to the board at the annual meeting of the association at the home, 288 Michigan avenue:

To the Young Woman's Christian Association of Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sisters: After twenty-three years of service, since the organization of the association, I now desire to withdraw my membership from the association, to take effect at the close of my official year. It is little that I have done myself, yet God, working through such humble means, has seen fit to bless the work abundantly. At this most important parting of the ways, I can consistently say in the divine presence that I see nothing in the years gone by which I would, if I could, change in the administration of the affairs of the association; and I trust in the day of reckoning to hear the divine verdict: "She hath done what she could." This work of love I now consign to the care and direction of others, praying our Heavenly Father to continue to bless, prosper, and protect it from all evil. Affectionately,

MRS. LEANDER STONE.

Mrs. Stone's resignation will not come as a surprise. Her desire to lay down the work has long been known.

"I do not expect to be idle," she said yesterday. "Running parallel with this work I have had other pleasant lines of interest, which I may continue. I leave the work in a flourishing condition. It is no longer an experiment, but a pronounced success. By the end of the year we shall have cleared off $33,000 of debts since the building was completed in 1895. There will remain a trifle over $100,000 to be paid in five years. The home is self-supporting."

The Young Women's Christian association of Chicago was organized in 1876. Mrs. E. L. Clarke was the first President. The first home was at 1614 Wabash avenue, and sheltered thirty young women during its first year. During the year just ending 5,000 young women have found temporary or permanent homes with the association.

STUDY FRENCH AND SPANISH.

Night School Pupils Choose Modern Languages—Reports Received on Damage and Thefts.

French and Spanish are the modern languages which will be taught in the night high schools, one being permitted in each school upon demand of fifteen pupils. Reports of the schools which opened on Monday evening indicate that the demand for French exceeds that for Spanish. Cause for the desire for French has been found in the Paris exposition and for the Spanish in the American colonies.

Figures of attendance for the night schools for the opening exceed the figures of last year as far as reports have been received, but principals reckon upon a falling off after the first few nights.

The damage done to school property and thefts of books, etc., by night school pupils has been reported by day principals to the superintendent, who said that the best prevention would be to put in the proper men as principals. It is stated that the only method of protecting the day pupils against the night pupils is to remove all their possessions from the desks and put them under lock.

"I hope," said President Harris, "that none of these night pupils have broken up school property to indicate their dislike of the principals I sent them. I have understood that the pupils maliciously have attacked the schools with axes and picks."

The destruction of property will be an argument against outside principals when the matter of permanent appointments is before the School Management committee.

The attendance at the schools for October was 217,127.

Nineteen women teachers from Marshalltown, Ia., are inspecting the Chicago public schools. In the afternoon they went to Oak Park, and today and tomorrow will devote their time to the city schools.

SHORT STORY OF THE DAY.

Judge Lowell's Adventure.

JUDGE LOWELL chirruped cheerfully and tightened the reins over Juno's back. "Pick up your heels faster than this, miss," he said, addressing himself to the pair of glossy chestnut ears ahead, "and remember, an extra measure of clover grass tonight if you bring up at the Willows before sundown."

The sound of her master's voice, coupled with so fair a promise, for a time inspired Juno to renewed exertions, but the long country road stretched like an arid waste ahead, and before long her efforts, which had been none of the bravest, ceased altogether, and she relapsed into her former easy gait. This flagrant breach of good faith passed, as that animal had sagely calculated, all unnoticed by her master, who, returning home, was meditating upon the events of the day, and paid no further heed to Juno's slackened pace.

A voice, apparently at the Judge's elbow, recalled him, and he leaned forward to see what was wanted, while the opportunity was not lost upon Juno, who had already halted with cheerful alacrity, and now stood, a dusty and perspiring statue.

A woman stood by the roadside, a long linen cape completely enveloping her figure, while on her head was a bonnet of such size as to have gone far toward concealing her features had not that been effectually done by a thick veil. From beneath this a pair of sharp eyes scrutinized him as she inquired how far it might be to Wilton. At his reply that it was some two miles ahead she looked meaningly at the empty seat beside him. "You don't happen to be going that way yourself, and could accomodate a poor woman with a lift, eh?"

The Judge hesitated, while he owned to a feeling as disagreeable as it was also unaccountable. It was not an uncommon request, however, and, ashamed of his seeming rudeness, he politely made way for her beside him. It was then that he understood the feeling that had influenced him, for as she stepped in his keen eye detected that the foot which she drew into the buggy was incased in the stout leathern boot of a man.

Though ordinarily most courageous, for an instant he felt the blood turn cold in his veins as he realized his danger. What was to be done, however; Juno had already started on, and to frame an excuse now would probably result only in arousing the suspicions of his unwelcome guest. Meanwhile she remained silent, evidently not caring to engage in conversation, while the Judge made no effort to do so. Occasionally he perceived her regarding him furtively from behind the folds of her thick veil, a fact which did not tend to allay his suspicions.

It was certainly an unpleasant position in which he found himself. Well known throughout the section as a man of wealth, he now for the first time realized to how many rogues this fact might prove a temptation, and although that portion of the journey which they were steadily approaching lay through dense woods, he had never before calculated the danger which might arise. He was totally unarmed, save for his driving whip, which he carried more for the purpose of flicking flies from Juno's back than for any more active service, and which he now felt offered small chances against the cold muzzle of a revolver which might at any moment be presented. His grasp tightened on this, his only weapon, as he saw the woods through which they must pass growing nearer and nearer. As yet no plan which had presented itself had seemed entirely feasible, but he realized that to delay longer might prove fatal, so he prepared to carry out one which he could only hope would rid him of so suspicious a character. Should he fail, all further attempts he knew would be useless, but he determined to make a noble stand against the rascal, for he was of too fiery a disposition to yield tameless to his insolent demands.

With a deliberate air he took from an inner pocket a notebook which he proceeded to examine leisurely. A moment later a cry of well feigned dismay escaped him as a leaf fluttered from his grasp and rested at some distance on the road. Immediately bringing the carriage to a standstill, he turned a face expressive of great concern to his companion.

"Pardon me, madam, but will you be kind enough to recover the paper for me? It is of vital importance, I assure you."

The woman hesitated and regarded him with evident suspicion. He quietly waited for her to comply, with no trace of the uneasiness which he felt. As she continued to hesitate he turned and repeated his request.

"It was an anxious moment, while each sought furtively to learn the other's mind. She hesitated to comply, yet to refuse to do so meant only to frustrate her own designs, as they were not yet within cover of the woods, where an attack might be safe. The Judge had considered this and the spot was well chosen. A moment more the woman hesitated, while her eye traveled eagerly to the wood, but for an instant only, when she began to descend carefully from the carriage.

The Judge watched her with only careful concern for his paper apparent in his attitude, but scarcely had her feet touched the ground when with terrific force he laid the whip across the back of the astonished Juno. Maddened by the blow, she sprang like a rocket into the air, and then dashed wildly on, while a volley of oaths followed by three pistol shots in rapid succession revealed the fate which had awaited him.

Pursuit was impossible, for Juno held to her pace until the stable door was reached, and it is needless to say her fare that night was regal.—Boston Post.

The New Dress Fits

So does the new name for Washburn's Superlative Flour. The new name both fits the flour and suits the people, since the quality is the same.

For more than 20 years the famous Washburn's Superlative Flour has been a household word in Chicago. This is the flour which in 1880 received the highest award—the gold medal—at the Millers' International Exposition at Cincinnati. It was at this time, and to commemorate the noteworthy Gold Medal Award, that the brand

Washburn's Gold Medal Flour

now universally known, was designed. The fame of the Gold Medal brand of flour spread so rapidly that to-day it is sold in nearly every city and town in the United States, and is used in almost every civilized country in the world—Chicago alone retaining the brand Washburn's Superlative. We want but one brand for our highest grade flour, and have decided to place Washburn's Superlative hereafter under the brand Washburn's Gold Medal. The quality remains the same—unchanged—America's greatest and best bread-maker. ATTORNEY WALKER RIDICULES THE INSANITY TESTIMONY.

Defense Rests with Evidence That John T. Shayne Kissed Mrs. Hammond and Urged Her to Get a Divorce—Special Counsel Begins Arguments by Attacking the "Class Distinction"—Says a Secret Inspired the Shooting.

With the story of a midnight carriage ride of John T. Shayne and Mrs. Hammond, and frequent attempts to impeach the testimony of the furrier, the defense closed its evidence yesterday in the trial of Harry H. Hammond, and Attorney Walker began the arguments for the prosecution. He attacked the insanity plea of the defendant, asserted that Hammond had convicted himself through letters requesting Shayne to smooth out his domestic troubles. He insisted that the defense had based its case on class distinction—that Shayne was a "merchant prince" and Hammond a "poor tailor." Miss Lucy Dewey, who gave the carriage ride testimony, was challenged as not telling the truth.

"This man," declared Attorney Walker, "has claimed insanity when he can't show that he ever consulted a doctor for insanity, and he can't get a doctor to testify that he was insane. They say Shayne should have been shot on general principles! That's the defense! Harry Hammond was afraid the real reason his wife had left him—an illness—would become public. Rather than this he injured the name of the woman. Shayne had Hammond's confession, and that's why Harry Hammond shot John T. Shayne!"

At the morning session President Irwin of the County board, George W. Bolling, R. P. Hickey, and Jacob Goff, after much wrangling, were allowed to state that Shayne had asserted he would spend $100,000 to send Hammond to the penitentiary. Mrs. Christine Van Ostrand, 4827 Madison avenue, and Miss Lucy Dewey, 5 Forty-third street—a relative of Hammond—testified to having seen Mr. Shayne and Mrs. Hammond at the horse show.

"Mr. Shayne kissed Mrs. Hammond," said Miss Dewey in telling of the carriage ride. "He said: 'I love you. Get a divorce from Harry Hammond, and I'll marry you the next day and take you to Europe.'"

A part of the kissing testimony during the trial was given by H. H. McKay, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Hammond, who said it was all right for Mr. Shayne to kiss the women; that Shayne kissed Mrs. McKay, or at least "rubbed noses" with her, and that when Shayne was a guest of witness he could rub noses with Mrs. McKay as often as he wanted to.

Edward Grayson, a former employé of Shayne, said he had secured drinks for him when Mrs. Hammond was in his private office.

In his arguments Attorney Walker said in part:

"We are trying this case on law, not on sentiment. There is no law which permits a man to shoot down another man either for fancied or real wrongs. Some witnesses say Shayne said he would spend $100,000 to convict Hammond. If a man sneaked up behind your back, put a revolver to your head, and shot to kill would you not spend money to prosecute?

"Mentally disturbed is not the test," continued the speaker. "They dared not put witnesses to the supreme test as to whether Hammond was able to choose between right and wrong. Hammond had the elements of a spendthrift. He squandered his $7,500 a year in saloons until he had to shut up his house and go live with his mother-in-law.

"Let's see about this crazy man! He walks in the Auditorium café and shoots Shayne. He tells the waiters and hotel clerk, 'I did it. I don't care to talk about it now. It'll all come out later.' At the police station he says: 'I don't want to talk now. I want to see my counsel.' Marvelous insanity! As Witness Barley said, this insanity defense was arranged in 1898.

"John T. Shayne," said Mr. Walker, in conclusion, "you shall be shot down because you knew the secrets of this man. John T. Shayne, you had the manhood to offer a decent woman against whom he had mouthed stories on the streets of Chicago the protection of your name, and for this you shall be shot down! Shot down by this man, who knew he would plead insanity before the shots were fired."

Mr. Walker will conclude this morning, and then Attorneys Miller and Scanlan will speak for the defense and Assistant State's Attorney Smith will close for the State.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY'S LETTER.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.]

Although I do not for one moment believe that Mrs. Ogden Goelet would permit her daughter May, one of the most wealthy of American heiresses, to wed Prince Henry of Orleans, eldest son of that Bourbon Prince who, under the name of the Duke of Chartres, served on the staff of General McClellan during the war between the North and South of this country, yet, in view of rumors, it may be just as well to explain what the situation of Miss Goelet would be, socially and officially, in the event of her according her hand and her vast fortune to Prince Henry.

This is the more necessary, as in the matrimonial alliances which have already taken place between members of the house of Bourbon and ladies of non-royal birth, including at least two Americans, the pretension has been put forward by the royal relatives of the bridegroom in each instance that his marriage could not be considered in any other light than that of a morganatic union, and that, therefore, the bride could not share her husband's royal rank or title, or transmit these to her children. Now, it must be thoroughly understood that this pretension is altogether untenable in so far as the French members of the Orleans-Bourbon family are concerned.

As I stated the other day in these letters, there is no such thing as morganatic marriage in the French code or provided for by French law. Any marriage contracted in the ordinary fashion, and in accordance with the requirements of common French law, entitles the wife to her husband's name, to any titles that he may possess, and, in fact, endows her with all the privileges and prerogatives of a full-fledged wife. It is the same in Great Britain with English law.

If, therefore, Miss Goelet were to wed Prince Henry of Orleans, either in England or in France, she would become, ipso facto and despite all discussion and protests of the Duke of Orleans or of any other members of the house of Bourbon, a full-fledged Princess of Orleans and every bit as much entitled as himself to the prefix of "Royal Highness."

If I use this sort of qualified expression with regard to the predicate in question it is because it is extremely doubtful whether, according to the ethics of old world royalty and the rules and laws governing questions of this kind at the various European courts, either the Duke of Orleans or his cousin, Prince Henry, has any right whatsoever to describe himself as "Royal Highness."

In Russia, in England, and, in fact, all over Europe, excepting in Austria, it is accepted as a dogma that the royal rank lapses with the third generation from the sovereign. Thus in England the Duke of Connaught is a Royal Highness as a son of Queen Victoria; his son, Prince Arthur, now at Eton, is likewise a Royal Highness as a grandson of the sovereign. But when Prince Arthur marries his children will no longer be royal personages; his eldest son will inherit in course of time his father's and grandfather's dukedom of Connaught.

It is the same in Russia, and during the last century up to the great revolution of a hundred years ago was the same in France.

Now, the present Duke of Orleans and his cousin, Prince Henry of Orleans, are neither of them either the son or the grandson of a sovereign, but they are merely the great-grandsons of King Louis Philippe of France, whom the court of Russia declined to look upon or treat as anything else than a usurper during the whole eighteen years of his reign. The Austrian court took much the same view. For the Ambassador of King Louis Philippe at Vienna, having at a state banquet ventured to compliment Princess Metternich, the young wife of the famous Austrian Chancellor and Premier, upon the magnificent diadem or coronet that she was wearing, received across the imperial dinner table the disconcerting reply: "Yes, at least mine is not a stolen one," implying of course that the Ambassador's sovereign, Louis Philippe, had stolen the French crown from his cousin and benefactor, King Charles X.

On the following day the Ambassador complained officially to the Austrian Chancellor of the public affront to which both his sovereign and himself had been subjected at the state banquet on the previous evening by the Princess. The response of the old Prince was in every respect worthy of the statesman who shared with Talleyrand preëminence in the diplomacy of the nineteenth century.

"My dear Ambassador," quoth he, "I would beg you to observe that although I have loved Princess Melanie Zichy, and have married her, it is not I who am in any way responsible for the education and bringing up which she received."

If, therefore, the Duke of Orleans is conceded the prefix of "Royal Highness" it is merely because, being a pretender and an exile, none of the European courts wishes to make him feel his equivocal status more than is absolutely necessary.

I have no doubt whatsoever that in view of the bad blood which has existed between Prince Henry and the Duke of Orleans ever since the Duke jilted the Prince's sister Marguerite the Duke will place every possible obstacle in the way of any match that might be contemplated between Miss Goelet and Prince Henry, and would certainly protest against her being regarded in any other light than as a morganatic wife, but the Duke has no authority whatsoever in the matter.

Prince Henry does not stand in need of his consent to the marriage, that of his parents being sufficient to meet the requirements of French law, and while many of the European courts might close their doors to Miss May Goelet on account of the reputation of her husband, who has a particularly bad name, they would certainly not pay the slightest attention to any objections proffered by the Duke of Orleans to her assumption of the title and honors of her husband.

Inasmuch as the pretender has not even been able to establish his own title to the French throne, it is, to say the least, premature for him to confer titles and dukedoms upon others. It is a strict rule at European courts that the orders and decorations conferred by ex-sovereigns or pretenders should not be worn, at any rate at court functions, official ceremonies, and anywhere in public. The same rule applies to titles of nobility conferred by ex-sovereigns or pretenders.

Anyhow, for instance, wearing at a European court one of the decorations conferred in so lavish a manner by Don Carlos would expose himself to disciplinary measures, while the titles which he has conferred are a subject of much ridicule and are seldom used by those who have received them. There is no difference whatsoever between the position of Don Carlos and the Duke of Orleans, save that the Don's pretensions to the throne of Spain are, from a legitimist point of view, far superior to those of the Duke of Orleans to the throne of France.

The Duke, therefore, has just as little right to create dukedoms or to confer them as Don Carlos, and were the republican authorities at Paris to make up their mind to enforce the almost forgotten law punishing with imprisonment the usurpation of titles, a law which has become a dead letter in every sense of the word, the Dukes of Vendôme, of Guise, and of Montpensier would all expose themselves to severe penalties in the shape of both fine and imprisonment.

RATES HIT BOND DEALS.

HIGH INTEREST NEARLY PUTS A STOP TO LARGE TRANSACTIONS.

Local Broker Thinks the Stringency Will Be Short-Lived, but the Best Banking Opinion Is That Present Conditions Will Last for Some Time—Undertone of Day's Market Firm—National Biscuit and Diamond Match Furnish the Features.

The high interest rates prevailing for money nearly have put a stop to large transactions in bonds, and dealers in securities of that class are hoping a change will occur in the situation. During the last two months, when the scarcity of money has caused a gradual increase in the interest rates, there have been comparatively few bonds placed. Issues that have been made have been disposed of at about the interest basis of preceding issues, but it is calculated that new lots may have to bear a higher rate, so as to make them sufficiently attractive to investors to create a demand. Banks are not willing during the present condition of the money market to tie up funds in small interest bearing bonds when they readily can obtain higher rates by loaning on commercial paper.

A prominent local bond dealer, discussing yesterday the money situation, said he believed the present stringency in the market would be at an end two or three months hence.

While no one can foretell the course of the financial situation, the best opinions of leading bankers are unanimous that the present conditions will last for some time. They see no signs of any diminution of the demand. No difficulty is experienced in placing commercial loans at 6 per cent, and only occasional concessions, and then of not more than ½ per cent, are made to favored borrowers. Banks are experiencing through these conditions their share of the general prosperity.

Market Undertone Firm.

The Republican victories in the elections on Tuesday had the effect of making the markets stronger yesterday, but most of the advances were lost on realizing from time to time during the day by those who had anticipated the results of the votes. Towards the close the market weakened and the result was a net loss to some of the stocks. The general undertone, however, was firm.

On the local exchange National Biscuit and Diamond Match furnished the features of a day of fair activity. Diamond Match, which had closed the preceding day at 125¾, opened at 126¼, a gain of ½ point. The next sale was at 127, a distinct gain of ¾ of a point, and the stock then advanced, only one sale showing a recession, and that of ⅛ of a point. The high point reached by Match was 128¾, which was also the last quotation. Total sales were made of 845 shares.

National Biscuit common was also traded in extensively, and sold up a trifle. A. W. Green, chairman of the Board of Directors, who has just returned from Europe, speaks encouragingly of the future of the company. The stock opened at 41¾, against a close on the preceding day of 41⅝, and sold upward. The highest point reached was 42¾, at which a lot of 25 shares changed hands. The stock then declined to 42¼, and the last sale was at 42¼. There were total sales of 2,520 shares.

There was a little trading in the Steel stocks, and the traction issues showed more activity.

Much relief is expressed by brokers at the news from New York that Collector Treat of the Second Internal Revenue District there had received instructions from Washington to suspend the collection of the tax on call loans pending a decision by the Attorney General. Collector Treat announced that he would immediately notify those interested in the case that nothing further would be done by the New York office until the Washington authorities had been heard from again. The cost of the tax to Chicago brokers, if this provision of the war revenue measure is sustained, will be large and they are anxious that the Attorney General shall declare it illegal.

HELP FOR THE MONEY MARKET.

Rumor That the Treasury Department Will Retire $50,000,000 in Bonds.

[BY E. W. HARDEN.]

New York, Nov. 8.—[Special.]—There is an unconfirmed story, which has been given credence by many bankers and other business-men, that the Treasury department in Washington will retire $50,000,000 of government bonds through purchase on private offerings. The reason given for this reported intention on the part of the Treasury department is to reduce the outstanding indebtedness, and with it the interest requirements, and at the same time to relieve the stringency of the money market by unlocking this large sum of money now lying idle in the Treasury vaults.

While the story was in fairly general circulation during the day there was no one to confirm the story or to give it an official denial. Such a move would be of considerable consequence to the money market of the country, and it would therefore be looked upon with favor by those whose interests are best conserved by cheap money and a plentiful supply of funds for lending purposes.

The influence of $50,000,000 of additional money on the money markets would be considerable. It would unquestionably have a tendency to lower interest rates materially and to put an end to the present stringency in money. Among those whose interests are in the direction of cheaper and more plentiful money the story was given a fair degree of credence, but among those whose interests were on the other side it was ridiculed. The result of the election was not materially felt in today's stock market.

The prediction had been freely made that the result of Republican victories would be an advance in the quotation for stocks, but this was not verified. Although the elections were looked upon as decided Republican victories, the market opened listlessly, and while there was a fairly strong undertone to market conditions there were declines in several of the active stocks. There were special reasons to be assigned in the majority of the declines shown.

Leather common had another sensational day with a drop of 12 points from high to low, and with a net loss for the day of 9 points. There are no market conditions governing quotations for other stocks, however, which cut any figure in the prices for Leather.

There has been manipulation in the stock by a pool, and it was reported there had been a big short interest accumulated by bears and according to today's reports the bulls squeezed the shorts into a settlement. Whether that is true or not, the pool is credited with having made a big winning out of its manipulation in this stock.

Sugar was weak during the day, selling off 3 points from the highest to the lowest quotation. This decline came along as a renewal of the story that the sugar war had been ended, and that the Havemeyers had finally got into control of the sugar refineries of all the opposition concerns. The story told by the tape, however, was not in entire accord with the report given out by some of the interested people.

The Manhattan Elevated railroad made a singularly bad return in its report given out today of operations for the year ending Sept. 30. The report showed a deficit of $238,360, notwithstanding an increase of $145,418 in net earnings. The Manhattan Elevated recently put out $18,000,000 of new stock to provide funds for the payment of a lot of old judgments hanging over the company, for extension and for a change in motive power from steam to electricity.

Although the money derived from the sale of the new stock has been in the treasury of the company for some months there has been no move made toward the equipping of the line electrically. The company pays dividends upon its increased stock issue, and this called for payments of $360,000 additional dividends during the year covered in the report, while for next year there will be an increase of $720,000 in dividend requirements.

It is reported some of the money has been loaned in Wall street at good rates of interest, though the interest does not show in the company's income account.

Charles T. Yerkes, who is now in New York, said today that he thought there would be in the future a consolidation of the elevated railroads in Chicago. He said, however, that he did not expect any consolidation would be carried into effect until the Northwestern elevated was in operation.

He expressed the belief that after the Northwestern Elevated was in operation there might be a consolidation of that company with the Lake Street Elevated, and that this might be the forerunner of a general consolidation when a basis for consolidation could be agreed upon.

He said further that the Consolidated Traction company could not be secured by the Chicago Union Traction company at the present time on as favorable terms as were offered to the Union Traction company when the New York syndicate secured his holdings of the North and West Side stocks and leased the lines of those systems.

IN THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The stock market started off this morning on an apparently prosperous and animated career of rising prices, but before the trading had ceased this afternoon the early gains were practically all wiped out and a level of lower prices than Monday was established.

Various considerations connected with politics were an influence in the early rise. Thus, the London market was encouraged by the more cheerful news from the beleaguered British forces in south Africa, and prices of stocks were bid up in that market. The Berlin market was pleased with the report that Great Britain had decided to relinquish her claims in Samoa to Germany, and one result of this was to prompt Berlin to buy some American stocks. In this country the relief from the uncertainties of election time and the hope of an easier money market prompted some large buying of stocks, which lifted prices at the outset.

But there were large holdings by professional operators, which had been bought last week in the faith that an outside demand for stocks would develop, and the first hour of the trading was devoted to the selling of these holdings on a large scale to take profits. When it was seen that the buying demand was not continuing in force the sagging tendency set in. Efforts were made to sustain prices by manipulation of special stocks, members of the iron and steel group and the prominent high priced industrials being conspicuous. The violent break in Leather and the heavy selling of Manhattan had an unsettling influence on the whole market, and the stiffening of the money rate and uneasiness over the future of the money market completed the discouragement of the bulls. The organized support which has pushed up Leather for several weeks seemed entirely withdrawn and it was allowed to drop by successive stages to 28, compared with 40 at the close on Monday. A sudden rally in the closing dealings brought the price back to 31.

Manhattan had risen to 111⅛ when the statement for the fiscal year made its appearance, showing a failure to earn the increased dividends paid on account of the addition of stock by a margin of $238,360. This carried the price down to 107⅛, with a final recovery of only ⅛.

The industrials showed marked sympathy in this break and the level of the whole market fell below Monday, the general rally being but feeble.

The fall in sterling exchange rates was a reflection of the hardening money market here, but it gave no hope of relief by gold imports owing to the urgent money need not only in London but at all continental centers. There was evidence, in addition, of renewed pressure upon New York from interior points, New York exchange at Chicago falling from 10c premium to par. New York exchange at New Orleans also fell to an additional discount.

The Subtreasury today showed a credit balance at the clearing-house of over $300,000. Hopes of relief to the New York money market from any quarter were thus dissipated, but the last hour of the market saw an active liquidation of stock holdings, with little demand to meet it.

Prices of bonds were better sustained than those of stocks, but the day's changes were mixed. Total sales, par value, $2,480,000. United States new 4s and the 5s advanced ¼ in the bid price.

Money on call firm at 7@12 per cent last loan, 12; ruling rate, 8. Prime mercantile paper, 5@5½ per cent. Sterling exchange easier, with actual business in bankers' bills at 486¼@486½ for demand and at 483¾@484 for sixty days; posted rates, 487½@488; commercial bills, 482.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

Tendency of Cash and Securities in London, Paris, and Berlin.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram says: The markets here were brisker today than for some time and also more cheerful. Various war rumors were current. It was said in Berlin that Kimberley had been relieved, and on this report Germany bought African mines. The alleged concessions to Germany in Samoa were interpreted favorably. It was thought that compensation to Great Britain might include Delagoa Bay. Consols were 103⅞ in the morning on fears of a higher bank rate. Later opinion on this point changed and consols went to 104¼. Americans began strong on reports of Republican success in the elections, but weakened on New York sales, closing flat on reports of Democratic gains. Spanish fours reached 64⅜ on a vague story from Paris that Russia had bought Ceuta, opposite Gibraltar, for a large sum. Tintos were 46¼@46⅝. Anacondas, 9 11-16. No gold was engaged, but the price was advanced to 77s 10d. There is little in the market. Money was in strong demand, but Paris exchange, despite the strength of London bills, moved 2 centimes in favor of England.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—American securities advanced at the opening and remained steady all day. Business was rather restricted. The final tone was steady. Bar gold, 77s 10d. Spanish 4s, 64¼. Good premium at Buenos Ayres, 138.20.

Consols for money, 103⅝; do for the account, 104¼; Canadian Pacific, 98¼; Erie, 13⅝; Erie first preferred, 39⅜; Illinois Central, 118¼; Union Pacific preferred, 79; St. Paul common, 130⅛; New York Central, 142; Pennsylvania, 68¼; Reading, 11; North Pacific preferred, 79; Atchison, 23⅝; Louisville, 89¼; Grand Trunk, 7¾; Anaconda, 9⅝. Bar silver firmer, 27d per oz. Money, 2½ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 4½ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills, 4½ per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—There was a general recovery of prices on the bourse today, which was encouraged by the lesser probability of a rise in the bank rate and was accentuated by the more favorable war news. Kaffirs made a good advance and were actively bought on English account, affecting the whole list. Internationals were in good demand in sympathy with the sharp rise in Spanish 4s. Rio Tintos started well, but lost the advance later on the easy tone of copper. Mozambiques were especially strong.

BERLIN, Nov. 8.—The rate of private discount was ⅛ harder today, therefore prices on the boerse opened hesitating on apprehensions of further stiffening of money. Later they became firmer on receipt of the news of the agreement between Germany and Great Britain in regard to Samoa. Spanish 4s were good on favorable advices from Paris. Americans and Canadian Pacifics were maintained. Locals were weak, but closed better.

FRANKFORT, Nov. 8.—Prices on the boerse today were favorably influenced by the news received from South Africa and the announcement of the Anglo-German agreement in the matter of Samoa. Portuguese and Mexicans were harder. Americans were firm. Locals fluctuated.

WHEAT OFF ONE CENT.

LOWER CABLES MAKE A WEAK, DISPIRITED MARKET.

Accumulation of Supplies Is Demoralizing to Holders—Better Tone in the Sample Market—Country Purchases of Corn Are Increasing—Shipping Demand Is Moderate—Arrivals of Hogs at Western Markets Less than a Year Ago.

The net loss in wheat yesterday was exactly 1c. The spread between the two active deliveries remained unchanged at a shade under 4c. It was an easy day, with the market ranging under puts most of the time, but the weakness was most pronounced just before the close, and that without any important considerations. The local feeling was influenced by Liverpool, and Liverpool was evidently in turn influenced by the evidences of accumulating supplies everywhere. The local stock is not increasing so rapidly as it did last week, but the stock in public houses will be increased 500,000 bu by the action of the directory in making one of the Bartlett-Frazier houses at South Chicago regular. There will probably be another arbitrary increase next week, when one of the Peavey houses is made regular. Liverpool closed with futures off ½@¾d. Antwerp was unchanged, while Paris quoted an advance on the nearby delivery equal to the decline on the deferred. Berlin was off the equivalent of ⅜c and Buda-Pesth 1½c. Northwestern receipts of 767 cars were heavy as compared with 589 a week ago. Local receipts were light at 85 cars, against 183 a week ago. Primary receipts aggregated 993,000 bu. Clearances were not large, considering that the showing represented in part two days' export.

Dec. Wheat Range.

Elevator People Sell Corn.

The feature in corn was the selling by elevator interests against larger purchases in the West. Country offerings are larger, although there was nothing in yesterday's receipts of 150 cars and the estimate of 200 for today to suggest any great desire on the part of producers to sell. Liverpool was fractionally higher on spot corn, but lower on futures. The shipping demand for corn was not particularly active, and the influence of wheat was, of course, against prices. Closing quotations were the lowest of the day, and showed a net decline of ⅜@½c. New York reported 384,000 bu taken for export.

The price of January pork eased off from $9.82½ to $9.70 at the close. Lard closed just a trifle below the last price of Tuesday and ribs a trifle above. Shipments of lard and meats were fair. Western markets had 79,500 hogs, against 97,000 a year ago. The local market was steady on receipts of 33,000 head and an estimate of 36,000 for today.

The tendency in oats yesterday was slightly downward, closing prices being ⅛@¼c under the last figures of the day before. Receipts were 151 cars, with an estimate of 110 today. Clearances were 101,000 bu.

Rye was entirely neglected and nominally from ½c to 1c lower. No sales were reported in either cash or futures, No. 2 in store being quoted nominally 51c, December 51½@51⅝c, and May 54½c. Business was entirely in changing, at 2⅝c difference between December and May.

There was a soft market in barley, prices being substantially the same as for several days. There were sales of low grade malting at 36½c. The outside price on low grade malting is about 37c, with fair to good quotably 39c to possibly 41c, and choice to fancy about 42@43c.

Practically nothing was done in either timothy or clover, quotations on the former being nominal, at $2.45@2.50 for contract and $2.55 for December. Cloverseed was nominally a shade firmer, without transactions. Flaxseed was a little easier but extremely dull. December ranged from $1.27 to $1.27¾, selling mostly from $1.27 to $1.27¼, and closing $1.27. May sold sparingly, from $1.27¾ to $1.28, closing at the outside. No. 1 Northwestern was quoted $1.28, with Southwestern ½c discount. There were 39 cars here, 64 at Minneapolis, and 84 at Duluth.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

The finding of the committee investigating the affairs of the failed firm of Barrett, Farnum & Co. became generally known on 'Change yesterday and was the basis for considerable discussion. The report was substantially as indicated yesterday, and, in brief, found the senior member of the firm guilty of uncommercial conduct in conducting a business of practically 10,000,000 bu of wheat on a capital of about $30,000. Mr. Barrett has been cited to appear before the directors next Tuesday to answer formal charges presented by the chairman of the committee, who, it is expected, will prosecute the case. Discussing the charges against him Mr. Barrett makes the following statement:

"I have been charged before the Board of Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade with selling on Sept. 18 and 19 of this year more wheat than was warranted by the means at my disposal available for marginal purposes, and have been cited to appear before the directors next Tuesday to answer the charge. This is the first complaint of this character that has ever been filed with the directors of the Board of Trade, although similar cases, with failures resulting from them, have at various times occurred. In no instance of this kind has the party at fault been disciplined or tried for his acts. The action taken so far in my case, I am forced to believe, has been prompted by personal motives and feelings of antagonism to myself. I shall appear before the directors next Tuesday prepared to defend my action, with entire confidence in their fairness and freedom from prejudice of any kind. I most deeply regret that any one has suffered loss by any action of mine, and it will be the aim of my life now, toward which I shall strain every energy, to make good such loss to every friend or customer I had."

The Daily Trade Bulletin estimates the world's supply of breadstuffs Nov. 1 at 191,191,000 bu, as compared with 162,877,000 bu Oct. 1 and 106,886,000 bu Nov. 1, 1898. The increase during October was equal to 28,314,000 bu, compared with an increase of 20,300,000 bu during September and an increase of 14,616,000 bu in October, 1898. The increase in Russia during the month was 4,510,000 bu, against an increase of 6,740,000 bu in October, 1898.

E. W. Burdick has compiled the following statement of the wheat account of the United States from July 1, 1898, to June 30, 1900, according to government records and estimates, and estimates of the most reliable private authorities when official figures are not obtainable:

SUPPLY.

	Bu.
Wheat and flour in second hands July 1, 1898, Trade Bulletin estimate	24,000,000
Wheat in farmers' hands July 1, 1898, according to government estimate	18,000,000
Crop of 1898, final government estimate	675,000,000
Total	717,000,000

DISPOSITION.

Winter and spring seeding, 1898-'99, government estimate of 45,750,000 acres	66,000,000
Domestic food requirement for year ended June 30, 1899, Trade Bulletin estimate	330,000,000
Exports for the year ended June 30, 1899, government record	222,000,000
Balance wheat and flour in all positions July 1, 1899, equal	99,000,000
Total	717,000,000

SUPPLY FOR 1899-1900.

Balance brought down, wheat and flour on hand in all positions in the United States, equal	99,000,000
Crop of 1899, government estimate Sept. 1	497,404,000
Total	596,404,000

ESTIMATED DISPOSITION TO JUNE 30, 1900.

Domestic requirements to June 30, 1900, same estimate as above	396,000,000
For export to June 30, 1900	200,404,000
Total	596,404,000

These figures would indicate no reserve supply left on hand June 30, 1900. The reason given by the compiler of these statistics for going back to July 1, 1898, for a beginning is that there was so little wheat in the United States at that time it could be all measured.

PRODUCE STEADY ALL AROUND.

Fairly active conditions prevailed in pretty much all the produce commission houses yesterday, requirements of the local trade being on a somewhat larger scale than for a day or two past. Slightly freer receipts gave dealers more leeway in selections, but prices were not particularly changed. In fruit lines grapes continue of poor quality, although the supply is abundant. Poultry and game is in good demand and generally better in quality than during warmer weather. There is a fair call for apples and a brisk demand for the higher grades of butter, which continue scarce. Eggs are in moderate receipt and readily absorbed. Following is the range of the market:

The first half of this week the four leading Western markets received 23,000 fewer cattle than a week ago. Kansas City alone decreased 13,000 and Chicago 3,000. The decrease has been entirely of grass rangers.

KENNEDY WANTS TO QUIT

MAROON CAPTAIN HANDS HIS RESIGNATION TO COACH STAGG.

He Takes Umbrage at the Legislation Regarding Unclassified Students Passed by the Athletic Board on Tuesday—After a Long Argument He Is Persuaded to Reconsider and Rejoin the Team—Three Regulars Are Displaced by Scrubs.

The new rules regarding unclassified students has stirred up the waters at the University of Chicago. Yesterday Capt. Walter Kennedy of the maroon football team wrote out his resignation as leader of the football eleven and handed it to Coach Stagg. The coach was amazed and for a moment he believed Kennedy was joking, but the seriousness of the Captain soon became evident. Kennedy claims that the legislation passed by the Athletic board on Tuesday referred to him, among others, and for some time Stagg was unable to persuade him to reconsider his resignation. Stagg labored with him for a long time, and then, with the assistance of several members of the board, the matter was satisfactorily explained to Kennedy. When he learned that the rule was not retroactive and that, owing to the fact it did not go into effect until the next election of the Captain of the football team, Kennedy surrendered and took back his paper, which he had so carefully prepared.

The action of the Captain was known to but a few of the eleven, and they, in accordance with the wishes of the coach, kept the matter quiet in deference to Kennedy, who felt badly over the affair.

Had Kennedy stuck to his action the varsity football eleven would have been in a demoralized condition. With Wellington also out of the game the team would hardly have been able to win, for Kennedy at quarter back is representative of a great per cent of the defensive and offensive play of the team.

The football practice last night was one of the most wonderful of the year. So bad was the work of a few of the varsity that a number of them were displaced and put on the second team. It all came about through the scrubs' remarkable team play, and as touchdowns were scored by the scrubs before the varsity men knew what had struck them, and in spite of the efforts of Stagg and other coaches the varsity was utterly unable to cope with the play. Flannagan, who has been playing guard in the second team, was moved over to the scrub and Cooke took his place. A moment later Fell was called out and the coaches decided to put Erwin in his place, since Stagg two weeks ago threatened to take him off the training table, has been playing hard football. He went in at tackle and did wonders. Sheldon was taken out and Schmahl, last year's crack end, who has been out of the game owing to injuries, was put on the first team play and resumed his old position.

The shakeup was the subject of considerable comment by the students and through the practice there were times when it looked as if the whole first eleven would be superseded by the second. Kennedy failed to do his customary work and had days of his judgment by the coaches.

However, before the game was through the varsity had scored three touchdowns and tied the score, but the humiliation of having two were displaced added greatly to the fierce play. The three men who were displaced felt their displacement keenly and there will undoubtedly be an exciting time on Marshall Field this afternoon when the forces battle in the annual game on to Madison over the Northwestern at 3 o'clock that afternoon.

Just who will line up against Northwestern it is hard to tell, but it is not likely that any substitutes will play, though there is an idea prevalent that Northwestern will give the maroons a harder game than some have expected.

All of Saturday's work there will be an early call today for the eleven, and Stagg said last night that there would not be an easy time for any one.

NORTHWESTERN NOT CONFIDENT.

Purple Players Do Slow Work—Wheelock Unlikely to Play Again.

While the Northwestern football team was putting the finishing touches on its practice at Shepard Field yesterday two big men were noticed moving around the inclosure. Being questioned as to their identity they claimed to come from Garrett Biblical Institute.

"What came ye out for to see?" was next asked of the supposed theological students, and not being able to furnish a satisfactory answer they were grouped. Another passer-by remarked out one remarked: "We will whip those fellows and whip them bad."

This is the first times such a thing has occurred at Evanston this year, for the purple has been considered big enough to worry about, and Hollister does not believe that Stagg can be sufficiently about the team to send men to Evanston for points. If Stagg does send scouts they will not get much information, for the boys had about ceased working.

Disaster still follows the purple, for yesterday Wheelock developed such an attack of "charley-horse" that it is doubtful if he can again play. He will not be in the game against the varsity in the lineup only a short time yesterday and Pratt took his place. Wheelock was in at end, and the old full back proved to be faster in his position than was expected. He got away quickly and broke up the interference behind the line time and again. He has been counted the slowest man on Sheppard Field, but his work last night did not show up to be the case. Elliott, the other end, also did good work.

The first half was against the prep, and the varsity did not show to better advantage. Substitutes were then used, and these the varsity handled without trouble. They tore the line to pieces whenever they wished and made long gains.

The work of the day was slow and gave but little hope to those who believed that Northwestern might keep Chicago down.

The students are making great preparations for this game. It is the first time in three years Northwestern has traveled to Marshall Field peaningly sure of defeat, yet the same mixed crowd is daily in evidence. With Wellington also out of the game the team would hardly have been able to win, for Kennedy at quarter back is representative of a great per cent of the defensive and offensive play of the team.

TALKS OF DOCTORS' FEES.

G. FRANK LYDSTON CONDEMNS A PRACTICE OF SOME PHYSICIANS.

Says They Demand a Percentage for Sending Patients to Specialists or Noted Men, and Relates Instances—No Danger of Medical Men Being Overpaid, He Says—Charity Hospitals Objected To as Against the Interests of the Profession.

Dr. G. Frank Lydston delivered a lecture before the students of the College of Physicians and Surgeons last night which revealed to them a few phases of the medical profession not generally understood. He told 300 young men and women that the practice of sending patients to noted doctors and surgeons in return for a percentage of the fee had become common with a certain class of the profession, and he denounced the custom.

"I have seen a letter written to a prominent surgeon of this city by a doctor in a Western city," said Dr. Lydston, "the writer of which explained that he had been attending a wealthy woman upon whom it had become necessary to perform an operation. 'This woman will do as I tell her,' wrote the doctor, 'and will stand for a $200 fee. Now, if you think you will be satisfied with half of that amount I will be satisfied with the other half. If you don't care to take the case on these terms I know of many other doctors who will be glad to get it.'"

While on the subject of fees in general Dr. Lydston drew a comparison between the conditions prevailing in the Eastern and the Western cities. He related an instance of a young doctor in New York who treated successfully the daughter of a multi-millionaire for typhoid fever, and was paid a fee of $5,000 and a bonus of $50,000.

"The probability is that a Chicago millionaire would have objected to the fee," added Dr. Lydston, "and would have insisted on its being cut down."

Dr. Lydston offered the students much advice on this question of fees. He gave them to understand that the doctor was never in danger of being overpaid. Charity hospitals came in for a severe criticism from Dr. Lydston. He decried them as antagonistic to the business of the physician and surgeon.

WORK FOR A DEEP WATERWAY.

Efforts for a deep waterway from Lake Michigan to the gulf will center in Washington next winter. Lyman E. Cooley, as expert representative of the Illinois River Valley association, will reside there in its interest, and a committee will lobby for an appropriation with which to make preliminary surveys and reports.

The Executive committee created at the recent Peoria convention met yesterday morning in the rooms of the Drainage board and took steps to get the deep waterway proposition before Congress. It appropriated $10,000 to carry on the work of education. General Wilson, Chief Engineer of the War department, will be asked to include in his report a recommendation that means be provided to take up the preliminary work at once. Representatives of every interest in the Illinois Valley attended the meeting. Isaac Taylor presided and R. R. Bourland acted as Secretary. The following Committee on Legislation was appointed to direct the campaign at Washington:

Chicago—Lyman E. Cooley, Frank Wenter, Judge O. N. Carter, Thomas Gahan; St. Louis, William P. Kenneth and John A. Ocherson; Upper Illinois Valley, L. B. Ray and Henry Mayo; Peoria, N. E. Worthington; Lower Illinois Valley, S. Lowensohn and J. D. Hess.

There will be no contract made leasing the water power on the drainage canal before water is turned into the big ditch. The trustees disposed of this question at their meeting by returning the $50,000 check of Clarence Buckingham, the last of the three bidders for the privilege. The deposit of the two other bidders was returned some time ago.

LAKE SHIPPING NEWS.

Freights and Charters.

CHICAGO—The grain trade was in about as bad a way as it could get. Slow sales of grain for shipment brought few cargoes on the market, and rates dropped to 2¼ cents. Charters—To Buffalo: Gogebic, oats. To Midland: Phenix, corn, at 2½c.

CLEVELAND, O.—Ore rates were cut 25 cents all around today, making them $1.25 from the head of the lakes, $1.15 from Marquette, and $1 from Escanaba. The boats placed were not named, but considerable business must have been done. Coal tonnage is in good demand. Charters—Coal: Gilchrist, Cleveland to Fort William, 70c; Craig, Erie to Manitowoc, 80; Germanic, Hutchinson, Ohio to Escanaba, 70c; Mary Boyce, Fairport to Milwaukee, 80c; Barium, Fairport to Chicago, 80c; Ranney, Grover, Ohio to Duluth, 50c; Interlaken, Cleveland to Ashland, 50c.

DULUTH, Minn.—The best rate offered for grain today was 3½c. The lumber rate was broken to $4.25. Lumber shippers say there is a great deal to go forward at lower rates, but none at the old figure of $4.50.

NEWS OF THE COURTS.

Judge Jenkins' Ruling Upheld.

In the appeal of Samuel H. Leathe and others against Edward L. Thomas and others, Judges Woods, Baker, and Seaman of the United States Court of Appeals upheld a former order of Judge Jenkins dissolving an injunction. Leathe, the complainant, had secured an order restraining the Sheriff of St. Clair County from further proceeding with the collection of an execution on a decree entered on Jan. 4, 1897, in favor of Edward Thomas and against the Crown Coal and Tow Co., in which Leathe was interested. A temporary injunction was granted, and later Judge Jenkins dissolved the restraining order. Judge Baker, speaking for the Court of Appeals, says: "No court of the United States can lawfully issue any order or injunction to arrest the progress of a suit pending in a State court except in a bankruptcy proceeding."
